COUNTY BOND BACKERS WORK FOR BIG TURNOUT IN TUESDAY VOTE

4000 Volunteers Conducting Telephone Campaign—Sirens to Remind Citizens of Obligation.

Campaign groups working for approval of the $39,712,000 St. Louis county bond issue were concentrating their efforts today on getting a large voter turnout for tomorrow's special election on the eight propositions. Each proposal requires a two-thirds favorable majority for passage.

In addition to a telephone campaign directed at registered voters by 4000 women volunteers, residents of most parts of the county will be reminded of their obligation to vote by the sound of sirens at 7:30 a.m. tomorrow. These will be sounded by various municipalities with air-raid warning systems and by fire departments.

Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the county's 378 precincts. Taverns, except 3.2 beer places, will be closed. State, county and city offices will be open.

Temperatures around 70 were predicted for tomorrow, with partly cloudy skies.

8 Separate Propositions.

The broad program of public improvements is contained in eight separate propositions. Each proposition requires a vote. To vote for it, the voter places an "X" after the word YES. To vote against it, he places an "X" after the word NO.

Election board officials have estimated that somewhat fewer than half the county's 218,618 registered voters will cast ballots.

The St. Louis election board office was swamped today by telephone calls from city voters asking whether they were supposed to vote tomorrow. One explanation for the confusion was that "Vote Yes" signs spelled out over the county by sky-writers were quickly blown over the city by a brisk west wind.

Besides the regular Democratic and Republican precinct workers, there will be a force of 54 CIO and AFL union members working on behalf of the bond proposals. Trucks carrying billboards and sound trucks will be used to urge votes for the bond issue throughout the county.

These are the propositions:

1. Expressway rights-of-way, $8,500,000.
2. Children's buildings, $800,000.
3. Supplementary roads, bridges and grade separations, $7,837,000.
4. Parks and playgrounds, $2,200,000.
5. Voting machines, $675,000.
6. Inner Belt highway, $16,100,000.
7. Hospital construction, $1,500,000.
8. Civil defense, $100,000.

Propositions 1, 3 and 6, making up the highway proposals, constitute 87 per cent of the dollar volume of the entire issue. Regarded as meeting only the absolute minimum traffic needs of the county, they were scaled down from proposals aggregating more than $66,000,000.

Rights-of-Way Funds.

Proposition 1 would pay the county's one-half share of acquiring rights-of-way for three expressways radiating out from the city limits to connect with transcontinental highways. It would also pay the right-of-way costs for an Outer Belt throughway west of Lindbergh boulevard. If Congress appropriates sufficient money to finance the federal highway program, the Outer Belt would probably be

KEFAUVER SAID TO RELISH FIGHT FOR NOMINATION

Friends Say He Has $200,000 Fund and Will Announce Candidacy Next Month.

By JACK BELL

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP)—Estes Kefauver of Tennessee apparently is going to essay a "giant killer" role in a battle with Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois for the 1956 Democratic nomination.

Friends who participated in a three-day party rally which wound up here this weekend reported Kefauver has firm pledges for more than $200,000 in campaign funds and is almost certain to take the plunge into the contest to win next month.

This would pit him directly against Stevenson, the 1952 nominee who is running again, while Gov. Averell Harriman of New York waits watchfully on the flanks for any sign of a stalemate.

Kefauver was represented as relishing what friendly campaign tacticians have told him frankly is an uphill battle against Stevenson. Stevenson, who formally announced his candidacy last week, appeared to have been installed as an odds-on favorite for the nomination by members of the National Committee and by the state chairmen who have most to do with the selection of next year's convention delegate slates.

Stevenson Aids Amazed.

So confident was the Stevenson camp, in fact, that some of its leaders reacted with amazement to reports that Kefauver is likely to enter the battle.

Senator John J. Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, Stevenson's 1952 running mate, said he thinks Stevenson is far ahead and will get stronger as time rolls on.

However, Senator Pat McNamara (Dem.), Michigan, observed in a separate interview that "nine months is a long time to keep up the pace that Stvenson has set."

McNamara said he expects Gov. Mennen Williams of Michigan to "look over the situation for a while" before deciding whether to become a "favorite son" candidate. Williams said only that the idea was being kicked about but he had not made up his mind.

Harriman made it clear at a news conference here yesterday he isn't closing any doors to acceptance of the nomination if it should come his way. He maintained he isn't an "active candidate," but he said he retains "the recognized right of a man to seek another office" when he was asked if he felt he ought to serve out his term of Governor, which has three more years to run.

Against 'Moderate' Candidate.

Harriman, who said he has an "understanding" with Stevenson on which he wouldn't elaborate, said he doesn't agree that the Democrats ought to pick a "moderate" candidate or write a "middle-of-the-road"

Eisenhower at Mountain Camp For Security, Cabinet Sessions

Drives to Retreat 22 Miles From Gettysburg for Two Days of Defense Talks.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAMP DAVID, Md., Nov. 21—President Eisenhower and his top advisers arrived here today to begin two days of full-scale discussions of the nation's defense and security policies.

Accompanied by Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Mr. Eisenhower drove to his mountain retreat 22 miles south of Gettysburg to preside at a meeting of the National Security Council this afternoon.

Mr. Eisenhower and Dulles arrived at 2:15 p.m. after a 35-minute trip from the President's farm home. They went immediately to the Chief Executive's seven-room cottage to await Cabinet members and other high ranking assistants coming from Washington by helicopter.

At 2:20 p.m., the first of three H-21 "Flying Banana" helicopters touched down at a small grass landing strip about 500 yards from the presidential cottage.

Secretary Dulles On Board.

On board were Secretary of State John Foster Dulles; Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes; chief presidential assistant Sherman Adams; Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr.; Robert R. Bowie, chief of the State Department's policy planning staff; Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission, and Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary.

A smaller helicopter carrying Vice President Richard M. Nixon landed at 2:28 p.m. Nixon, who arrived back in Washington today from a Florida vacation, was accompanied by Dillon Anderson, presidential assistant on national security measures.

Two more "flying bananas," piloted by Air Force personnel, came in minutes later.

One carried Harold E. Stassen, presidential assistant on disarmament; Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff; Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey; Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson; Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. and Theodore C. Streibert, chief of the United States Information Agency.

Mobilization Director.

The last helicopter brought John B. Hollister, head of the International Co-operation Administration; Defense Mobilization Director Arthur S. Flemming; Nelson A. Rockefeller, presidential assistant on psychological strategy, and two secretaries.

The officials were driven along narrow roads muddied by autumn rain and snow to the presidential cottage. The National Security Council meeting was scheduled to get under way as soon as all participants had arrived.

Mr. Eisenhower, Nixon and some of the others will stay here overnight for a meeting of the Cabinet at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

The helicopter service, mark-

EISENHOWER'S DOCTOR PASSED UP STOCKS 'KILLING'

BROOKLINE, Mass., Nov. 21 (AP)—Boston heart specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White, said yesterday that he could have made a "killing" on the stock market if he had taken advantage of his position as consultant on President Eisenhower's illness.

Mr. White said his first bulletin on the President's condition was estimated to have raised the value of stocks by $2,000,000,000.

"I took no advantage of that," he told a meeting of the Brotherhood of Temple Emeth.

"If I had gone in the morning shaking my head sadly, and (then) come out smiling, I could have made money that day."

REDS REPORT BIG METEORITE FELL NEAR VLADIVOSTOK

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Soviet scientists reported today a 300-ton meteorite composed of the same elements as the earth fell recently in the Sikote Alin mountains, just north of Vladisvostok in the Far East.

Reporting their finds, the Moscow radio said the meteorite broke into hundreds of pieces on reaching the earth, the largest weighing about three tons.

"The scientists have also reconstructed the orbit of the flight in interplanetary space and have estimated the speed of the fall," the broadcast said without giving details. "It has been established that the meteorite was formed in the solar system. Chemical analysis has shown that the meteorite is composed of the same elements as our planet."

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 21 (AP)—New York state counted seven dead in weekend accidents on icy or snow-laden roads. Up to eight inches of snow blanketed the northeastern tip of New York state this morning.

Return of Ostrich Egg Cups Predicted by British Jeweler

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Garrard's, jewelers to Britain's royal family, predicts that cups for ostrich eggs may be coming back into fashion.

"They had a great vogue between 1590 and 1625," said Cecil Nann, the firm's expert on ostrich egg cups. "Everyone seemed to have them then, but like many other things, fashions changed and they were forgotten."

He disclosed that Garrard's has just completed its first commission in more than 200 years for a pair of containers for ostrich eggs for Emir Abdul Illah, crown prince of Iraq.

"A charming man of great taste," said Nann. "He has a pair of ostriches in his Baghdad garden. The hen laid two eggs. The crown prince brought them to us and requested a pair of egg cups."

Asked if the prince planned to eat the eggs, Nann looked horrified.

"Heavens no," he said, "he wants them for ornaments."

KHRUSHCHEV LIES IN INDIAN BED, IT FOLDS UNDER HIM

NEW DELHI, Nov. 21 (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev, Russian Communist party boss, may doubt an Indian good luck sign a pretty Indian girl dabbed on his forehead today.

Half an hour later, in a Boy Scout camp, Prime Minister Nehru stretched out on a string camp-bed and then asked Khrushchev to try it as well. The bulky Russian, who appears to outweigh 160-pound Nehru by at least 40 pounds, did so—and it collapsed under him.

WEST ASSAILED BEFORE INDIA'S PARLIAMENT BY SOVIET LEADERS

Bulganin and Khrushchev Assert Policies Are Based on Strength — Nehru Reaffirms Neutrality Stand.

NEW DELHI, Nov. 21 (AP)—Soviet chiefs Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev opened a double-barreled attack on the West in the Indian Parliament today.

They told the more than 700 members, in the presence of Prime Minister Nehru, that Russia was united with India in an "unending battle for peace."

Both criticized the West on grounds it was "attempting to follow policies based on a position of strength."

Bulganin charged the Western powers had set back the problem of disarmament 10 years.

"To our great regret," he said, "our efforts to dispose of the deadlock on the question of disarmament and the prohibition of atomic and hydrogen weapons have not so far brought about positive results. . . . As a matter of fact, the United States, England and France have backed down from what they themselves proposed at the beginning of this year."

Soviet Premier Bulganin and first Communist party secretary Khrushchev are here on a good will visit expected to last more than two weeks. At a state banquet last night, Nehru warned them not to expect that their tour would lead India into the Communist bloc. Bluntly, he said India was "in no camp and no military alliance."

Soviet Policy Described.

"The foreign policy of the Soviet Union is a policy of peace and friendship between nations," Bulganin told the Parliament members, who frequently applauded. "The people of the Soviet Union feel a deep respect for the Indian Government's efforts directed against a policy of creating military aggressive alignments and for the defense of collective peace."

Khrushchev, who followed Bulganin to the microphones, declared, "we cannot close our eyes to the fact that the spirit of Geneva causes indigestion to certain persons. Certain circles in some states are still trying to follow the notorious policy of 'from a position of strength,' a policy of threats by atomic weapons which is a disgrace to modern civilization."

The prospect of Russian assistance to India's industrial development appeared to be emerging as the leading topic during the Soviet leaders' visit. They brought up the subject for the third day in addresses to a children's meeting earlier today. Khrushchev told the children they must help India industrialize rapidly and increase agricultural production quickly, and that in this they could count on the help of Russian youth.

Private Talk on Economics.

At a private luncheon, informed sources said Nehru and the two Russians discussed economic co-operation. There has been much said in the past months about Russian economic aid to India but little done about it.

A spokesman for the Natural Resources Ministry told questioners in Parliament today, however, that nine Soviet mining experts are due to arrive soon to help prospect for oil and other minerals. A spokesman for the Iron and Steel Ministry said 300 Soviet technicians are expected in about a year to work on a million-ton steel mill India is buying from the Soviet Union.

Nehru, in his banquet speech last night said the only camp "we should like to be in is the camp of peace and good will."

Soviet Premier Bulganin followed with a speech at a state banquet in which he said the Soviet Union has "not lost hopes" as a result of the Big Four foreign ministers' deadlock at their Geneva conference.

Russia, Bulganin said, is "certain that in the end the four powers will succeed in solving the problems which face them."

Again Offers Help.

The Russians banqueted after visiting the Taj Mahal at Agra, where Khrushchev said the Soviet Union wished to help India become strong industrially "to assure its freedom and independence." On Saturday Bulganin in a speech called Russia and India "allies" and offered to share Russian experience in atomic energy, industry and electric power.

In his banquet speech, Nehru said there is a deep friendship between India and Russia but he added:

"We are convinced it is not by military pacts and alliances and by piling up armaments that world peace and security can be attained." The camp of peace and goodwill, he continued, "should include as many countries as possible and be opposed to none."

Indian Reds were invited for the first time to a state banquet given by Nehru for visiting dignitaries. Three Indian Communist party leaders attended with representatives of all other parties in parliament.

CAUDLE INSISTS HE NEVER RECEIVED 'A SINGLE DIME' TO INFLUENCE TAX CASE

Tax Scandal Witness

FORMER JUSTICE OFFICIAL DENIES HE GOT $4000 IN SACHS LITIGATION

He Testifies Again Before Jury Inquiring Into Scandals—Tom L. Evans Also Is a Witness.

Theron Lamar Caudle, a key figure in the federal grand jury's investigation of tax scandals in the Truman administration, today insisted he had never received "a single dime" to influence the outcome of an income tax case when he was head of the Justice Department tax division.

Caudle, who came to St. Louis under subpena from his Wadesboro (N.C.) home, is a witness before the grand jury.

At the luncheon recess, Caudle was asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter if he had received $4000 in connection with the case of Irving Sachs, head of Shu-Stiles, Inc., wholesale shoe firm at 1214 Washington avenue. Sachs was fined $40,000 in 1951 on his plea of guilty of income tax evasion.

"I did not receive a single dime, or anything else, in that case," Caudle replied. "In fact, I did not know there was any such suspicion until I got here."

2500 Income Tax Cases.

Asked if he had accepted money to influence, delay or kill any income tax case when he was in Washington, he declared: "Not a single thing in 2500 income tax cases or 16,000 civil cases that I handled."

Caudle returned to the witness stand this afternoon.

The current phase of the prolonged tax investigation by federal grand juries resulted in the indictment last Friday of Harry I. Schwimmer, a former Kansas City attorney, on a perjury charge growing out of his testimony before the jury. Schwimmer was attorney for Sachs in the income tax case.

Also before the grand jury today was Tom L. Evans, Kansas City radio executive and close personal friend of former President Truman.

Evans, who is secretary of the Harry S. Truman Library, Inc., produced records which the jury requested when he was a witness here last week.

Caudle, ousted as head of the tax division by former President Truman, and Matthew J. Connelly, who was Truman's appointments secretary, became key figures in the inquiry following the finding of old office records of Schwimmer. Connelly was a grand jury witness last week, when Schwimmer also testified.

The Schwimmer records, termed a "big break in the investigation" by Wyllys S. Newcomb, special assistant to the United States Attorney General, were overlooked by Schwimmer, who recently flew from Puerto Rico to Kansas City for the express purpose of inspecting his old files, it was learned yesterday.

Made Midnight Visit.

On Oct. 18 federal authorities subpenaed the records for delivery here Oct. 25. Schwimmer, who maintains homes in New York and in Puerto Rico, arrived in Kansas City the night of Oct. 23 and made a midnight visit to a warehouse, where his records were stored, it was reported. He was accompanied by a former business associate.

Schwimmer looked through a filing cabinet and the top carton of a stack of four cartons, Federal authorities learned. He did not look in the three bottom cartons, thinking there was nothing of importance there. It was in those boxes that authorities found records that led to the indictment of Schwimmer.

The old records showed that Schwimmer received $10,000 from Sachs in October, 1949. Schwimmer told the grand jury the money represented a legal fee, it was learned. The indictment charged that the money was a fund to bribe officials and that Schwimmer was aware of the purpose.

Schwimmer Bond Posted.

Bond of $30,000, set by United States District Judge George H. Moore on the perjury charge, was posted today for Schwimmer, who is a patient at Lutheran Hospital.

His wife presented a cashier's check for that sum on a St. Joseph (Mo.) bank. The money was said to represent funds furnished by relatives of Schwimmer. The check is to be replaced by a surety bond later.

The bond was signed in the presence of United States Commissioner Edwin J. Bean after a warrant on the perjury charge was served on Schwimmer in his hospital room by Deputy United States Marshal Leslie

NEW POST OFFICE RULING PERMITS LETTER IN PARCEL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (UP)—You can put letters in your Christmas packages this year without having to pay first-class postage on the whole parcel.

The Post Office Department announced today a new "combination" mail service that makes it possible for the first time in history to include a letter or message inside a fourth-class (parcel post) package or inside a copy of a publication mailed under second-class mail entry.

The new service starts next Monday, Nov. 28, on a 60-day trial basis. All you have to do is indicate on the outside of the package that a letter is enclosed. Then you pay the regular postage rate for the parcel, plus an extra three-cent stamp for the letter.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield said the new system would spell the end of the familiar phrase, "We are sending under separate cover."

TROOPS REOCCUPY RIO; CAFE LIKELY TO TRY TO RETURN

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 21 (UP)—Government troops reoccupied this capital city today in the midst of a tense political crisis. Censors moved into the offices of newspapers and radio stations.

Troops took up stations in the city shortly after heart specialists said Joao Cafe Jr., was well enough to resume the office of president of Brazil. Cafe left Sao Vicente clinic where he has been convalescing and went home. It was believed he might try to return to office tomorrow.

Cafe was understood to be writing a letter to acting President Nereu Ramos advising Ramos he plans to take over again the duties he relinquished to assembly President Carlos Luz on Nov. 8, five days after he suffered a heart attack. Cafe's term ends Jan. 31 when President-elect Juscelino Kubitschek is to take over.

But it was reported that War Minister Henrique Teixeira Lott, who led the Army revolt that ousted Luz, has told Cafe that the Army would forbid his return.

MAN ARRAIGNED AFTER BEING IN JAIL SINCE NOV. 1

Pleads Not Guilty of Theft — Fast Action in Prospect for Second Person.

Richard W. Buhrman, one of two men who have been held for prosecution since Nov. 1 without a hearing, pleaded not guilty at arraignment today in the Court of Criminal Correction. Judge Louis Comerford set his trial on a theft charge for Wednesday.

Speedy action also was in prospect for James Crews, the second man held in the police holdover.

Judge Comerford said: "This is a case in which the defendant has been held for some time in the police holdover, and I want to expedite trial."

He asked Associate Prosecuting Attorney Jasper R. Vettori if he could be ready by Wednesday, and Vettori said he was sure he could. He added that he would make every effort to do so.

A new 10-day rule went into effect in St. Louis courts today, on recommendation of the St. Louis Bar Association's Committee on Criminal Justice and by agreement of Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd. The rule is intended to help protect the civil rights of persons suspected of crimes, and provides that they should have a hearing as soon as possible, within 10 days at the most.

Charged With Misdemeanor.

Buhrman, a 21-year-old metal polisher who lives in the 1300 block of Bayard avenue, is charged with stealing a $10 fender skirt from an automobile, a msidemeanor.

Judge Comerford said he wanted to give the prosecuting attorney's office time to line up its witnesses. A member of the staff said last week he had forgotten to file a warrant against Buhrman.

Judge David FitzGibbon said today he would put that case on his docket for a preliminary hearing Wednesday, giving the circuit attorney's office two

County Bridge Falls, Police Check Evidence of Dynamite

A 75-year-old bridge on Old Baumgartner road in southern St. Louis county collapsed last night and police were investigating evidence that the 53-foot span was dynamited.

County Highway Engineer Fred H. Kiburz reported one of his engineers investigating the collapse found a steel box girder twisted as if by a blast and also a short length of wire of the type used to connect detonating caps.

Kiburz immediately turned the matter over to county police and Superintendent Albert E. DuBois took personal charge of the inquiry.

The one-way bridge, a single span resting on stone abutments, was one of a large number scheduled for replacement with funds of the proposed county bond issue.

Collapse of the structure was reported by Arthur Haller of Bloomsdale, Mo., who said he stopped his automobile just in time to avoid dropping 18 feet into Mattis creek. The bridge is about a mile and a half north of the Meramec river and east of U. S. Highway 61-67.

Kiburz said the bridge now would have to be replaced immediately with road and bridge funds, whether the bonds are approved by voters tomorrow or not.

IRAQ PLEDGES AID AGAINST ISRAEL AS BAGHDAD PACT MEETING OPENS

But Its Premier Hopes Other Arab Nations Will Realize Value of Anti-Soviet Alliance.

BAGHDAD, Nov. 21 (AP)—The first meeting of the five-nation Baghdad defense alliance—called to plan mutual defense against Communist aggression—opened today with an Iraqi pledge to aid any Arab state threatened by Israel.

Premier Nuri Said brought the Arab-Israeli feud into the meeting in his speech of welcome to British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and the premiers of Iran, Turkey and Pakistan.

Iraq, Nuri Said declared, "will not hesitate to use its resources for the assistance of any Arab state subjected to Israeli aggression in accordance with its obligation under the treaty of collective defense and economic co-operation between the states of the Arab League."

Egyptian Opposition.

The Baghdad pact was completed last month with the adherence of Iran. Egyptian opposition has kept Arab nations other than Iraq out of the Western-backed lineup.

Referring to the Arab opposition to the alliance, the Iraqi premier expressed hope that "the day will come when the brother Arab states will realize the great benefits which they have reaped from the existence of the Baghdad pact."

The United States last week announced its "military and political liaison" with the pact. United States Ambassadors W. J. Gallman and Adm. John H. Cassady joined the conference as observers after it voted them a formal invitation.

Gallman told the group the United States had announced support for the alliance on several occasions and that the presence of United States observers served as further evidence of such support.

Only Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes referred to the pact's aim of establishing a common defense against possible Russian aggression. He did not mention the Soviet Union by name, and quickly passed on to the Palestine issue.

Danger From North.

"This pact," he said, "has already taken the most important step toward providing for the security of the Middle East against the danger from the north. While we are thus gradually achieving progressive organization of the Middle East against the northern danger which threatens it, I cannot refrain from mentioning the question of Palestine which worries us all in view of the security and stability of this area."

He said the pact members all had the "duty to work for an equitable solution of this question."

Iranian Premier Hussein Ala also brought up the Arab-Israeli dispute, saying Iran is prepared to do all possible to co-operate in reaching a just settlement.

"Iran earnestly trusts that the United Nations . . . will be able to solve the dispute which exists between our Arab friends and Israel," he said.

Ala also said Iran would "warmly welcome the early accession" of the United States to the alliance.

Through Turkey, the Baghdad security pact connects with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to the west, and to the east, through Pakistan, with the Southeast Asia defense organization.

Meeting to Last 2 Days.

The current meeting, expected to last two days, is being held in Al Zahour (Flower) Palace across the Tigris from Baghdad.

Macmillan, at the opening session, called for economic as well as military co-operation among the members of the pact. He outlined two aims for the alliance:

"First, to make our peoples safe from aggression from any quarter and to help each other build our forces so no attack on any of us could succeed.

"Secondly, we must resolve to assist each other in promoting economic and social development, remembering that our main objective is the welfare of our people."

Macmillan said the decision of the United States to send observers was welcomed by all members.

"The massive influence and support of the United States will add strength to our work and I look forward to the consolidation of their association with us," he added.

The Briton said the pact was formed in the "common desire of our peoples to develop their welfare and prosperity in an assurance of peace." He said Middle East resources, chiefly oil, can be used for the development of such prosperity.

"It must be our task," Macmillan said, "to see that no political differences, no past prejudices and, above all, no outside interference gets in the way of the great work we can do together. . . . Let us set up the practical machinery suited to our needs and let us insure that the message which goes out from our meeting is one of peace and co-operation between our peoples."

Deadly Violence in Palace Courtyard

—Associated Press Radiophoto.

Members of Moroccan mob pushing and shoving in the courtyard of the Sultan's palace at Rabat Saturday as followers of the Sultan stamped on the bodies of two men who were killed in outburst of violence. Victims were former political foes of the Sultan who had come to make their peace with him.

Sultan Ben Youssef Moves To End Morocco Mob Killings

Supporters of Former Ruler Stoned and Stabbed—Chief to Tour Country for Backing.

RABAT, Morocco, Nov. 21 (UP)—Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef today rushed formation of a strong government to halt revengeful mobs reported sweeping through Moroccan cities in a wave of violence against the Sultan's opponents.

The Sultan convened a conference of his top advisers at the heavily guarded imperial palace to work out a Nationalist-backed Cabinet that would restore order. A lack of central authority left rampaging crowds master of the streets.

French authorities were not involved and no official casualty figures were available. Fifteen persons were known to have been killed by mobs in Rabat, Fez and Marrakech. Many others were reported wounded.

Many of the mobs' actions were directed against supporters of ex-Sultan Mohammed Moulay Ben Arafa who ruled the country during the two years Ben Youssef was exiled by the French to Madagascar. Ben Youssef was restored by France after Ben Arafa, his uncle, retired to Tangier.

Sultan to Tour Morocco.

The Sultan announced he would leave this week on a nation-wide tour, visiting major towns and country areas to exhort Moroccans to rally behind his throne.

Informed sources said the Sultan confirmed Si Fatmi Ben Slimane as premier-designate of the future government which will negotiate "independence within inter-dependence" with France.

"I deeply regret the course of events," the Sultan said of the savage stonings, stabbings and burnings reported throughout the protectorate.

"But the people who have been victims of the crowd have not been asked to come to the palace. They have even been warned not to come. In coming here they have taken a terrible risk."

Attacked at Palace.

Supporters of the former Sultan were attacked when they came to pay respects to Ben Youssef and were recognized by the crowd filling the imperial courtyard. Among such victims was the Caliph of Fez, who was killed at the palace last Saturday.

French officials were less concerned by the violence against Ben Arafa's sympathizers than by the growing rivalry between the two main nationalist movements — the Istiqlal and the Democratic party of Independence.

They said no stable government could be formed so long as the rivalry exists.

The French army and police, unless attacked, were no longer intervening in disorders. The Sultan has only a small unit of guards in the palace, and elsewhere public order was in the hands of uniformed nationalist youth groups.

Widespread Killings.

A Moroccan truck driver in Fez who allegedly did not comply fast enough with orders of Nationalist organizers to clear the street was stoned to death and his vehicle burned. Another Moroccan was knifed to death.

Other stabbings were reported at Immouzer du Kandar in the Meknes region and at Fedala. A shopkeeper was murdered at Immouzer and a pro-French Algerian was killed at Martimprey.

HAGERTY MAKES CAUSTIC REPLY TO STEVENSON TALK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 21—White House press secretary James C. Hagerty had a short, caustic comment yesterday on Adlai E. Stevenson's criticism of administration foreign policy.

Hagerty was questioned about Stevenson's statement that the Eisenhower foreign policy has not ended the cold war and that peace cannot be achieved "by slogans and tough talk."

Stevenson, a candidate for the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination, made the charge at a $100-a-plate Democratic fund-raising dinner in Chicago.

In what was probably the first public statement of a politically partisan nature by a top Eisenhower aid since the President suffered a heart attack, Hagerty told reporters: "I haven't any comment except I suppose he just had to say something for $100 a plate."

'ROMEO, JULIET' TELEVISED IN SOVIET UNION IN ENGLISH

MOSCOW, Nov. 21 (AP)—For the first time in history, Soviet television presented last night a full-length English play in the English language. It was Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet."

The British producer Peter Brook, who learned his Russian at Oxford, introduced the drama, interjecting bits of the synopsis from time to time. Brook is here as producer-director of Shakespeare's "Hamlet," opening a Moscow run Wednesday.

Anthony Britton played Romeo last night and Virginia McKenna was Juliet, in the filmed BBC version of the play flown here from London. Russian viewers said they were thrilled by the performance.

SEAQUAKE THEORY IN DISAPPEARANCE OF 25 FROM VESSEL

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Nov. 21 (AP)—Marine inspectors today completed a preliminary survey of the 70-ton "ghost ship" Joyita and reported the disappearance of its 25 passengers and crew could be explained in only one way—a "seaquake."

The Joyita, now at Suva, Fiji Islands, was found drifting and deserted in the South Pacific three weeks ago. It had sailed from Samoa on a two-day voyage to the Tokelau Islands on Oct. 3. No trace has been found of the passengers and crew.

Investigators said the only imaginable cause of the disaster was an undersea eruption that threw everyone overboard.

The Tongan vessel Hafifoa was the victim of an underwater eruption six months ago. The Hafifoa, carrying 40 people, was thrown on its beam ends when the sea suddenly boiled beneath it. Everyone aboard was pitched into the sea. All managed to get aboard again e xcept one chid, who was drowned.

VATICAN CONFIRMS REPORT POPE SAW VISION OF CHRIST

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Vatican announced today that Pope Pius XII saw a vision of Jesus Christ during the most critical moments of his grave illness last Dec. 2.

The recovery of the desperately ill Pontiff began soon afterward.

The announcement was made by Luciano Casimiri, chief of the Vatican Press Office, on authorization of the Papal Secretariat of State. The Secretariat normally would make such a statement only with the personal authorization of the Pope.

Casimiri told reporters they could state that "responsible Vatican circles" confirm the report of the vision published last week in Oggi, Italian weekly magazine.

SUPREME COURT VOTES TO RULE IN SECURITY CASE

Issue Is Whether U.S. Can Fire Risks From Non-Sensitive Government Jobs.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (UP)—The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether the Government has a right to fire security risks from "nonsensitive" jobs that have no access to defense secrets.

The court will schedule arguments on the case soon and hand down an opinion later this term. It may have a far-reaching impact on the federal employe security program, which now covers all Government workers.

The case was brought by Kenrick M. Cole, former New York Food and Drug Inspector. Cole was ousted as a security risk from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in 1953.

Cole was accused of associating with Communists and belonging to the Nature Friends of America, an organization on the Attorney General's subversive list.

Appeals Court Ruling.

The United States court of appeals in a 2-to-1 decision last July dismissed Cole's suit to regain his job. It held that President Eisenhower did not exceed his authority in issuing a 1953 executive order that blanketed all Government agencies under the security program.

In his appeal to the Supreme Court, Cole argued that the Government has the power to fire security risks only if they hold policy-making positions or have access to secrets.

He said a 1950 law authorized security dismissals "where necessary or advisable in the interests of national security." Cole contended that this could not apply to him or others in nonsensitive positions.

The Department of Justice said the 1950 act gave the President broad power to extend the program to "any department or agency when in his opinion the national security requires it." It noted that Congress has made no attempt to alter the 1950 law in the 2½ years the executive order has been in effect.

Present Classification.

A security risk under the present classification may be a drunkard, a loose talker, a sexual pervert or any other person who, while not necessarily disloyal, might reveal secret information through carelessness or under pressure of blackmail.

In another action the Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 that the Federal Government may be sued for failure of a lighthouse beacon.

The case was brought by the Indian Towing Co., owner of the tug Navajo, which went aground in 1951 on Chandeleur island in the Gulf of Mexico, near the mouth of the Mississippi river.

The towing company said the grounding was due solely to the failure of a Government-operated lighthouse on Chandeleur island. It argued that negligence of the Coast Guard in inspecting the light was responsible for the blackout.

The Government contended it cannot be sued for inadequate performance of a governmental activity such as operating a lighthouse.

The court rejected a suit by Clackamas county, Ore., which sought to have 472,000 acres of western Oregon timber land administered by the Department of the Interior. The court gave no reason for its action.

EGYPT, WORLD BANK CHIEFS DISCUSS LOAN FOR NILE DAM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Egypt's finance minister began talks with officials of the World Bank today on possible financing for a huge dam on the Nile.

Abdel Moneim El-Kaissouni met with bank president Eugene R. Black and vice president Robert L. Garner. The question is whether the international lending institution will make available a major part of the money needed to start the $1,300,000,000 project.

Russia, as part of its mid-east economic offensive, has offered to provide a low-interest loan. Egypt has made it known that it would prefer financial aid from the bank.

37 Marooned on Radar Tower At Sea Safe, but Long for Home

Trapped Since Thursday — They Hope Storm Will Subside So They Can Board Boats.

(Editor's Note — Associated Press staffer Don Guy has been marooned by bad weather since Thursday on the Texas Tower with a group of Air Force and civilian technicians. He transmitted the following story by Marine telephone.

By DON GUY

TEXAS TOWER, 110 Miles Off Cape Cod, Mass., Nov. 21 (AP)—The 37 visitors marooned on this man-made island since Thursday hoped fervently today that the weather will subside long enough to permit their transfer onto a home-bound boat.

The Georges Banks radar station was pounded over the weekend by hurricane-force winds of up to 82 miles per hour and by heavy seas that included one giant wave of 61 feet in height.

The 50 workers and 37 visitors aboard the sturdy tower were in no danger, however, and there were enough bunks for sleeping and sufficent food in the pantry and ice chests.

Two 80-ton fenders broke lose from the legs of the tower during the storm yesterday after winds rose to 82 miles an hour, seven m.p.h. more than the minimum hurricane velocity. By late last night the wind dropped to 35 m.p.h.

The tower shook as the huge fenders pounded the 200-foot legs. First one fender was torn lose by the raging water and wind and then the other, amid a shower of sparks from the friction of torn cables.

The third leg of the tower—the first of a chain to be built as a radar-warning net—had not yet been equipped with the doughnut-shaped fender. The fenders were for protection against vessels that move in close to the tower.

Because of yesterday's storm, George Bauer, construction superintendent of the tower, issued an order prohibiting any person on the open deck, or even outside the water-tight doors of the platform.

As a result, vantage points inside the tower were filled all day by workers and visitors gazing at the churning water. The water is 50 feet deep at the tower site.

Others, including Navy brass, visitors and workmen, either caught up on lost sleep, played poker or talked over the big storm.

After being stranded five days, jokes about "roast sea gull for Thanksgiving" got little response.

A marine telephone is the only communication with Boston and that was out of commission for hours yesterday after the hurricane wind tore down the antenna. Repairs were made as soon as the storm subsided.

Officials permitted this story to be sent out so families of those aboard the tower could be assured that all hands are safe.

10 MEN ON CARGO PLANE KILLED IN IWO JIMA CRASH

C-124 Was Returning to Base in Japan — Survivor Airlifted to Hospital.

TOKYO, Nov. 21 (AP) — A giant Globemaster cargo plane of the United States Air Force crashed yesterday on take-off from Iwo Jima in the western Pacific, killing 10 of the 11 persons aboard.

An Air Force spokesman said the huge C-124 of the 374th Troop Carrier wing crashed on the island as it took off on the return flight to its home base, Tachikawa Air Force base near Tokyo, after a cargo-carrying mission.

The one survivor was being airlifted to a hospital near Tokyo, the spokesman said. Names of the nine crewmen and two passengers were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Details of the crash were not available. A board of officers was sent from Japan to investigate.

Iwo Jima, famed World War II battle site, is 700 miles southeast of Tokyo. Installations at the strategic United States base there were 99 per cent demolished by a typhoon a month ago.

The Air Force said the four-engine, double-decked Globemaster crashed as it took off from Iwo Jima's small central air base at 5 p.m. yesterday.

The last Globemaster crash in the Far East occurred outside Tokyo on June 18, 1953, shortly before the signing of the Korean armistice. It killed 129 soldier-passengers and was the worst disaster in aviation history.

Globemasters are equipped to carry a maximum of 200 troops, or 74,000 pounds of cargo. They were used in the Korean war for both purposes and more recently in Operation Gyroscope, in which entire divisions were shifted between points in the United States and Japan and in the United States and Europe.

PORTLAND PLACE THEFT SOLVED BY POLICE CHECK ON AUTO PURCHASES

A painstaking check of new and used car dealers for large cash purchases turned up the lead which solved the theft of an estimated $80,000 worth of jewelry and furs at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson, 16 Portland place, police said today.

William Melvin Topp Jr., a Negro ex-convict of the 5000 block of Raymond avenue, yesterday signed a statement admitting the burglary and saying he disposed of the loot to a "fence" for $4000 cash and the promise of an additional $1000, Chief of Detectives James E. Chapman said.

Police said they found in their check of automobile dealers that three days after the Nov. 9 burglary Topp purchased a 1954 automobile for $1600 in cash. On the same day he deposited $1900 in a checking account in the Bank of St. Louis.

Topp's statement to police said he disposed of the loot two days after the burglary. He said he spent the balance of $500 on clothing and household needs.

Topp admitted stealing a diamond stickpin, two diamond bracelelets, a 14½-carat diamond ring, and a pair of diamond earrings, police said. Furs stolen were a mink coat, a mink stole and a sable coat.

Four men, also Negroes, were arrested for questioning last night in connection with the "fencing" of the furs and jewelry. Police today said they hoped for an early recovery of at least some of the stolen items.

Served Three Terms.

Checking Topp's record after discovering his automobile purchase, police found he had served three terms in prison on various charges, the last of which was a five-year term for robbery. He was released in July.

A Post-Dispatch reporter gave police the information that a relative of the 28-year-old ex-convict had been employed as a caretaker in another Portland place home. Further investigation showed that Topp himself had done odd jobs in the neighborhood.

Detectives arrested Topp Wednesday for questioning. After refusing to take a lie-detector test on grounds of high blood pressure, he was released Friday on a writ of habeas corpus. He was arrested again the following day.

Yesterday, police said, Topp signed a statement admitting the burglary at the Johnson home. He was taken there and re-enacted the crime. Johnson is vice president and treasurer of International Shoe Co.

Obtained Ladder Nearby.

Topp said in his statement he obtained a ladder he had seen at a house four doors west of the Johnson house and used it to enter an open second-story window in the rear of the Johnson house. He prowled through the front bedroom in his stocking feet and found a key to a locked closet in a chest of drawers, he said.

He removed the jewelry from the closet and added the earrings, which he picked up from a dressing-room table. He also stole three fur pieces, he said. He hid the furs in the rear of a hotel in the 5000 block of Waterman boulevard while he walked several blocks to hail a taxi, then returned to pick them up, he said.

Topp is held on a warrant charging burglary and larceny.

CARACAS, Nov. 21 (AP)—Leading American jurists are observing there this week the 100th anniversary of the presentation to Chile of the Andres Bello cival code, which has influenced all Latin-American law. Bello was a famed Venezuelan literary figure. United States Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black arrived yesterday to take part in the celebration.

V. K. Krishna Menon Calls Asia Likely Source of Any New War

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

V. K. KRISHNA MENON, Liberal Forum speaker.

Nehru Aid in Talk Here Defends India's Refusal to Join Military Alliance Against Reds.

The next war, if there is one, is far more likely to develop out of the unsettled conditions in Asia than because of any crisis in the western world, Vengalil Krishnam Krishna Menon, India's "roving ambassador," said here last night.

Menon, first speaker in the twenty-eighth season of the Y.M.H.A. Liberal Forum, called for peaceful action to end the "running sores" of Asia and defended India's refusal to get involved in a military alliance against Communism.

"We don't wish to be entangled in a war alliance," he said of the Indian policy of neutrality. "We do not believe the world is divided into two camps, one good and the other bad."

Favors U.N. Admitting Peiping.

Although Menon made it abundantly clear that he favored admission of Red China to the United Nations, he placed more emphasis on India's conviction that war was outmoded as an instrument of national policy, and that the only hope for the future lay in a realization of common objectives that unite all human beings.

The saturnine envoy, now chairman of India's delegation to the United Nations, is Prime Minister Nehru's closest confidant. He was an architect of the Korean Armistice, visited Red China this spring, and conferred with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles last summer on east-west problems.

He said last night the Chinese people had no "desire for aggression" and no appreciable anti-American feeling. He noted also that he had found in the United States no bitterness toward the Chinese.

Hearty Applause.

The audience of 1100 persons gave Menon a hearty round of applause when he remarked, on the question of admitting Red China to the U.N., that there could be no workable machinery for international problems "that excludes one fourth of humanity."

"It doesn't mean you have to approve of everything the Chinese do. . . . I don't think the Chinese approve of everything you do," he added. "We can't have a peaceful arrangement without peace in China."

Later, during the question period, Menon repeated his and the Indian Government's view that the U.N. should not be an "exclusive club" in which nations within the U.N. blackballed nations trying to get in. He said representation in the U.N. should be as wide as possible.

View on Russian-Chinese Ties.

A mysterious figure in international politics, Menon has often been criticized as pro-Soviet. Several questions from the audience sought to draw him out on what he thought of Communist attitudes and intentions. He was asked about Soviet-Chinese relations.

China and Russia, he said, were very friendly. This was greeted by laughter, and he added that China was by no means a dependent country, but was following its own course. He said he knew this was not the answer the American questioner expected.

"The answer expected," he said a bit caustically, "was that China is a satellite and will probably turn Tito." He insisted throughout his talk that newly independent Asiatic nations had minds of their own, and were not to be thought of simply as pawns in a chess game between Russia and the United States.

Menon, who attended the London School of Economics and spent nearly 25 years in England before India won its independence in 1947, said the strongly nationalist tendencies in the new nations of Asia were perfectly natural, having both good and evil consequences.

Now that these nations have their freedom from colonial domination, he said, they do not propose to lose it through participation in a war that nobody could possibly win, a war of annihilation by nuclear weapons.

'Slave Mentality.'

Japan's defeat of Russia in 1905 did much to eliminate the "slave mentality" of the Asiatic and make him realize he was as good as the European, Menon said, adding: "Nothing is so inimical to the freedom of a people as the feeling that they are not good enough to be free."

He said nationalism was the most powerful force in Asia today, and he termed this a necessary step on the road to bringing the Asian countries into full participation in the modern world's affairs.

Despite their newness, Menon declared, the nations of Asia proved at the Bandung conference in Indonesia this year their willingness to subscribe to world co-operation and, as he phrased it, "rise above the narrow limits of nationalism."

Menon, who has a reputation for cutting wit and once was a soapbox orator in London's Hyde Park, got a friendly reception. His impatience at questions he considered obvious or ill-phrased got the better of him once or twice.

Asked about the ticklish Kashmir controversy with Pakistan, he rapped out: "Of course the gentleman doesn't know anything about it." He recouped this, however, by adding that he, in turn, knew nothing about the problems of the St. Louis area.

Dr. Samuel C. Bukantz, chairman of the Liberal Forum, presided.

WOMAN PERISHES IN BLAZE IN BELLEVILLE HOME

Mrs. Robert Trippel, 1505 Muren place, Belleville, suffocated at her home early yesterday in a fire.

Mrs. Trippel, 37 years old, was pronounced dead of asphyxiation on arrival at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. Her husband was being treated today for lacerations, burns and other injuries suffered in his effort to reach her. She was the former Helen Stein, daughter of Belleville Alderman and Mrs. Irvin Stein.

Trippel discovered the blaze, he told police, on his return from a hunting trip about 2:30 a.m. The living room was in flames, barring his way to the bedroom where his wife had apparently retired several hours earlier. Dense smoke filled the single-story bungalow.

It was Mrs. Trippel's custom to smoke when watching television, her husband said. Belleville Fire Chief Albert Nebgen tentatively attributed the fire to a cigarette dropped beside a cushion in an upholstered chair.

Tries to Beat Out Flames.

Entering the home from the front, Trippel first tried to beat out the flames with his hunting jacket, he said. After being forced out by fire and smoke, he returned, using the throw rug at the entrance.

Again compelled to retreat, he related, he tried to reach his wife by climbing through the bedroom window, but found the smoke even worse there. When he ran through the flaming living room, he fell through a hole that had been burned through the floor. Finally he ran to a neighbor's house and summoned firemen by telephone.

Fire in Vacant Warehouse.

A stubborn, spectacular fire in a vacant five-story brick warehouse at 817 North Fourth street caused five alarms to be sounded, 32 pieces of equipment to respond and required four hours to extinguish early yesterday.

An estimate of damages was not made, since the building was scheduled to be razed to make way for the Third street highway. Unemployed transients had been sleeping in the building, the police arson squad reported, and incendiary origin of the fire is suspected.

A brisk north wind carried sparks 100 yards through voluminous smoke as 15 to 20 streams of water at a time played over the burning building.

Fire of undetermined origin caused damage estimated at $3000 late Saturday night in a two-story brick warehouse behind 3927 Olive street. The structure was used by Schwander Appliance Co., 3920 Olive, for storing plumbing supplies.

Beginning on the first floor, the flames reached the second. Two alarms were sounded. Acting Fire Chief James Sauerwein estimated damage to the building at $2000, to the contents at $1000.

UNION BOARD OK'S TRANSIT PAY COMPROMISE

Mediator's Plan Explained to Rank and File—Secret Vote to Be Taken Tomorrow.

A compromise proposal by Daniel C. Rogers, chairman of the State Board of Mediation, for settlement of the protracted wage dispute between St. Louis Public Service Co. and its streetcar and bus operators was approved unanimously today by the union's executive board.

The proposal was being explained to union members at two seperate meetings today, and a secret vote will be taken tomorrow. The company's answer is expected to be announced Wednesday.

Principal Provisions.

Principal provisions in Rogers's settlement proposal were:

An increase of 15 cents an hour across the board.

Adding Memorial day as a paid holiday.

Four-week vacations for employes with 30 years' or more of service.

Giving instructors 20 cents an hour over the regular rate of pay.

Restricting holiday schedules of work to the six paid holidays, except for openings and closings of school terms and Municipal Opera runs.

Retroactive Pay.

The 15-cent pay increase suggested by Rogers would include 5 cents retroactive to last March 1, an additional 5 cents effective the first pay day following ratification of the proposal by both sides, and the final 5 cents effective next March 1.

A demand for a 17-cent increase has been made by the union, Local 788 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Operators. The company, in its latest offer, which was rejected by the union, said it would give the employes a graduated 13-cent increase.

The previous offer by the company included an agreement to add Memorial day as a sixth paid holiday and to give instructors who teach student operators 20 cents an hour above the regular rate, instead of 10 cents. The company proposed that a new contract run until Feb. 28, 1957, the expiration date recommended by Rogers.

Rogers recommended that the Memorial day provision be retroactive to include a paid holiday for this year. He proposed Jan. 1 as the effective day of the amended vacation clause giving four weeks with pay to employes with at least 30 years' service.

Other parts of his proposal relate to certain reclassifications for maintenance men and to schedules of runs.

Rogers has been technically in charge of company operations since state seizure of the company Oct. 11, shortly after a strike of three and one-half days.

Present wage scales provide a starting rate of $1.72 hourly for streetcar and bus operators, and $1.87 after one year. Shop men have a starting rate of $1.58 and a top of $2.07. Mechanics having supervisory duties receive $2.12 an hour.

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, in telegrams to the company and union last night, urged both sides to give "full and fair consideration" to the Rogers proposal.

"It is in the public interest, health and welfare that this labor dispute should be settled so that state seizure may be removed at the earliest possible date," the telegram said.

"I also authorize Mr. Rogers to give notice to the parties that the seizure is terminated upon execution by the parties of a settlement agreement."

Immediately after sending the telegrams the Governor, accompanied by Mrs. Donnelly, left by train for a week's vacation in Tempe, Ariz.

In presenting his latest proposal, Rogers said he had discussed the problems exhaustively with both sides for more than a month and expressed hope the deadlock would at last be broken.

Defective Signal Jams Traffic, Not Guilty, Bond Backers Cry

Election Sign Carriers Cause Another Tie-Up — Troopers Straighten Out Mix-Ups.

St. Louis county bond issue sponsors wondered today what effect, if any, a rush hour traffic jam on U.S. Highway 66 at Rock Hill and Laclede Station roads this morning would have on results of tomorrow's election.

The Missouri Highway Department office at Kirkwood reported a recently installed traffic-actuated signal at Rock Hill went out of order during the night. Its quixotic behavior resulted in eastbound automobiles being lined up nearly half a mile to the west.

At Laclede Station road, a mile to the east, some irate motorists suspected skulduggery when traffic was tied up still more by youths in the middle of the road carrying signs urging citizens to "eliminate this bottleneck" by voting for the bonds.

After several heated complaints were received, a highway department crew turned off the signal at Rock Hill and got busy fixing it. State highway troopers straightened things out at Laclede Station road.

A Citizens Bond Issue Committee spokesman said the committee had arranged for stationing of the youths bearing signs at a dozen key intersections this morning.

"But we certainly had nothing to do with the signal going haywire," he added. "Nobody would be that dumb."

INTERNATIONAL SHOE TALKS WITH UNIONS ARE RESUMED

Negotiations were resumed today by the management of International Shoe Co. and officials of AFL Boot and Shoe Workers and CIO United Shoe Workers at the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service office in old Federal Building in an effort to end a contract dispute.

Representatives of the two groups met with Federal Conciliator A. E. Johnson. The unions were seeking a 12 per ment pay increase in two years.

The 17,000 AFL and CIO workers employed at International Shoe Co. went on strike Nov. 7. About 9000 employes at Brown Shoe Co. went on strike the following day. The Brown company did not participate in today's negotiations.

4750 PROPERTIES IN COUNTY AFFECTED BY COURT RULING

A total of 4750 parcels of acreage property in St. Louis county incorporated areas will be affected by the Nov. 8 circuit court ruling that assessed valuation of such property should have been increased only 60 per cent instead of 85 per cent, Deputy Assessor August H. Rumping said today.

Corrected tax bills soon will be mailed to owners of the affected property, Rumping said, adding that it was impossible to determine the over-all amount of tax reductions since rates vary widely in the municipalities. Total amount of the assessment reductions has been estimated at $9,000,000, not including figures on 30 cases, mostly involving large industrial acreage property, pending before the State Tax Commission.

Rumping said no policy had been formulated yet for handling of assessment reductions on acreage property in unincorporated areas which are "urban in character." The county board of equalization, in carrying out the court order, extended the meaning to include property "urban in character."

BUSINESS SCHOOL ROBBED

Eight typewriters and five calculating machines valued at $1300 were stolen from Sanford-Brown Business College, 5920 Easton avenue, police reported yesterday.

Floyd Gassaway, president of the college, said the office equipment was removed between 2:30 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. yesterday. He said entry was gained by breaking a glass in a rear door of the second-floor offices.

YACHT IN PERIL OFF EAST COAST GETS AID

6 on Craft Once Owned by Late Joseph Pulitzer—Cutter Arrives.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—The 62-foot yacht Victoria, formerly owned by the late Joseph Pulitzer, editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, was reached today by a Coast Guard cutter 240 miles off Cape May, N. J., in the Atlantic ocean, where it was reported in distress in heavy seas.

Coast Guard officials said the cutter Gentian was expected to tow the yacht to the nearest port, adding there was no immediate danger to the six persons aboard.

They were reported to be Henry A. Taylor, Jr., Essex, Conn., owner of the ship; his wife and their 11-year-old daughter, and three crew members. The Victoria was purchased by Taylor from Mr. Pulitzer's estate a month ago.

A message asking for assistance was radioed from the yacht yesterday. A tanker was the first ship to reach the vessel and stood by until midnight, when a Navy picket boat, the Lookout, arrived. The cutter reached the Victoria this morning.

The Coast Guard said the Victoria had encountered 15-foot waves and winds of 30 to 35 miles per hour.

REALTY FIRM SUED OVER ALLEGED PRACTICE OF LAW

Suit for an injunction to prevent an Overland real estate firm from allegedly practicing law was filed in circuit court at Clayton today by the Bar Association of St. Louis and 18 lawyers, both individually and as representatives of all licensed and practicing attorneys of Missouri.

Named defendants in the suit were John H. Armbruster & Co., 8940 St. Charles road; Armbruster, as president of the firm, and Miss Doris Mahar, secretary. A spokesman for the legal group indicated that additional suits may follow.

The petition alleges that the firm and its officers named have long been engaged in drafting and revising wills and other legal instruments, in attempting to give clients legal counsel and in otherwise violating a section of the Missouri statutes that restricts this work to licensed members of the bar.

COUNTY BOND BACKERS SEEK A BIG TURNOUT

consolidated with the belt line highway around the metropolitan area which has been approved for inclusion in that program by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads.

The St. Louis portions of the three radial expressways — Ozark, Daniel Boone and Mark Twain — were assured by city voters last May in passing the $110,630,000 bond issue.

Aimed At Bottlenecks.

Proposition No. 3 is intended to remove the many bottlenecks, dead-end streets, narrow bridges and railroad grade crossings that have tied county traffic in knots since the end of World War II. The 23 individual projects would go far toward opening up the county to swifter movement of motor vehicles and particularly toward expediting north-south traffic, one of the more urgent needs.

In Proposition No. 3, voters are being given an opportunity to obtain a major north-south limited access highway between the city limits and Lindbergh boulevard. Of the $16,100,000 item, $8,000,000 would be used for acquiring an 18-mile right-of-way from the northern limits of the county to a connection with the city's River des Peres Parkway on the south. With the remaining $8,100,000 a central section of 4.64 miles would be built now.

Proposition No. 2 would provide a $200,000 home for temporary care of neglected and abandoned children while awaitsettlement in foster homes. The balance of $600,000 would permit construction of an institution for care and treatment of delinquent children whose cases are not considered serious enough for commitment to a state reformatory.

The $2,000,000 in Proposition No. 4 would be used to buy sites for 100 neighborhood playgrounds and athletic fields in both incorporated and unincorporated areas and for small park-like picnic areas at turnouts along major highways.

$1,500,000 for Hospitals.

Proposition No. 7 for $1,500,000 would add this amount to the $3,458,500 voted for hospital construction in February 1954. A delay in getting federal funds to supplement the earlier bond money prompted the decision to complete the program with local funds and to use the federal money, when it is received, to retire the bonds.

The program calls for a $3,500,000 addition to County Hospital to house 50 mental and 150 chronically ill patients; a $700,000 health department building, a $400,000 medical staff residence, and miscellaneous improvements costing $400,000.

Passage of Proposition No. 8 would make $100,000 available for civil defense purposes. With $50,000, the county would pay its one-third share of the joint city-county alternate control center building at Howard Bend waterworks on the Missouri river. Another $12,500 would go for radio and other equipment, while $37,500 would provide air-raid warning signals for unincorporated areas.

KEFAUVER SAID TO RELISH FIGHT FOR NOMINATION

platform. He said he subscribes to former President Harry S. Truman's view that the party must bear a "liberal" label if it hopes to win the presidency and Congress next year.

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Senate majority leader, has been plugging among party leaders for a "moderate" platform and a candidate of the same tune.

Senator Mike Monroney (Dem.), Oklahoma, said he thinks Stevenson would fill the qualifications for that candidate.

"Stevenson is the moderate that Lyndon Johnson has been talking about," Monroney declared.

He said that Stevenson is so well classified in that respect there is a good chance the party will want to nominate an Eastern "liberal" for Vice President. He suggested Govs. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey and George Leader of Pennsylvania in this connection.

Where Monroney considered Stevenson a "moderate," Truman seemed to look upon the former Illinois Governor as a "liberal." Truman said here yesterday Stevenson has "made the best New Deal speech I ever heard" at Saturday night's $100-a-plate dinner which wound up the party rally.

Harold E. Stassen, special assistant to the President, said yesterday upon arriving in New York from abroad:

"I think that Adlai Stevenson's recent attacks are beginning to affect American foreign policy overseas." Stassen said Stevenson's speeches were undermining the confidence of European leaders in the "bipartisan" policy developed by Mr. Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Commenting in Washington on Stevenson's speech, the chairman of the Republican National Committee, Leonard W. Hall, said the attack on the Eisenhower Administration was "bunk."

Stevenson, said Hall, "made it clear why he was repudiated by the voters so completely in 1952 that he could carry only nine states."

"Stevenson's attack on an Administration that has a record of 65 million Americans working at the best jobs they ever had and enjoying the highest standard of living known to man, will get him absolutely nowhere. The people know he is talking bunk . . ." he said.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler also had some comment Sunday. Speaking in a television interview at South Bend, Ind., he said the National Committee is not leaning toward Stevenson as charged by Kefauver.

It "does not favor any individual" over another, said Butler. He said the committee would support the candidate "chosen by the convention" next year.

EISENHOWER GOES TO CAMP DAVID FOR CONFERENCES

ing the first time a group of major Government officials has been transported in this fashion, went off without a hitch.

Several of those aboard told reporters the 45-minute trip from the Pentagon landing strip in Washington was uneventful, although a few said the flight was bumpy at times.

Most of the passengers wore earmuffs against the noise of the two-rotor craft. En route, they worked on papers and reports they will present to the NSC meeting.

The helicopter shuttle service will be repeated at 8 a.m. tomorrow for those Cabinet members desiring to fly there. Others will make the 65-mile trip from Washington by automobile.

Both meetings will be held at Laurel Lodge, a large building, about 300 yards from Mr. Eisenhower's cottage.

Camp David, a naval installation high in the Catoctin mountains near Thurmont, Md., is closely guarded by Marines and sailors. Its winterized cabins will accommodate about 20 persons overnight.

Mr. Eisenhower was greeted at his cottage by Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty and Cmdr. Edward L. Beech, his naval aide.

Also in the presidential motorcade were Col. Andrew W. Goodpaster, White House staff secretary, and Maj. Gen. Howard McSnyder, Mr. Eisenhower's personal physician.

Mr. Eisenhower relaxed at his farm home over the weekend with a group of old friends.

A heavy snowfall kept him indoors most of the time, but he managed to get outside yesterday for an hour's tour of the farm in an automobile.

Otherwise, he occupied the time chatting and playing bridge with four social visitors, including Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, commander of North Atlantic Treaty Organization military forces. Gruenther left yesterday to return to Paris.

Goes to His Office.

Before leaving for the mountain top meetings, the President went to his downtown office for about two hours of work. Some of the novelty of the President's daily trips to the post office was wearing off. The only spectators at the entrance were reporters and photographers.

Mrs. Eisenhower left Gettysburg today for Washington where she will remain overnight attending to some housekeeping details.

Mr. Eisenhower probably will make a brief trip to Washington next month for meetings with leaders of both parties in Congress in advance of the new sessions beginning next January.

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said he had been called to a meeting with the President and others at the White House on Dec. 13.

Asked about Johnson's statement, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters he was checking it. However, Hagerty previously has indicated the meetings would be held, probably on Dec. 12 and 13.

Mr. Eisenhower's doctors have said he is well enough to make such short trips, although they do not think he will be able to return to Washington for good before Jan. 1.

CAUDLE INSISTS HE NEVER RECEIVED DIME IN TAX CASE

S. Davison. Schwimmer's St. Louis attorney, Morris A. Shenker, was present.

The bond is returnable in United States District Court Nov. 28.

A physician appointed by the Government examined Schwimmer yesterday and reported that he was "nervous and upset." He is said to have a heart ailment.

In 1952 Caudle told a congressional subcommittee investigating the Justice Department that Connelly, when working in the White House, asked him to postpone a conference on the Sachs case because of the illness of Schwimmer. Caudle said Connelly was informed there would be no objection to a continuance.

Both Caudle and Connelly, who now lives in New York, were grand jury witnesses here last June. William M. Boyle, former chairman of the Democatic National Committee, also was a witness at that time.

Caudle was the Government prosecutor who called off an investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation into the 1946 Kansas City vote frauds. In testimony before a House subcommittee in 1951 he admitted he obtained three automobiles at a discount from a Charlotte, N. C., taxicab operator who was under Federal tax investigation.

Caudle also admitted that his wife obtained a mink coat "at less than full price" through Jacob Landau, New York tax attorney. He told the House subcommittee that Landau got the coat "through his connections" at the wholesale price of $2400.

SHOTS FIRED INTO HOMES, 3 NON-STRIKERS REPORT

NEW CASTLE, Ind., Nov. 21 (AP)—Three non-strikers in the Perfect Circle Corp. piston ring foundry, scene of a riot Oct. 5, reported shotgun blasts were fired into windows of their homes early today.

Gerald Harvey, a foundry supervisor, said two blasts were fired through a picture window in his home in nearby Sulphur Springs about a half an hour after a blast broke a window in Herbert Owens's home near New Castle. Roy Turner, an employe of the firm 26 years, said the picture window in his home was shattered by a shotgun blast about 4 a.m. No one was hurt in the blasts.

Non-strikers went to work without incident as the CIO United Auto Workers continued to restrict the number of pickets to five, the limit set in an Aug. 1 injunction.

days in which to get its witnesses ready.

Orders Habeas Corpus Writs.

Meanwhile, Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin, who has been critical of Dowd over similar delays, has ordered the Public Defender Bureau to prepare writs of habeas corpus to bring about the release of Buhrman and Crews.

George A. Fickeissen, an experienced St. Louis investigator, went to work for Dowd's office today. He worked for the City Comptroller's office under the late Louis Nolte, for the Kefauver committee on interstate crime in 1950, and also for the Chicago city council's emergency committee on crime. He lives at 4837 Milentz street.

10 KILLED AND 100 INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK IN ENGLAND

MILTON, England, Nov. 21 (AP)—At least 10 persons were dead today and more than 100 injured following a derailment which turned three coaches of a Wales-to-London excursion train into a death trap.

A search crew of more than 500 pulled thew reckage apart throughout the night, finding the bodies of nine women and one man.

The train was carrying 290 excursionists from cities in South Wales, bound for an outing yesterday in the British capital. The engine and three of the nine coaches left the rails and toppled down a 20-foot embankment after passing a switch. The 150-ton locomotive rolled over on the first coach, crushing it.

ENOS SLAUGHTER'S FOURTH WIFE GETS DIVORCE, $20,600

Mrs. Ruth D. Slaughter, fourth wife of Enos Slaughter, obtained a divorce in circuit court at Belleville today. He is a former St. Louis Cardinal outfielder and now is with the Kansas City Athletics.

Circuit Judge R. W. Griffith, who heard the case, approved a property settlement under which Mrs. Slaughter is to receive $20,600. She alleged cruelty, "by reason of a morose, hostile and wrongful course of conduct."

The couple was married Dec. 31, 1951, and separated last Aug. 27. Last September Slaughter filed notice of intention to sue for divorce, under a law requiring 60 days notice, and his wife countered with a suit for separate maintenance, which required no waiting. Later she asked for a divorce.

MAN SHOT IN LEG IN DISPUTE WITH HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW

Vester F. Weathers, a welder, was in serious condition at St. Louis County Hospital today with a gunshot wound in the right leg that he suffered yesterday when his mother-in-law shot him in a dispute at her home at 226 West Felton avenue, Lemay, police reported.

The dispute arose when Weathers refused to leave the grounds of the home, where his estranged wife is staying with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wolfe, police said.

Mrs. Wolfe told police she warned Weathers to leave or she would shoot him. She said he had threatened his wife and her with a knife last Wednesday, and Saturday broke in a door of the home. Weathers lives at 404 East Marceau street. Mrs. Wolfe is being held on a suspicion of assault with intent to do bodily harm.

Elizabeth Married 8 Years.

LONDON, Nov. 21 (UP)—Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh celebrated their eighth wedding anniversary today with a quiet dinner party at Windsor castle.

HENNINGS GROUP ACCUSED OF BARRING SCHOOL HEARING

A Senate subcommittee headed by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem.), St. Louis, was criticized here yesterday by author Paul Blanshard, who said the group refused to hear evidence citing instances where public funds were being spent to support Catholic and Protestant schools.

Blanshard, author of the book "American Freedom and Catholic Power," addressed a meeting of the Ethical Society of St. Louis at the Sheldon Memorial, 3648 Washington boulevard. He said the subcommittee, established to survey possible violations of civil rights, had originally promised to hear all evidence on such subjects.

Blanshard said he felt the subcommittee should make a full explanation of what he termed its change of position. He said he had gathered evidence that some church schools were listed as public schools and were receiving public money, weakening the public school system. A subcommittee spokesman said in October the group was considering whether open hearings on religious subjects would be in the public interest.

FOREIGNERS JUMP AT JAZZ, DEMAND 'VOICE' SEND MORE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (UP)—The world is getting "hep." The Voice of America reports that experimental broadcasts of jazz throughout the world have drawn a tremendous global response for more of it.

The "Voice" is stepping up its campaign to give listeners in faraway places jazz programs in an effort to win friends for America. The State Department is sending United States jazz artists around the globe for this purpose.

The "Voice" started its experimental broadcasts of jazz last January. Since then it has received more than 10,000 foreign fan letters. "The response to this program has been beyond our wildest dreams," a "Voice" spokesman said.

He announced yesterday that "we are going to put the program on world-wide in the next two or three weeks."

U.N. TO REVIEW CHARTER, REDS PLAN BOYCOTT

Assembly Votes 43 to 6 to Study Basic Document, Leaves Date Open.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 21 (AP)—The United Nations voted today to review its 10-year-old charter, but left the date open. The Soviet Union immediately announced it would boycott the machinery set up for such review.

By a vote of 43 to 6 the U.N. General Assembly approved a proposal by the United States and six other powers to hold a review conference under auspicious international circumstances and at an appropriate time.

The proposal calls for the convening of a committee made up of all members of the United Nations to fix the time, place and other arrangements for the conference, and to report back with its recommendations at the Twelfth General Assembly two years hence.

Zarubin Statement.

Immediately after the vote Soviet Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin declared his country would not take part in the committee's deliberations. Poland and Czechoslovakia made similar statements, and it was anticipated that all members of the Soviet bloc would take part in the boycott. Syria was the only non-Communist member voting against the proposal.

The Soviet Union contended that the present charter—which is the constitution of the United States—needs no revision. It was adopted 10 years ago in San Francisco, and contains a provision calling on the present General Assembly to consider the question of charter review.

The U.N. Disarmament Commission will meet Wednesday, it was announced today. The 12-nation commission must approve a formal report to the Assembly on last summer's meetings of its five-power subcommittee as a basis for the Assembly's arms debate.

It also will discuss the Big Four foreign ministers' Geneva directive that the subcommittee resume its closed-door efforts to agree on a general disarmament system.

Enters Last Quarter.

The Tenth General Assembly went into its fourth quarter today with Russia and the United States squared off on all of the remaining issues. Three working weeks remain in the scheduled 12-week session.

Besides the disarmament debate, another big issue is the deadlock over admitting new members.

The Assembly is in the middle of disputes also over Korea, Palestine refugees, charter revision, economic aid for underdeveloped countries, and election of the eleventh member of the Security Council for 1956.

On each question, American-Soviet attitudes are antagonistic.

The question of admission of 18 applicants for U.N. membership remained deadlocked. A Big Four luncheon meeting Saturday at the Soviet embassy here failed to provide agreement on Soviet insistence that Outer Mongolia be included in a membership package deal. The United States has yielded on the admission of four other Soviet satellites—Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania. It says it will not veto Outer Mongolia's application but is confident the central Asian country cannot get the necessary seven votes in the Security Council.

Soviet Veto Indicated.

A Soviet veto of 13 Western-sponsored countries was strongly indicated if Outer Mongolia is not admitted. These are Spain, Japan, Italy, Austria, Portugal, Ireland, Finland, Ceylon, Laos, Cambodia, Libya, Nepal, and Jordan.

The debate on aid for Palestine refugees was to resume this afternoon in the special political committee. The Soviet Union was expected, as Poland had done, to join the Arab group in demanding repatriation by Israel of more than 1,000,000 Palestine Arab refugees.

There still was no visible progress toward breaking the deadlock on the Security Council elections. The United States managed to stave off election of the original Soviet candidate, Poland, but after a record 21 ballots has been unable to get the Philippines elected over Yugoslavia, to which the Soviet bloc shifted its support.

Rubinstein Hailed for Playing 17 Piano Concertos in 3 Weeks

British Critics Acclaim Feat of Pianist in Series of Recitals in London and Paris.

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—The British musical world today acclaimed Pianist Artur Rubinstein for his triumphant completion of a herculean keyboard cycle — 17 piano concertos in three weeks.

The 65-year-old, white-haired, Polish-born master ended his marathon attack on the musical catalogue with four concertos Friday night at the Royal Festival Hall.

What made Rubinstein's feat all the more remarkable was that he kept commuting across the English channel to perform a similar prodigious series of concerts in Paris during the same three-week period.

These are the works the California maestro played in London with the London Philharmonic Orchestra, directed by Adrian Boult:

Oct. 27—Beethoven's Fifth; Schumann's A Minor, Opus 54; and Rachmaninoff's in C Minor.

Nov. 4—Mozart's in A; Beethoven's Fourth; Grieg's in A; Listz's First.

Nov. 12—Beethoven's Second; Brahms's First; Tchaikovsky's First.

Nov. 14 — Beethoven's First; Franck's Symphonic Variations; Brahms's Second.

Nov. 18 — Beethoven's Third; Chopin's First; Nights in the Gardens of Spain by De Falla; and Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini by Rahcmaninoff.

The Times applauded Rubinstein's position in the piano world as that of "a survivor in the second half of the twentieth century of that breed of lions of the piano littered by the mane of Liszt in the nineteenth."

The Times's critic called Rubinstein's technique such that the keyboard "seems to be an optional organ of his body—it is part of him."

FINED $100, LOSES LICENSE FOR DRIVING WHEN DRUNK

Edward Kelly, of the 3800 block of North Market street, was fined $100 today after he was found guilty of driving when intoxicated by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd. His driver's license was suspended for 90 days and ad additional fine of $25 was levied after he was found guilty of careless driving.

Kelly, a Negro, was arrested Sept. 24 after the automobile he was driving hit a fence in the 3000 block of Hickory street, knocking down 14 feet of fencing and four feet of a brick wall.

He said the machine was mechanilly at fault and that he was unable to control it. He has appealed the conviction.

CANVASSERS FIND THEIR MAN, AMEND EXPLOSIVE ERROR

ROCK FALLS, Ill., Nov. 21 (UP)—Ed Chambers had just filled his furnace tank with newly-purchased "fuel oil" last night when two men knocked on his door and told him the stuff would blow him sky high.

Chambers had gone to a filling station in the afternoon to buy five gallons of fuel oil. By mistaken, an attendant filled his can with high test gasoline.

The attendant realized his mistake moments later. But it was too late. Chambers was gone and the attendant didn't know his name.

The police and fire departments were alerted and a radio station began broadcasting regular warnings to whoever had bought the gasoline. If he tried to use it, he would probably blow up his house, the warnings said.

Meanwhile, about 70 volunteers began to canvass the town. For hours, they knocked on doors and asked whether anyone had purchased fuel oil that afternoon.

It wasn't until 9:30 that two of the searchers came to the right house. Chambers mopped his brow when he heard the news.

"I was just going to light it," he said.

9 FRATERNITIES SUSPENDED FOR VIOLATING LIQUOR RULE

STORRS, Conn., Nov. 21 (AP)—A University of Connecticut official today announced suspension until next February of nine of 23 fraternities for "violating the long standing no liquor rule on the campus."

Dr. Arwood S. Northby, director of student personnel, said "The boys understand that they must face up to the discipline necessary, as a result of recent violations."

Affected by the action, approved by President A. N. Jorgensen, are 600 members of the fraternities, among the 4550 men on the campus here. Suspended until next Feb. 15 are the local chapters of Alpha Sigma Phi, Beta Sigma Gamma, Beta Lambda Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha, Phi Sigma Kappa, Siga Chi Alpha, Tau Epsilon Phi, Beta Sigma Chi and Beta Xi.

MRS. MYRON R. STURTEVANT DIES, FUNERAL WEDNESDAY

Mrs. Myron R. Sturtevant, wife of a former vice president of First National Bank, died yesterday at her home after an illness of several years. She lived at 4399 McPherson avenue and was 85 years old.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard, University City. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery. Her husband survives.

Electronic Nightmare.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—A student in a psychology class described "a dream, a strange image that never seems to change much from night to night, horrible and weird." He asked what to do about it. Dr. David Benedetti answered. "This is outside my province. You are talking about television.

How much for a hog in the corn?

A hog in the corn adds up to nothing—until it's shipped to market. The same goes for coal at the mine and automobiles in Detroit.

Transportation takes products to market. Low cost transportation keeps product prices right.

That's how the railroads helped make this country, and how they've kept it strong and prosperous. They can do even a better job—if the law will let them.

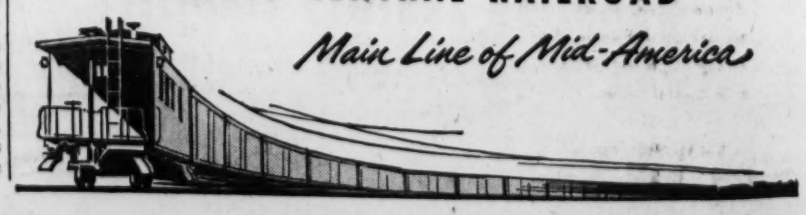

A committee appointed by the President says transportation can be better and more economical—if freight rates are governed more by competition than by regulation.

Many truckers oppose the President's committee. These truckers fear that competition may force them to give up part of the rich living they enjoy on publicly-owned highways.

You'll get more for your dollar when there's more competition, and when everyone pays his own way—as the Illinois Central does. Let others earn the right to serve you, just as the Illinois Central has earned it for more than a century.

FILM INDUSTRY FILES CENSORSHIP PROTEST

It Is Eroding Constitutional Guarantees, Says Statement to Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—The motion picture industry today protested to Congress against prior censorship of its output by state and local agencies.

The Motion Picture Association of America volunteered its statement to a Senate Judiciary subcommitee on constitutional rights, which has not scheduled testimony on censorship.

The subcommittee called additional witnesses today for more details on Government security and loyalty programs.

The film industry statement said "constitutional guaranty of freedom of expression has been seriously eroded" by recent Supreme Court's decisions.

It said a 1952 decision "made the motion picture a member of the press, which the First and Fourteenth Amendments protect," but "declined to confer upon films the same immunity from censorship" accorded to other media.

Contending that the restrictions on films might be extended later to other media, the statement said that if this and related decisions stand, they could offer a threat of censorship for newspapers, magazines, radio and television.

The film spokesmen said movie censorship now is applied by five states—New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and Kansas—and 50 to 200 municipalities.

As a result, the statement said, motion pictures now must operate in "half-slave, half-free conditions."

CONGRESSMEN IN LONDON TO SEE COMMONS AT WORK

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Seven United States congressmen, led by Senator Mansfield (Dem.) Montana, flew here yesterday to watch the House of Commons work.

"We will study legislative processes in London, and we should like to have a word with Prime Minister Eden and Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan," Mansfield said.

The Americans are guests here of the British section of the Inter-Parliamentary Union. Accompanying Mansfield were Senators Payne (Rep.), Maine, Congressmen Frear (Dem.), Delaware and Curtis (Rep.), Nebraska and Thornberry (Dem.), Texas, Ikard (Dem.), Texas and Hillings (Rep.), California. They were met at the airport by Pepresentative Ayres (Rep.), Ohio, who has been in Switzerland.

WINS $150,000 FOR LOSS OF LEGS ON SUBWAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—A man who was thrown in front of a subway train by robbers and lost both legs won a $150,000 settlement in State Supreme Court today against the City Transit Authority.

Edward R. Wronski, 39 years old, of Forest Hills, Queens, sales manager for a carpet firm, charged the transit authority failed to provide police protection at the station at Thirty-fourth street and Sixth avenue.

Wronski was attacked by two muggers on Sept. 18, 1953, about 10:30 p.m. They beat him unconscious and threw him to the tracks. While he was unconscious, a train cut off his legs.

The others are Donald O. McDermott and Stanley Sarver of Peoria, Clem J. Bickhaus and Danial L. Thompson of Quincy, and H. G. Smith of Springfield. The machines were seized by United States Treasury agents.

Caterina Chesi of Taylorville was fined $100 on a rsimila charge, and will have to pay $250 in back taxes and a $125 penalty.

ISRAEL REJECTS U.S. CONDITIONS FOR GUARANTEE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (UP) — Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett declared today Israel cannot accept the conditions the United States has requested in return for a treaty guarantee against Arab attack.

Sharett took particular issue with the United States suggestion that the Israelis and Arabs agree on "adjustments" of their border differences before entering into any security treaties with this country.

In a speech prepared for the National Press Club he said in strong terms that the only basis Israel will accept for a peace settlement is "maintenance of the status quo" on the borders set in the 1949 United Nations armistice agreement.

Sharett said the chances of the Israelis and Arabs agreeing on borders as suggested by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles are "extremely problematical."

In addition, he said this proposal might be "construed as a departure from the principle" of the 1950 declaration in which the United States, Britain and France undertook to preserve the peace in the Holy Land."

"That document purported to guarantee against violent encroachment of the borders fixed in the armistice agreement," Sharett said. "It is this guarantee that now stands urgently in need of an unequivocal and emphatic reaffirmation by means of a security treaty."

Sharett said Israel is ready to "offer constructive contributions" toward a peaceful settlement and to "conduct direct peace negotiations in a spirit of give and take."

But he said flatly there will be no compromise on the issue of Israel's borders. This was an apparent reply at British Prime Minister Eden who recently suggested a compromise on the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Asked if Israel would buy arms from the Soviet Union, Sharett replied:

"If driven into a tight corner where it is a matter of life and death for us, naturally we shall get arms from any one we can."

Armed Raiders Based in Jordan, Israel Charges.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 21 (AP)—Armed raiders based in Jordan ambushed traffic on an Israeli highway and dynamited houses in a border village early today, an Israeli army spokesman charged.

In the first raid, he said, an armed unit fired on two trucks traveling the highway south of Megiddo toward the Jezrez valley.

"One truck was hit several times and the driver was slightly wounded," the spokesman reported. "Afterward police found four ambush positions on both sides of the road and tracks led toward the Jordan border."

The spokesman said "a sabotage unit operating from Jordan" subsequently laid three explosive charges in the village of Avuka, blowing up one building and damaging the water pump.

The Israeli source charged Arab countries bordering Israel were allowing Egypt to maintain bases on their territory for commando squads.

Egyptian coastal batteries fired on an Israeli motor launch which allegedly violated Arab territorial waters off Gaza this afternoon, an Egyptian spokesman announced.

No casualties were reported and the launch withdrew, the spokesman said. He added that four launches were sighted but only the one approached the coast.

Egypt has lodged a complaint with the United Nations-sponsored Mixed Armistice Commission.

Saudi Arabia Denies It Seeks to Buy Red Arms.

CAIRO, Nov. 21 (AP)—Saudi Arabia has denied as "lies and fabrications" reports that it is trying to buy Communist arms.

A communique from the middle eastern kingdom's information department denied specifically reports that (1) King Saud had sought a meeting with Soviet representatives to discuss an arms deal, (2) the Arabian Government is sending a delegation to visit Czechsolvakian arms factories, and (3) Soviet President Voroshilov offered arms in his message congratulating King Saud on the anniversary of his accession.

Following announcement of the Egyptian-Czech arms deal, Saudi Arabian Premier Amir Faisal said last month his Government was considering an arms offer from Russia. There has been no official word on the matter until yesterday's communique.

Egyptian Premier Urges Italy Act as Mediator.

ROME, Nov. 21 (AP) — Premier Nasser of Egypt, in an interview with the Cairo correspondent for the Italian news agency Ansa, urged that Italy serve as mediator between Egypt and the Western powers.

Nasser said Italy, as a Mediterranean power directly interested in peace in the Middle East" is in a good position to fill such a role.

(The United Press said the government - controlled Cairo radio announced last night that the Communist government of Poland has offered to establish complete industrial plants in Egypt. The announcement did not indicate Egypt's reply to the offer.)

Short Vacation for Dulles.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (UP) —Secretary of State John Foster Dulles plans a brief vacation at his Duck Island retreat in Lake Ontario this week. He tentatively plans to fly to Duck Island Wednesday and return here early next week.

Honorable Discharge for Killer, Less for Alleged Security Risk

Hennings Group Is Told That Under New Policy a Soldier's Separation Status Depends on Performance.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — The Army will give an honorable discharge to a soldier with a pre-induction conviction for murder or arson, but will not honorably discharge a man about whom it has derogatory information as a security risk predating his service, it was brought out today by the Hennings subcommittee on constitutional liberties.

Under questioning by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem.), Missouri, subcommittee chairman, and Lon Hocker of St. Louis, subcommittee counsel, Col. Marvin C. Hillsman, president of the Army discharge review board, testified that even if the hypothetical murderer or arsonist and the hypothetical security risk both made "a clean breast" of their records, were accepted for service and performed satisfactorily, there would be a marked difference in their types of discharges.

'Less Than Honorable.'

The best the "security risk" could get under an order issued early this year by Robert T. Stevens, then Secretary of the Army, would be a general discharge, which is less than honorable, Col. Hillsman testified.

Testimony developed last week by the subcommittee showed that one soldier had been barred from an honorable discharge because he was accused of having associated with a Communist. It turned out that the soldier had never seen the alleged Communist until he was assigned by the Army to a two-man barracks with him.

In another case, a soldier was denied an honorable discharge because he was alleged to have had a mother-in-law who was a Communist. Hennings and Hocker brought out that the mother-in-law died in 1940 when his wife was 6 years old.

Determination of whether a soldier would be discharged with less than an honorable discharge on security grounds would be influenced largely by his record of pre-induction associations and membership in or sympathy with any of the more than 300 organizations listed by the Attorney General as subversive.

Change in Policies.

Friday, the Army announced it was going to change its policies on possible security risks by testing them prior to induction, rather than accepting them and then having to penalize them. Under the new policy, once a soldier is accepted for service the type of discharge he receives will be determined by his service performance alone.

There is a big hole in this procedure, however, since the Army still would have the right to withhold an honorable discharge from a soldier should derogatory information reach the authorities even after clearance for induction.

In the light of the projected new program, Hocker inquired of Col. Hillsman if it were likely that the review board would take another look at the less-than-honorable discharges it already has ordered.

Hillsman said he had not seen the new regulations and was not in a position to answer.

"If the Stevens policy was junked it must have been because it was unfair, if not unconstitutional, and the board should review discharges based upon such unfair or unconstitutional procedures," Hocker observed.

7119 Cases Reviewed.

Col. Hillsman testified that since Jan. 1, 1954, the review board had considered 7119 cases involving allegedly improper types of discharges. Of these, 42 involved discharges on security grounds, he said, relating to activities by the soldiers prior to induction. Seven of these undesirable discharges were changed by the review board to general discharges and the remaining six were redesignated honorable, Col. Hillsman said.

The subcommittee also heard testimony that a Negro was fired by the Army for alleged left-wing associations and his wife was suspended from her Army job for associating with him.

The woman, Mrs. Dorothy Foster, a Government employe for 21 years, testified that after hearings she was reinstated last year as a clerk at the Seattle Port of Embarkation. Her husband, William Foster, a carpenter, who was fired in 1953, has asked for a rehearing on the basis of his wife's clearance, but has been unable to get one, he testified.

He apparently is acting on the theory that if the Army found his wife to have been innocent because of her association with him, then there is nothing wrong with him.

The basis for Foster's dismissal was that he rode across country to take a job in a defense plant in 1943 with a man later charged with being a Communist; that he associated with the alleged Communist in Seattle and that he gave as an employment reference a minister later identified as a sponsor of a concert by Paul Robeson, Negro singer allied with left-wing causes.

Aside from riding to Seattle to his job with the alleged Communist—a trip arranged by a labor recruiter in Washington—Foster said his only association with the suspect was sharing living quarters for six months with him. The quarters, he said, were assigned by the employment office of the Kaiser shipbuilding interests in Seattle.

FOUR WITNESSES TO BE HEARD IN PAY-OFF INQUIRY

Three Women, Man to Appear This Week—Jury Also to Receive Prevention Plans.

One witness in the police pay-off inquiry is expected to be heard by the grand jury today, with three others scheduled to appear later in the week.

The witnesses include three women, two of whom are former prostitutes, and a man. Their identities were not disclosed by the circuit attorney's office.

Four persons have been invited to appear before the grand jury this week to offer suggestions and recommendations to prevent recurrence of conditions in the Police Department that led to the pay-off inquiry.

They are: Isaac Gurman, executive director of the St. Louis Bureau for Men; James W. Connor, operating director of the St. Louis Crime Commission; Maj. James F. Thompson, head of a special police squad named to assist in the pay-off inquiry, and Police Capt. Elias Hoagland of the Ruskin Avenue District.

The grand jury's final report will be made Dec. 5. The inquiry, which is expected to be continued by the next grand jury, has resulted in the indictment of three police officers.

ACCUSER PLEADS GUILTY, CLEARS WHITE HOUSE AID

He Had Falsely Charged Clerk With Selling Secret Data to Soviet Embassy.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) —A Washington rooming house operator pleaded guilty today to falsely accusing a White House clerk of selling White House secrets to the Russian embassy.

By his plea, Leonard Wesley, 40 years old, formally acknowledged the falsity of allegations he made against Thomas M. Jones, 29 years old, in a letter sent to the White House last April.

The letter, purporting to come from fellow White House employes of Jones, was written on White House stationery.

Assistant United States Attorney E. Riley Casey told reporters that an independent investigation in advance of Wesley's plea of guilty had completely cleared Jones of wrongdoing. He has been retained in his White House job.

Mystery Over Stationery.

Casey said also it had been determined how Wesley obtained the White House stationery, but that he was not in a position to say how it was done.

Casey added, however, that no one was involved except Wesley.

The letter sent to "Division of Investigation, Personnel Division, White House" was dated April 1, 1955. It said Jones had visited the Russian embassy with White House documents on several occasions.

It added: "It is our personal knowledge and belief that Mr. Jones has been paid cash money for transmission of this information. This young man's unselfish dedication to the Russian Government is unparalleled in White House history."

Motive Not Explained.

Casey said Wesley has never explained why he falsely accused Jones.

Casey told United States District Judge Bolitha J. Laws that Wesley was convicted in Miami in 1950 on a charge of shoplifting and was given a fine of $100 or 60 days in jail. He said also that Wesley forfeited $20 collateral in Washington in 1950 on a charge of making a false report to police.

Casey said the false report was that his car had been stolen. Casey added that Wesley made the report after obtaining two tires and driving away without paying for them.

Drowns in Boiling Water.

CANAJOHARIE, N.Y., Nov. 21 (UP)—Stewart E. Smith, 57 years old, a supermarket operator, fell into a vat of boiling water in his store yesterday and drowned. Smith had been using the water to remove feathers from turkeys when he apparently suffered a fainting spell and fell in, police said.

Father a Poor Example.

OMAHA (AP) — An eighth grade teacher summoned one of her pupils to her desk to tell him his essay was good but his penmanship terrible. The next day the boy brought a postcard sent him by his father, who was away from home, and pointed out "I write as good as he does." The teacher suggested he not follow too closely in his father's footsteps.

MARYLAND ENDS SEGREGATION IN NATIONAL GUARD

Gov. McKeldin Orders Abolition of Racial Bars — Negroes Planned Court Case.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21 (AP)—Segregation was on its way out in the Maryland National Guard today, following an abolition order by Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin.

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of the state unit, said he would "issue the proper directives" today to carry out the Governor's order.

McKeldin's directive to Reckord last night instructed him to "initiate without delay all such steps as are necessary to bring an end to racial segregation in the organization of the Maryland National Guard."

Guard officials said the Governor's action makes Maryland the first Southern state to drop racial barriers in its military service.

A group of 15 Negro officers who formerly served in the Maryland Guard recently announced plans to ask a United States District Court ruling against Guard segregation.

The Negroes said they were integrated with regular Army units while serving in Korea, but preferred to remain on inactive duty upon returning home rather than rejoin segregated Guard outfits.

McKeldin's directive said, "The awaiting of court action would result only in an unnecessary delay. . . ."

About 150 Negroes in two all-Negro transportation units in Baltimore will be affected immediately by the order. The units are the only Negro components of the state Guard's 38 units.

Reckord looked for "a smattering of enlistments" but added "I don't think it's going to make too much difference. I feel sure everybody will take it in stride."

In Washington, Maj. Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, chief of the National Guard Bureau, said Maryland is not the first state which had segregated guard units to announce a policy of desegregation. He said such a matter is "entirely in state hands."

The Supreme Court has issued no decrees involving the Guard such as the ones calling for desegration of schools and public parks, swimming pools and other public recreation facilities.

Reckford, asked for comment on the Governor's directive said: "Based on the recent rulings of the Supreme Court, I don't think he could do otherwise."

The 15 Negro officers who planned court action said Reckord told them two years ago "we have decided the efficiency of the National Guard will be maintained on a higher standard by . . . not permitting integration."

Priest Accuses Pro-Segregation Governors of Subversion.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 21 (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest yesterday criticized governors of pro-segregation Southern states and said they are "doing nothing more than helping subversive elements undermine our Government and our way of life."

The Rev. Louis Twomey, S.J., director of the Institute of Industrial Relations at Loyola University of the South in New Orleans, added those "who proclaim this as a white man's state and a white man's nation are offering no more of an example of democracy for other peoples of the world than are the Communists."

Father Twomey said "a white man's democracy is repellent to other people."

Brownell Aid Calls Emmett Till Case Black Mark.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Deputy Attorney General William P. Rogers yesterday called the killing of Emmett Till "a real black mark" in that the Negro boy's killers "have not been brought to justice."

Two white men have been found not guilty of murdering the 14-year-old Chicago youth who disappeared while vacationing in Mississippi last summer. The same two, Roy Bryant and his half-brother, J. W. Milam, also were freed of kidnaping charges in the case.

Till had been visiting his uncle, who told authorities two white men took the boy away for allegedly making remarks to Bryant's wife.

Rogers was asked during a televised interview on ABC's "College Press Conference" whether his "black mark" comment implied he thought there had not been a fair trial.

"No," Rogers replied, "I want to say this—that I think it's a black mark in the sense that those responsible have not been brought to justice."

He said he had not followed the case closely enough "to say exactly where the fault lies." He added, "Proper administration of justice would have required that these people who were guilty be punished." He did not elaborate.

Mississippi Church Votes Against Pastor.

DURANT, Miss., Nov. 21 (AP)—A member of the board of deacons of Durant's Presbyterian Church said a "personality clash" and not segregation issues prompted the board to ask that the church's minister be fired.

The breach between the board and the Rev. Marsh Callaway widened when 43 of the 45 adult members of the church met yesterday and voted unanimously to ask the central presbytery of Mississippi to remove the 60-year-old minister.

The Rev. Mr. Callaway reportedly "broke the camel's back" when he defended Minter and Cox at the Tchula meeting.

Calvin King, an attorney and member of the church's board of deacons, said, "The members of this church are very conservative people. They have just resented several times that Rev. Callaway has gotten involved in politics."

King denied that segregation issues had spurred the board to ask for the Rev. Mr. Callaway's removal.

AMERICAN TO WEAR FIRST $9 MADE-IN-EGYPT SUIT

ASHLAND, Ky., Nov. 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt is stepping aside to let a Kentucklan make Egyptian history.

William Marsh, an employe of Armco Steel Corp. here, will receive the first suit from Egypt's new popular-priced clothing factory.

After reading about the factory, Marsh wrote the Prime Minister, enclosing a check for $9 and his measurements for a suit. The Prime Minister had intended to wear the first suit, but he wrote back that Marsh could have the first one.

FRISCO OFFICERS, EMPLOYES BOOST UNITED FUND GIFT

Contribute $105,033, Increase of 17 Pct. Over Last Year—Other Donations.

Gifts totaling $105,033 have been received by the United Fund from officers, executives and employes of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co. (Frisco Lines), it was announced today.

The sum will be included in a tabulation of funds received in the campaign to be announced at a final report meeting at noon tomorrow at Hotel Jefferson. The campaign is scheduled to end tomorrow.

The Frisco gift is an increase of 17 per cent over the amount given last year to organizations now combined in a single effort under the United Fund to provide support for 114 health and welfare agencies in the St. Louis area.

Other contributions from firms and their employes which will be reported at tomorrow's meeting include: $14,533, A. S. Aloe Co.; $1917, St. Louis Screw & Bolt Co.; $1000, Webster Publishing Co.; $1390, Allstate Insurance Co.; $2183, Be Mac Transport Co., Inc.; $1039, Hardware Mutual Casualty Co., and $2373, Western Auto Stores.

A total of $5,475,242 had been collected as of last Wednesday. The sum is 66.4 per cent of the campaign's $8,245,925 goal.

Fund leaders have expressed optimism that the St. Louis area's first "One Gift . . . for All" drive will be successful if all volunteer workers complete their coverage.

William A. McDonnell, general chairman of the campaign, said the majority of gifts received so far reflect increases over previous years sufficient to achieve the goal.

Two Left to Die on Sinking Ship Reach Shore in a Raging Sea

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Nov. 21 (UP)—Two men who were left aboard a sinking schooner were back home with their families today.

Both were given up for lost yesterday after a Coast Guard boat was forced to leave the side of the foundering 70-foot schooner Snow Maiden where four were rescued.

"We never expected to see those two men again," said George Davis of Plymouth, who volunteered to aid in the rescue. "It was an awful decision to make. But it was eight lives against two."

The rescued men, Frederick P. White, 35 years old, of Cohasset, and David Fulton, 30, of Montreal, had to remain aboard the schooner as it foundered off Plymouth in raging seas. Coast Guard officials said their craft was overloaded when four others were taken from the ship.

Both men climbed into a dory and then huddled together while the small craft was hurled about by winds and waves.

"It was impossible to row," White said. "We just lay in the boat and prayed for our lives."

The dory was finally driven against the town pier and both men were pulled to safety by passers-by.

"We didn't expect to make it in the dory. But it was better than staying aboard the schooner," White said. "That was like staring death straight in the eye."

SHOOTS AT HOLDUP MAN

A tavern operator shot at and possibly wounded a holdup man who fled from the bar after robbing it of $50, East St. Louis police were told early yesterday.

William Diercks, owner of the Bill-Mar Inn, 1402 Gay avenue, said the man, a Negro, threatened both him and his wife with a pistol and took the money from the cash register. As he was leaving, Diercks fired a shot at the man who screamed and doubled up but continued running.

COUNTY AUTO DEALERS TO BE CAUTIONED ON SUNDAY SALES

All new and used automobile dealers and law enforcement agencies in St. Louis county will be reminded by letter of a State statute prohibiting the sale of non-essential goods on Sunday, Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz said today.

Garnholz said James H. Meredith, counsel for the Greater St. Louis Automotive Association, reported in a letter that the statute is being violated in some sections of the county. Meredith said numerous complaints have been received about used car dealers operating on Sunday on Gravois avenue and in Wellston.

The law specifically prohibits the sale of goods, wares and merchandise other than those of immediate necessity, Garnholz said. Violators will be prosecuted, he said.

10 KILLED IN HEAD-ON CRASH IN NEBRASKA

Wreck Believed to Be Worst Highway Accident in State's History.

WATERBURY, Nebr., Nov. 21 (AP)—A head-on collision, believed the worst in Nebraska history, killed 10 persons last night—six teen-agers and four musicians.

Col. C. J. Sanders, head of the Nebraska safety patrol, said he could recall no other highway accident in the state taking so many lives.

The teen-agers were returning to their farm homes near Ponca, Nebr. The state safety patrol said a front tire apparently blew out near Waterbury and their car rammed headon into one carrying the musicians, bound for an engagement at Norfolk, Nebr.

The car carrying the musicians, James E. Martello, Turtle Creek, Pa.; Jack Renn, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Lou Case Jr., Rock Island, Ill., and Don Sheffield, of St. Johnsburg, Vt., caught fire after the impact. The men were members of the Jimmie Palmer orchestra.

Six In Auto Killed by Train in Illinois.

FORRESTON, Ill., Nov. 21 (AP)—A passenger train and an automobile collided yesterday, killing the car's six occupants and scattering wreckage 2800 feet along the railway right-of-way.

State Trooper Gordon Savage quoted W. G. Lewis, engineer of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad train, as saying he was traveling between 75 and 80 miles per hour at the time of the collision. No train passengers were reported injured.

Savage said visibility was good and the signal device was working at the crossing where the crash occurred, two miles north of Forreston, in northwestern Illinois.

Killed were Alvin Wagner, 20, driver of the auto; his wife, Mrs. June Wagner, 20; Wayne Zettle, 25; his wife, Joan, 21; and their daughter, Becky, 4, and Marilyn Zettle, 13.

World Population Prediction.

ROME, Nov. 21 (AP)—A Swiss scientist, Dr. F. T. Whalen, told the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization the world population in the year 2000 will be 4,800,000,000 and in 2050 it will be 6,700,000,000. There are 2,500,000,000 now.

RUSSELL TONGAY, ESCAPEE, REPORTED IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21 (AP) —Police say they have indirect information that Russell Tongay, swimming instructor who escaped a week ago from a Florida state prison agent, plans to surrender here today.

Police here said Florida authorities notified them that Tongay, a former St. Louisan, twice telephoned a friend in Florida yesterday and said on the second call he planned to surrender to Los Angeles police, accompanied by a lawyer. Tongay was convicted of manslaughter in the death of his "aquatot" daughter, Kathy, 3 years old, who was fatally injured in a 33-foot exhibition dive. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Florida authorities said Tongay telephoned William Burrell Jr. at Coral Gables, Fla., saying he was in Los Angeles to obtain medical care. He told Burrell to call the Florida Governor and ask permission for him to stay in Los Angeles for treatment. Miami authorities said he may be using the name Tom Gay.

"Letters are nice—but his Long Distance calls mean the most"

"My happiest moments these days start with the ring of my telephone. Then I hear a dear, familiar voice say 'Hi, Mom' — sometimes excited with good news, sometimes a little homesick, but always bringing us close together again. I enjoy his letters, of course, but I count the days between our Long Distance visits."

• • •

YOU'LL SAVE MONEY by making station-to-station calls. You simply tell the operator you'll talk with anyone who answers. The call will then be charged at low station-to-station rates. Why not arrange regular dates for Long Distance visits with out-of-town friends and relatives? That way, you can call station-to-station and be sure of reaching them at a substantial saving.

• • •

YOU'LL SAVE TIME when you place your call by number. When you can give the operator the number you're calling, service is twice as fast. An up-to-date list of out-of-town numbers is the key to placing calls by number. Ask at the telephone business office for a free Blue Book . . . handiest place to keep your list.

N.A.M. APPROVES LAYOFF PAY PLAN

It Is Based on Vested Fund for Each Worker Rather Than a Pool.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers yesterday approved a form of layoff pay.

The N. A. M. said the plan differs in two major respects from that agreed to by the Ford Motor Co. and the CIO United Auto Workers.

One is that the N. A. M. plan is based on an individual fund for each worker, whereas the Ford plan provides for a pooled fund.

The other is that Ford benefits would be paid only to workers eligible for state unemployment compensation, whereas the N. A. M. plan has nothing to do with state payments.

The N. A. M.-type plan, already in use by two large glass manufacturers, provides for an employer-paid individual savings account for each worker, to be drawn on in periods of sickness or layoff. The money would be earmarked for a particular worker and would belong to him if he left the company.

Because it is divorced from state unemployment payments and is not a pooled fund, the N. A. M. said, "if a laid-off employe uses his plan to stay out of work longer than is necessary, he will be using money he otherwise could keep for himself."

The N. A. M. contended its plan also would strengthen the feeling that each worker has a personal responsibility to help safeguard his own financial security.

The alternative plan is in effect between the CIO United Glass and Ceramic Workers and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Libby-Owens-Ford Companies. It calls for a company contribution of 5 cents an hour for each employe, as does the Ford plan.

Bishops' Bid for Aid to Catholic Schools Opens Old Controversy

Likely to Be Topic of White House Conference—Protestant Group Says Move Is Only a Beginning.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (UP)—An old controversy over government aid to parochial schools flared anew today.

The Catholic hierarchy in the United States joined the issue with a 2500-word statement asserting the "full right" of church-operated schools "to be considered and dealt with as components of the American educational system." The strongly-worded statement was issued by 208 Catholic cardinals, archbishops and bishops at the conclusion of their annual three-day meeting in Washington Saturday.

They did not ask for direct support of parochial schools with tax funds. But they said students attending "private and church related schools" have a clear right "to benefit from those measures, grants or aids which are manifestly designed for the health, safety and welfare of American youth, irrespective of the school attended."

The statement came just a week before the long-scheduled White House conference on education. The question of federal aid to public and private schools is expected to be a main topic for discussion at the conference, starting here next Monday.

The stand taken by the hierarchy promptly drew fire from Glenn L. Archer, executive secretary of the organization, Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State. He charged that Catholic leaders are "beginning a drive for all-out Government financial support of their institutions."

Archer said the Catholic bishops regard "fringe benefits" for parochial schools—such as bus transportation or textbook funds—as "merely a beachhead" from which to battle for Government funds to pay teachers' salaries and other regular operating costs.

Any move in that direction, he said, would conflict with "the Supreme Court's clear ruling that public tax money, in amounts large or small, shall not be used, directly or indirectly, to aid sectarian teachings or sectarian institutions."

HAL MARCH SAYS HE'S ASKED CANDY TOXTON BIG QUESTION

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—Hal March, master of ceremonies for "The $64,000 Question" on CBS television and radio, says he will marry Candy Toxton, model and actress, as soon as she wins a final divorce from Singer Mel Torme. March confirmed reports of the approaching wedding last night.

Miss Toxton, who is now in Hollywood, received an interlocutory decree from Torme several weeks ago, but it does not become final for a year. Miss Toxton, the former Florence Ann Tockstein of East St. Louis, and Torme have two children, a boy 2 years old, and a 4-month-old girl.

So they can marry sooner, March said Miss Toxton will go to Las Vegas about Dec. 27 to seek a Nevada divorce, which requires but six week's residence. He said they will marry soon after that.

ARMY REVERSES SANFORD WAXER DISCHARGE ORDER

DETROIT, Nov. 21 (AP)—Sanford Waxer, said yesterday that the Army had classified his discharge as "honorable" after a loyalty investigation that involved Dr. Alfred Kelly of the Wayne University faculty.

Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker apologized to Dr. Kelly for the Army's "mistake" of linking him with American Youth for Democracy. The A.Y.D. is on the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations.

Waxer, a Wayne graduate, was asked to accept an undesirable discharge after service from June 1, 1953, to May 31, 1955. The Army charged he had associated with Communists or Communist sympathizers before entering the Army. Waxer fought the discharge.

Waxer said he was advised by the adjutant general of the Army yesterday that his record would be changed to read, in the "character of separation," from "to be determined" to "honorable."

He also was told: "After a careful review of the circumstances involved in your case it has been determined that you will be retained in the Army reserve."

BOMB SUSPECT IS IDENTIFIED AS DYNAMITE BUYER

Storekeeper Picks Denver Man, Accused of Blasting Airliner, Out of Line-Up.

DENVER, Nov. 21 (AP)—In a face-to-face meeting in jail today, a Kremmling (Colo.) store operator identified John Gilbert Graham, 23 years old, as the man who bought from "20 or 25" sticks of dynamite, detonating caps and wiring Oct. 29.

Graham is accused of rigging a dynamite bomb and placing it in his mother's luggage before she boarded a United Air Lines plane Nov. 1 at Denver. The plane blew up in flight, carrying Graham's mother and 43 others to death. Graham, in news interviews, has repudiated a statement of admission which federal officials said he made.

Lyman Brown, co-owner of the Brown Brothers supermarket at Kremmling, in northwestern Colorado, picked Graham out of a line-up of seven jail inmates. All were of about the same age and physical description as Graham.

District Attorney Bert Keating said Brown's identification of Graham is "the telling link" in what he calls a chain of evidence. Keating said the state will attempt to send Graham to the gas chamber for the death of his mother, Mrs. Daisie E. King. He is to be arraigned Nov. 28 on a murder charge.

Brown told reporters he remembered the sale—three days in advance of the airliner bombing—because Graham specified electric caps. They are a type that are discharged by a timer wired to batteries. Brown said ranchers and miners in this area always want fuse caps when they buy dynamite in the quantities he said he sold Graham.

The Rocky Mountain News said in a copyrighted article that Graham worked six days at a Denver electric shop in October. The paper said he told his employer he would make more money elsewhere, but wanted to learn the trade.

Mrs. King's life was insured for $37,500 before she started the flight.

MRS. WOODWARD TO LEAVE HOSPITAL FOR QUESTIONING

MINEOLA, N.Y., Nov. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Ann Woodward will leave a New York hospital today, and plans to appear voluntarily for questioning by authorities in the killing of her millionaire sportsman husband.

The 39-year-old former model and radio actress has been under treatment for shock and hysteria for three weeks since she fired a shotgun blast that killed her husband, William Woodward Jr., 35, in the hallway of their home.

A New York attorney, Murray I. Gurfein, disclosed today he has been retained by Mrs. Woodward "to guide her," and will bring her to Mineola for questioning by authorities as soon as she leaves the hospital. He said she desires to appear before the grand jury investigating the case, and will sign a waiver of immunity subjecting her to prosecution for any incriminating information she might give.

Mrs. Woodward has claimed she fired at a sound in the dark, thinking it a prowler, and authorities have said that their findings indicate the killing was an accident.

CIO AND AFL ASK U.S. TO LET MORE IMMIGRANTS IN

Spokesmen Testify Rise in Quota Would Not Jeopardize Jobs or Wages in U.S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Spokesmen for the CIO and AFL said today the United States could open its doors to more immigrants without jeopardy to the employment and wages of American workers.

Victor Reuther of the CIO and Walter J. Mason of the AFL were witnesses before a Senate Immigration subcommittee at hearings on proposals to revise the McCarran-Walter Act, passed in 1952 over former President Truman's veto.

An overhauling of the law to bring a "wider sense of humanity to our immigration policies" was urged by Senator Clifford P. Case (Rep.), New Jersey, who contended the present act contains unjuist features.

Senator Harley Kilgore (Dem.), West Virginia, subcommittee chairman, said he had intended to start the hearings with testimony from spokesmen for the Eisenhower Administration, but had failed to obtain their "co-operation."

He said he had invited Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. to testify.

Favors New Quota Basis.

Reuther, assistant to CIO president Walter Reuther, his brother, urged that the present annual immigration quota be increased from 154,000 to 251,000. This would be accomplished by making the quota equal to one sixth of 1 per cent of the United States population in 1950, instead of 1920 as at present.

In proposing this higher figure, Reuther said he doubted if "anyone would suggest that immigration on that scale would adversely affect the wage scale or economy of this country."

Mason, a member of the AFL's national legislative committee, discussed a change in the quota formula, but without committing himself to any particular figure. He said he believed the nation could "absorb a reasonable increase" in the number of immigrants it admits each year.

Both labor spokesmen contended also that the present formula for assigning immigration quotas discriminates against southern and eastern Europeans in favor of northern and western Europeans.

Plea by Catholic Group.

The Rev. William J. Gibbons, testifying for the National Catholic Welfare Conferece, told the subcommittee he believes "the anhual volume of immigration could be increased significantly without harm."

He said the conference felt that an increase in quota immigrants to aproximately 250,000 a year would "not be unreasonable."

Senator John F. Kennedy (Dem.), Massachusetts, recommended that the McCarran-Walter act be scrapped, but Case said in his testimony he thought this would probably be unwise since "it is, after all, a codification of all our immigration statutes and procedures."

The bulky, complex act has been a continuing source of controversy. Case expressed hope the subcommittee would consider its revision free from rancor, personalities or politics.

"We no longer are able to think of our immigration policies as an isolated question of internal concern alone," he said. "What we do is watched by the world. It is still another arm of our foreign policy."

Case said "injustices have been done" under the act and declared that "some of its provisions carry the seeds of future difficulties as well."

Favors Rewriting Act.

With Senators Irving Ives (Rep.), New York, and Everett Saltonstall (Rep.), Massachusetts, he introduced a bill last year to rewrite the act in part —including a revision of the national origins system for determining the immigration quotas assigned to other nations.

Under this system, adopted in the early 1920s and carried forward in the McCarran-Walter Act, each nation's quota is based on its contribution to the make-up of the United States population at the time of the 1920 census.

Case urged that 1950, instead of 1920, be used as the base year for determining quotas. He said this would "go a long way toward removing the senseless and serious discrimination against nationalities of southern and southeastern Europe."

He also recommended a pooling of unused quotas and their reallocation to Italy, Greece and other countries that oversubscribe their quotas. Both of these proposals were rejected by Congress in adopting the McCarran-Walter Act, but Case said their approval would "allay the squeeze on countries presently discriminated against."

Churchman Testifies.

The Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, president of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., called for an end to all discrimination based on race or color. He said the council, made up of 30 Protestant and eastern orthodox communions with a membership of 35,000,000, also believes the laws should be changed to:

1. Make the quota system more "flexible" in order to "insure skills needed in our country and to offer asylum to persecuted victims of totalitarian regimes or victims of national calamity," regardless of national origin.

2. Establish a "system of fair hearings and appeals respecting the issuance of visas and deportation proceedings."

Dr. Blake said: "We believe that Congress should seek to bring our immigration and naturalization legislation into conformity with those principles of justice and fair play which are so essential to the achieving of a just and durable peace."

COUNTY VOTERS
READ THESE FACTS
PROTECT YOURSELF TOMORROW
PROPOSITION No. 6
INNERBELT HIGHWAY

INNERBELT HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION WILL NOT START FOR 8 TO 10 YEARS ACCORDING TO COUNTY PLANNING COMMISSION.

Under present plans, many of the highway bonds, if approved tomorrow, will not be sold for eight years. Construction cannot begin until the money is available which means 10 to 12 years will go by before the first ¼ of the road is completed. The final road will not be completed for, at least, 20 years and maybe more according to the County Planning Commission. We need highways NOW, not in the future. Vote NO on Proposition No. 6 and make County Authorities give us roads now.

INNERBELT HIGHWAY ROUTE CAN BE CHANGED WITHOUT APPROVAL OF VOTERS.

No engineering survey has been made of the Innerbelt Route. The County Planning Commission admits that the County Council can change the proposed route at any time after the election, even if approved by the voters. Homes, schools, churches, and streets may depreciate in value, but County residents will not be able to protect themselves once money for the right-of-way has been approved. Vote NO on Proposition No. 6. Protect your homes.

NO STATE OR FEDERAL FUNDS WILL BE USED ON THE INNERBELT HIGHWAY.

The County taxpayers will have to pay the entire bill for the Innerbelt. In fact, because of poor planning, the State will not even allow the Innerbelt to directly connect with Route 40 where the two cross. If the State won't buy it because of poor planning, why should we? Vote NO on Proposition No. 6.

TAXES WILL HAVE TO GO UP MORE THAN WE ARE BEING TOLD.

Voters are being told that if all 8 Bond Issue Proposals are approved, taxes will only go up 13c per $100 assessed value. However, based upon today's assessed County property values of less than one billion dollars, 13c will barely cover interest payments on the $40,000,000.00 Bond Issue at current 3% interest rates. Money will still have to be set aside for paying off the bonds which means more taxes than we are being told of. Don't buy a Pig in a Poke. Vote NO on Proposition No. 6.

Democrats Buoyed by 3 Years Of Election Victories but Still Nervous Over Eisenhower Pull

Some Shrewd Members of Party Think Voters May Like Present Set-up of Republican in White House and Opposition in Control of Congress.

By STEWART ALSOP

CHICAGO.

BEAMING confidence with a slight underlayer of nervousness about describes the mood of the Democratic party, to judge from the Democratic jamboree which has just taken place here. The reasons for the confidence are obvious.

In the first place, except for the role played by Adlai Stevenson, and Stevenson's remarkable speech, the performance here has been a pretty dull one. But it has been dull for a reason pleasing to Democrats. For they have notably failed to provide amusement to the onlookers by trying to claw each others' eyes out, after their usual fashion.

There have been groanings and mutterings, of course, but nothing like the fearful clashes that used to take place when Democrats gathered. The reason is, of course, that the issues which tore the Democratic party apart in 1948 and 1952—civil rights and off shore oil—have been muted if not disposed of.

Success At Polls.

This surface display of unity has taken place, moreover, against the background of a remarkable record of success at the polls. Indeed, the consistent Democratic voting trend, in a time of prosperity and while a Republican President has enjoyed unprecedented personal popularity, has been a mysterious phenomenon.

Consider the record of the last three years. In the special elections in 1953, almost before President Eisenhower had settled himself in the White House, seven out of eight House seats went to Democrats, while two districts, in Wisconsin and New Jersey, went Democratic for the first time in history.

This might have been written off as mere happenstance, if the same districts had not gone Democratic again in 1954. In that election, the Democrats won both Houses, the first time in American history that a President lost both Houses to the opposition two years after his election. The Democrats also grabbed a number of governorships and polled a higher proportion of the total vote than at any time since the mid-'thirties.

Repetition This Year.

The off-year elections of Nov. 8, in the unanimous view of the Democrats who gathered here, strongly confirmed the trend. Some Democratic successes, they admit, were wholly local affairs. But they argue that it is silly to suppose, for example, that Democratic mayors replaced Republicans in 48 Indiana towns simply because of local conditions in all those towns.

The Democrats are sure that the Indiana vote represents a farm rebellion of serious proportions against the Administration. And they believe that the Democratic trend in certain towns in Connecticut and elsewhere represents a drift of the commuting and middle-class vote away from its normal Republican allegiance.

Finally, the Democrats are operating on the assumption that Dwight D. Eisenhower will not run again. Although it is not often acknowledged, this is the most important single reason for the Democratic confidence which has been on display here. "Won't it be nice," one Democrat remarked, "not to have to run against an American institution?"

Underlayer of Nervousness.

And yet that underlayer of nervousness also exists, all the same. The Democrats, particularly those from the farm states, are sure that farm discontent presents them with an enormously effective issue, and many of them are angry with Adlai Stevenson for not exploiting the issue more aggressively. But otherwise, they have a dearth of real, emotion-stirring issues. "It's going to be tough to run against peace and prosperity," one of them remarked.

Whoever the Republican candidate may be, moreover, he will be lavishly financed and he will have at his disposal the most brilliant practitioners of the new techniques of television politics. Most important of all, as the Democrats are unhappily aware, he will have Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"You can just imagine it," one Democrat remarked thoughtfully. "There will be Ike, the ailing and beloved President, maybe on the back porch at Gettysburg, urging the voters to elect a Republican candidate to carry on his policies. Don't think that will be easy to beat."

Some very shrewd Democrats have a nasty suspicion that the Democratic electoral successes since 1952 don't really mean what they seem to mean, as far as the presidency is concerned. They suspect that the voters, who have increasingly shown a disconcerting tendency to split their ticket, etc, have got used to having a Republican in the White House with Democrats in charge of Congress; and that the voters like it that way, and do not mean to change.

General Motors-Ford Feud Rocks G.O.P. High Command

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1955.)

WASHINGTON.

A BACKSTAGE political struggle between General Motors and Ford has the Republican high command snapping and snarling. Here is a three-ring view of the intra-party battle:

RING 1. Henry Ford II vs. General Motors boss Harlow Curtice. Ford is a sincere and devoted admirer of President Eisenhower and hopes to keep the Eisenhower wing in power. Curtice backed the late Senator Robert A. Taft, but went along with President Eisenhower until his heart attack. Now Curtice and his General Motors executives are moving to put a conservative in the White House. They have gone so far as to shut off General Motors contributions to the G.O.P. as long as Eisenhower men run the Republican party in Michigan.

RING 2. G.O.P. National Chairman Len Hall vs. past Chairman Art Summerfield, now Postmaster General, one of the biggest Chevrolet dealers in the country. Summerfield is in the strange position of serving in the Eisenhower Cabinet but siding with General Motors against the Eisenhower political team. He has boasted in G.O.P. circles that he is still " de facto national chairman," that Hall is a figurehead and "not very bright." Hall, in turn, has called Summerfield a "great money-raiser but a lousy politician." The feud has reached such a point that Hall has recommended to the White House that Summerfield be fired.

RING 3. Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson vs. the man who succeeded him as General Motors president, Harlow Curtice. Wilson is loyal to the Eisenhower team, but has no influence over General Motors' political activity. Curtice, who heaved a big sigh when Wilson left General Motors, has housecleaned General Motors of all Wilson influence and policies. During the Army-McCarthy showdown, for example, General Motors Vice President Harry Anderson wrote a blistering letter to Wilson because the Secreary of Defense was against Senator McCarthy. This was done with Curtice's blessing.

To these three might be added a fourth or junior ring—Wilson's son, Ed, vs. Summerfield's son, Bud. Young Wilson has joined forces with the Eisenhower leaders now running the Republican party in Michigan. Young Summerfield has taken up the cudgels against the Eisenhower forces.

Last week the battle became so bitter that Chairman Hall made a last, desperate effort to clamp a lid on the tempest. He called Summerfield and Michigan G. O. P. Chairman John Feikens to the Republican National Committee for truce talks.

At this meeting Feikens angrily accused General Motors of staging a "sit-down strike" against Eisenhower leaders and closing its treasury to Republican money-raisers in Michigan. He charged that Summerfield not only had sided with General Motors, but had actually influenced its officials to stop their contributions.

This raised the ire of the Postmaster General. Heatedly he shot back that Feikens was nothing but a Ford "stooge."

After the two men cooled

PRINCETON, N.J., Nov. 21.

STRENGTH in the Republican party's stand on national issues is seen in a survey just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Each voter was asked what he considers the most important problem facing the country today and what party he thinks can best handle that particular problem.

The one great issue that is singled out by voters in all parties is keeping the peace, and survey results show that on this issue the Republicans have a great advantage over the Democrats.

When representative voters throughout the country were asked to name the country's most serious problem, 42 per cent named keeping the peace and foreign policy first, followed by the farm problem with 8 per cent and tax reduction with 7 per cent.

The same voters were then asked which party they felt could best handle the particular problem they had named. Eliminating all those who said "no difference" or "no opinion," the voting goes this way:

Republicans can handle better	54%
Democrats can handle better	46

The following table is a summary of how those who named keeping the peace as the No. 1 problem rate the two parties in terms of ability to handle this problem:

Republicans can handle better	43%
Democrats can handle better	26
No difference, no opinion	31

It is enlightening to compare today's figures with the results of an identical survey prior to the 1946 election, when the Republicans captured both the Senate and the House.

That survey showed the G.O.P. for the first time coming out on top as the party which could best handle the major problems then uppermost.

When the question was put to the people in 1946, those voters naming either the Democratic party or the Republican party voted this way:

Republicans can handle better	60%
Democrats can handle better	40%

In 1946, the principal issues named were rationing and shortages of food, clothing and other necessities, labor trouble and strikes, foreign policy and dealing with Russia, reducing the high cost of living and the housing situation.

Tests Intensify Army-Air Force Feud Over Nike Rocket's Value

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (UP).

THE ARMY and Air Force are at odds over secret tests in which the Army's anti-aircraft rocket, the Nike, knocked down a Matador jet bomber missile, it was learned today.

The Nike, a 1600-mile-an-hour rocket with a range of about 25 miles, was pitted against the Matador, a 600-mile-an-hour short-range bombing missile, in aerial duels at the White Sands (N.M.) proving grounds.

Many United States cities, including Washington, have been ringed with Nike guided missile bases as a defense against surprise enemy attack. But the Army and Air Force have disagreed on the Nike's effectiveness ever since it was unveiled three years ago.

The White Sands duel was staged in an effort to settle the controversy. The only apparent effect, however, was to add new fuel to the row.

One Kill, Several Misses.

The Air Force account of the test is that the Nike scored one kill and missed on several other shots. The Army said it missed on four test firings held last month, but scored kills on the only two shots fired early this month.

The Air Force emphasized the misses to bolster its contention that the missile has been vastly overrated. The Army pointed to the claimed 2-for-2 score to back up its argument that the Nike is a deadly missile capable of handing speedy jet bombers.

The Matador missile was chosen as the target because it is, in effect, a pilotless fighter-bomber with the speed but not the size of a jet bomber.

The exact conditions under which the duel was staged are also a matter of dispute. The Air Force said one kill was obtained under rather artificial conditions, with the Matador flying lower and slower than normal. The Army said the tests were conducted under realistic conditions.

The stage for the duel was set nearly three years ago when the Army introduced the Nike with claims it was so good "it is almost impossible for them to miss a target." The unveiling was accompanied by pictures showing the Nike knocking a World War II B-17 bomber out of the sky.

Termed Overrated.

Air Force officials privately, and occasionally openly, have complained that the Army has overplayed the value of the Nike. They have suggested that while the Nike might be able to knock down a B-17 it was no match for modern jet bombers.

They also contend that the radar control system of the Nike is vulnerable to electronic counter-measures and jamming such as displayed last week at the Sagebrush maneuvers in Louisiana.

Army officers admit the Nike originally was designed to meet the threat of the Russian TU-4, a bomber in the same 300-mile-per-hour class as the World War II United States B-29.

But they insist the Nike has been improved to cope with jets.

Army officials also point out that even if the Nike only hits its target 65 per cent of the time, this compares most favorably with the rate of kill of conventional anti-aircraft.

BELGRADE, Nov. 21 (AP)—An official broadcast reports Burma has promised to give Yugoslavia 20,000 tons of rice out of its exportable surplus. President Josip (Tito) Broz presented Burma with military equipment for a brigade on his official visit there 10 months ago.

Stevenson Must Fortify Feeling That He Will Be Party Nominee

By DORIS FLEESON

CHICAGO.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS leave Chicago with a strong impression that Adlai Stevenson will be their nominee for President in 1956. His hard task will be to sustain and fortify this mood for the next nine months.

Undercurrents of doubt about his candidacy remain and they are not confined to any one region of the country. They do not openly appear because as yet they have no focus in the form of an alternative candidate.

These doubts center chiefly on his status as a divorced person and the fact that he has once been beaten in the presidential race.

The past week has reassured them about his determination to win. Some of his intellectual admirers were pained to observe their hero table-hopping and handshaking all over the place in the best county chairman manner, but it did not hurt him with the party operators who scarcely knew him in 1952.

Streak of Ham.

Actually there is a streak of ham in Stevenson which has peered out occasionally in the famous wit. He has been curbing his quips on advice of supporters but, as and when the fervor of campaigning seizes him, he can be expected to break out again.

After all, Abraham Lincoln is his conscious model of a President, as Andrew Jackson was the model of Harry Truman. Lincoln's humor is an immortal feature of that martyred President's story.

The only living former Democratic President remains a problem to the Stevenson camp. One and all were exquisitely polite to Truman here, but they are aware that he has reservations about Stevenson which may from time to time find expression embarrassing to them.

Truman's insistence that he is "neutral" about candidates is in one sense tactical and designed to force Stevenson to wage an aggressive campaign. The fact remains that the two men are temperamentally not in tune and their relationship will never be completely relaxed.

Another development of the smoke-filled rooms here was a fresh spate of talk about a Stevenson-Kefauver ticket. Its origins are in the grass roots.

Kefauver Sentiment.

Many state leaders report that there are Kefauver people and Kefauver sentiment at home they would like to appease. They say yes, Stevenson would win in a test of strength, but why have it. They would like to be able to assure the Senator's friends that he is sure of strong consideration for Vice President.

The third openly available candidate, Governor Harriman of New York, remained in the background at Chicago until after the big dinner Saturday night. His speech there was largely a hymn of praise for party leaders.

That Harriman intensely wants to be President cannot be doubted. He seems to realize, however, that his New York leaders, including Tammany's De Sapio, timed their recent efforts badly. Harriman's best chance is to inherit the Stevenson strength should Stevenson fail. He cannot therefore safely antagonize the Stevenson following.

But Harriman agrees with Truman that a strong offensive against the Eisenhower Administration is called for and he will set that pace next week in the Northwest.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Other Community Facilities

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Metropolitan Planning Conference last Wednesday heard the dean of the School of Architecture at Washington University condemn the birth of "new slums all over St. Louis county."

This statement of Dean Buford L. Pickens echoed and confirmed two recent articles on this subject in the St. Louis Register. In pointing out the lack of community facilities such as parks and playgrounds, sewers, etc., Dean Pickens rendered a real service to the uninitiated home buyer who is all too often fooled by the smartly furnished display house.

The lack of church sites should certainly be included in the dean's bill of particulars against the land developers. Even from an economic point of view the prospective purchaser must remember that a church enhances and stabilizes neighborhood values. It is a simple matter to resell a home if it is within reasonable distance of a church.

The modern land developers often acquire 300 or 400 acres of ground. To adequately serve the new communities they create, a church must must be located within the subdivision.

Equally important are sites for private schools to which a large number of home buyers will send their children. In a word, these are "community facilities" and are just as important as storm sewers or paved streets. The developer providing such facilities does much to prevent the birth of new slums.

REV. JAMES R. HARTNETT,
Executive Secretary, Archdiocesan Building Commission.

While Food Rots

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Recent expressed sentiment favoring United States food-giving to the hungry world is greatly heartening.

Food rots in warehouses, and that is reason enough, perhaps, for sending it abroad without strings attached. Our nation may seek to impress other nations by such generous action—and that is much less reason.

Has this country gone so far down the road of self-interest that it cannot recognize the necessity for compassion? JANICE C. PRIES.

Wandering Decimal Point

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You recently quoted a Washington airline captain: "If the pilot of a 300-mile-an-hour DC6 spotted a 300-mile-an-hour Constellation approaching him head-on from a distance of two miles, he would have one tenth of a second to make up his mind what to do. At a distance of one mile he would not have time to avert a crash."

I do not follow the captain's conclusions.

According to my reckoning this is a closure speed of 600 miles per hour or 10 miles per minute or two miles per 12 seconds. At a distance of one mile the pilot should have six seconds to make up his mind, which is, in my opinion, a long enough time interval to avert a crash.

Like the bridge engineer whose new bridge collapsed, and who then gave as the reason that he must have misplaced a decimal point somewhere in his calculations, I think the captain's point must have wandered just a little. If I am wrong I stand and ask to be corrected.

W. F. CRORKIN SR.

Drivers and the Draft

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

After reading Mr. Ferguson's letter urging that a law be passed forbidding persons under 20 years of age to drive, it occurs to me that another law should be passed, too! No one under 20 years of age should be drafted. Mr. Ferguson wouldn't want to put the defense of his country in the hands of the boys who cannot take the responsibility to drive. They may go around shooting each other.

Mr. Ferguson is not being fair in putting all the teen-agers in one class any more than it would be fair to put all the people by the name of Ferguson in one class. People should be judged as individuals and not as statistics, unless we want to become a nation of numbers and not people.

Speaking of Showers

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I had to read the letter from "Berkeley Reader" at least three times before I could believe my eyes. Just how crazy can our educators (as they are charitably called) get? What earthly bearing can "community" showers have on a high school diploma? If this is true I think it is high time something be done by the National Education Association.

MRS. ALBERT H. SLAVEK.
Webster Groves.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Showers are a necessary part of the physical education course, and most schools cannot afford to install private showers for 20 or more students; therefore, a community shower is used.

In my four years spent in high school and college I did not hear of a single student who lost her self-respect because she took a shower with other students. Nor do I know of any physical education teacher who has had any student of hers lose self-respect in the shower room.

The Bar Performs

Circuit Attorney Dowd and his office were fairly criticized by the St. Louis Bar Association's Committee of Criminal Jurisprudence in connection with the re-arrest and detention of two Scott Air Base men after they had been discharged at a preliminary hearing.

The Missouri Constitution's guarantee of "a speedy public trial" was cited by the committee. It held that the delay in securing indictments against the men, or according them a preliminary hearing after their second arrest, "certainly interfered with their right to have 'a speedy public trial.'"

The most satisfactory result of the bar committee's investigation undoubtedly is the formulation of a rule to prevent unwarranted detentions in the future. This has been accepted by Mr. Dowd and by the Judges of the Court of Criminal Correction.

It provides, in brief, that a prisoner shall get a preliminary hearing within 10 days of his arrest on a felony charge. Postponements of not more than 10 days may be obtained by consent of both parties or on a written showing of good cause. No more complaints are to be endorsed simply: "Hold for Grand Jury."

Even 10 days is a long time to hold a man in jail when a judge at a preliminary hearing may find there is no cause for holding him at all. The designation of this period is a compromise between the rights of the individual and the work load of prosecutor and courts.

So there is all the more reason for a constant and conscientious respect by authorities for rights of those against whom they exercise their powers. They should always be mindful that their first obligation is to justice.

Mr. Dowd was accordingly reminded by the bar committee that "it is the duty of the Circuit Attorney, as well as the Courts, to see that all rights guaranteed by the Missouri Constitution to persons accused of crime shall be fully protected." This applies all the more, the committee said, when the accused lacks counsel.

The committee noted Mr. Dowd's excuses in its report, but apparently did not discuss them in view of his concession that there was "an element of oversight" and his agreement that "the delay in obtaining indictments should not have occurred."

Quite properly, the committee upheld the Circuit Attorney's right to disagree with the findings at a preliminary hearing. But it emphasized that a new filing of charges against the accused should be followed by speedy indictment or hearing. It also emphasized that rearrests should not be a matter of routine since thus "the Circuit Attorney would render useless the function of the Court of Criminal Correction in conducting preliminary examinations."

If the facts in similar cases of long detention —especially the cases cited by Judge FitzGibbon which the bar committee was asked to investigate—are as they were stated, similar conclusions probably are to be expected.

Little can be done to make up to these men the time in which they were unfairly held. But now that their cases have reached public attention, everything possible certainly should be done to make sure that they get early and fair trials. And it is to be hoped that the agreement to avoid such injustices henceforth will be observed most scrupulously.

Partnership in Park-Ride

Public Service Co.'s lightly-veiled hint that the city ought to help the company expand its park-ride lines merits serious study at City Hall.

The transit firm is thinking in terms of a ring of parking lots around the city for use by motorists who would park their machines there and then ride express busses downtown. This type of operation has proved surprisingly attractive to motorists. What is more it has helped keep a considerable number of automobiles out of the congested downtown district each day, and that is certainly in the public interest.

But the big question that seems to be holding up expansion of the park-ride program is: Who will pay for acquiring the additional lots? A good case could be made for the use of municipal funds for this purpose if municipal funds were available, which they are not.

An equally good case can be made for the use of Pubic Service Co. capital to start the operation. Once acquired with private funds the lots then might be dedicated to municipal use. This would shift the burden of maintenance to the city and free the property of municipal taxation, both of which represent substantial contributions by the city. There may be other ways in which the city could help the cause of mass transit in partnership with the company. The idea is worth examining in detail.

Because Kent Won't Swear

Could not the State Department, as its contribution to moderating the cold war, let up just a little on Rockwell Kent?

The 71-year-old artist of Ausable Forks, N.Y., is a prickly character, no doubt about that. He keeps refusing to swear, in applying for a passport, that he is not a Communist. The State Department knows he is not, says Kent, because he has said so under oath in a New York court. But the State Department insists that he swear again, for its exclusive benefit. Kent will not swear. And so he cannot get a passport which he doesn't want, on account of having spent all his money for lawyers, so he says.

It is hard to take the whole business seriously. Does anybody in the State Department actually consider Rockwell Kent a menace to the national security? If not, why cannot the department disentangle itself from red tape long enough to close the whole controversy in the sensible way?

France Considers Democracy

It takes an eye almost as fast as a magician's hand to keep up with the French parliament's notions as to when the next national elections are to be held. Having just allowed the upper house to kill Premier Faure's December elections bill, the National Assembly now has agreed to reconsider a bill passed by that chamber for elections in January. The Assembly did this even though it had three times previously rejected the measure.

The change of mind is victory for former Premier Mendes-France, whose influence again is rising, and probably for the French nation. The January bill provides for election of delegates by districts, a basic reform long resisted by the more partisan politicians.

Experience in Italy has shown that voters resent electoral regulations which produce results far out of line with the way ballots are marked. There is sympathy for those who were "cheated." Such rigged procedures simply are not democratic.

While premier, Mendes-France had an almost un-French way of attacking problems frontally. He has shown the same blunt courage in holding out for an electoral law which gives full weight even to votes for opponents. New election rules alone will not solve all the contradictions of the Fourth Republic but they could give France a representative parliament.

One Last, Hard Look

One day remains before St. Louis county goes to the polls Tuesday to decide on its $39,712,000 bond issue and its future progress.

In the remaining 24 hours every voter could take one last, hard look at the county as it is today and consider what it should be. What kind of county is it?

It is a county which in slightly more than a decade has grown from a rural conglomerate of small towns and farms to an urban size larger than Kansas City. Its population has doubled. Its public services are stretched beyond capacity.

Has St. Louis county caught up with its growth?

Look at the county streets in the rush hours of today. They are packed with vehicles wasting the time and money of their drivers.

Think of the vacant land fast disappearing under bulldozers while young and old need parks and play spaces.

Consider the lack of any decent place for neglected or delinquent children and space for the chronically or mentally ill.

Compare the slow voting procedures in Tuesday's referendum with the efficiency offered by voting machines.

The bond issue answers the county's growing deficits in expressways and roads and parks and welfare facilities and the basic instruments of a voting democracy.

The only answer to the bond issue should be a two-thirds YES vote. The law requires an overwhelming vote for passage. The county's needs require an overwhelming vote.

We hope every St. Louis county voter will go to the polls.

Vote YES on the county bond issue!

Fanfare for Fanforan

Fanforan IV shall henceforth be our favorite comeback. Three years ago this horse was adjudged worth only his weight in meat, and was delivered to the slaughterhouse. Marius Auteroch, the slaughterhouse proprietor, looked on the animal with the eye of hope. Sunday, Fanforan easily won the Prix George Brinquant race at Auteuil for Auteroch and brought him home the bacon to the tune of $5714. As Lyricist Sandy Wilson says in the current Broadway musical hit, The Boy Friend, "You're never too old" and "It's never too late." Whenever we are tempted to think that we are or it is, we shall think on Fanforan IV, and hit the comeback trail.

For the Benefit of Private Schools

In the strongest statement on the subject of aid for church schools they have yet issued, 208 prelates comprising the Roman Catholic hierarchy in the United States have called for equal church school rights to financial grants and aids now accorded public schools.

The statement of the conference of Cardinals, Archbishops and Bishops, issued in Washington Saturday, says that because church schools > emphatically are an integral part of the American education system and are carrying a large share of the educational burden, they have full right to be considered and dealt with as components of the system.

>
> The students of these schools have the right to benefits from those measures, grants or aids, which are manifestly designed for the health, safety and welfare of American youth, irrespective of the school attended.

There can be no question that the citizen who contributes to the support of church schools for his children in addition to the public school system must dig deep into his pockets. He feels a financial burden that others do not bear. Notwithstanding this extra burden on their adherents, church schools have made great strides in the United States, as the Catholic prelates themselves point out. Undoubtedly there are more modern well-equipped parochial schools in the United States than anywhere else in the world.

The Constitution of the United States which provides for free exercise of religion makes this possible. But the same constitutional provision, drawn by the Founding Fathers, also decrees the separation of church and state. The Supreme Court, in the New Jersey Everson case, said in 1947: "No tax in any amount, large or small, can be levied to support any religious activities or institutions, whatever they may be called, or whatever form they may adopt to teach or practice religion."

The wisdom of the architects of our religious liberty has been demonstrated through our history which shows little in the way of religious controversy as compared with the history of nations where church and state have been intertwined. Argentina, Belgium, Hungary, Spain, Italy, Colombia—these and other countries have had troubles in recent months over church-state relationships.

Increased agitation for financial aid for private schools will inevitably create increased opposition, as for example the public meeting addressed by Paul Blanshard Sunday afternoon at the St. Louis Scottish Rite Cathedral. The one safe course for all religious groups—and there are more than 260 of them in the United States—is for all to keep their church schools free from state support and hence free from the evils of state interference.

The British Pajama Game

The British public has by and large never heard of Western sandwiches, the Chicago White Sox or Fulton Lewis Jr. References to these elements of the United States scene had to be changed before the musical show "The Pajama Game," which recently played St. Louis, could be presented in London.

Western sandwiches were changed to just plain sandwiches. The Chicago White Sox were changed to the New York Yankees. And Mr. Lewis Jr. was simply omitted, a change which many on this side of the water as well would regard as improving the general level of intelligibility.

A final Americanism which had to be changed to a Briticism, according to the New York Herald Tribune, was the line referring to a haughty employe of the pajama factory as being able to "sew a button on the fly like she was pouring tea for the Queen of England." This was changed to "pouring tea in the White House," which seems a very successful tit for tat. Thus altered, it is felt that "The Pajama Game" will suit the British very well.

An Appraisal of Geneva

The Mirror of Public Opinion

While Big Four foreign ministers failed to reunify Germany or plan disarmament, they had not expected such success; what they did do was to clarify East-West relations without war talk; neither side will surrender, but negotiation remains possible.

Joseph C. Harsch, Washington Correspondent, in The Christian Science Monitor

In terms of popular hopes and even expectations the sequel to the summit meeting has been a failure.

The Foreign Ministers came to Geneva four months "after" and failed to unify Germany or to make any substantial progress toward reducing the burden of armaments.

However, I would submit that in the larger sense this conference has not been a failure, but a most useful clarifier of the true state of affairs in the world.

Joseph C. Harsch

It could have achieved popular hopes and expectations only if, in fact, the forces which impel the East and West and which have caused their differences had by this time lost their energy, their vitality and their momentum.

Western society may be on the defensive in some places in the world, but it is also on the offensive. It has brought a higher standard of living to Western Europe than it ever had before. It has generated new solutions to old problems.

It long since has ceased to be what the prophets of Communism assumed it was. It is in forward motion. It is by no means ready to concede to Moscow and to Communism either all the territories which they hold or the supremacy over the minds of mankind which they seek.

Communist society is, I believe, less energetic and less vital than Western society. A strong case can be made that its momentum is declining and its appeal recessive. But the time has not come when its own converts and acolytes are willing to concede this to be the case.

There is no doubt but that the men of Moscow today believe that they, too, have gained a new vitality and a new momentum. They are far from ready to concede that their wave is receding.

Because both systems retain vitality it was axiomatic from long before this second meeting at Geneva began that it would not be able to agree on the reunification of Germany.

That country is now divided. It really can be unified only if either the West gives up West Germany or the East gives up East Germany. Yet the West would concede its own decadence if it gave up West Germany and Moscow would concede the recessiveness of Communism if it gave up East Germany.

Neither West nor East is ready to make any such concession to the other, or could make it and remain true to its faith in itself.

The fact is that the diplomats who prepared the plans for this Geneva conference did not believe seriously for one moment that the Foreign Ministers would be able to agree on the unity of Germany.

They all know that some time Germany will be put together again. That time can come about from several possible changes in the present shape of the world.

It could come about on Moscow terms if the West were to fall apart. It could come about on Western terms if Communism were to lose its vitality and if the Soviet state became so preoccupied with other matters that it no longer could afford the effort necessary to hold East Germany.

Or it could come about by a mutual withdrawal of both from Central Europe. But none of those three conditions have appeared yet.

I long have believed that the process which began at the summit could at most regulate and limit and restrain the weapons and the tactics of the process we call the cold war. What has happened at this second affair at Geneva has confirmed the correctness of this view.

The cold war has not been intensified. Personal politeness has remained in the behavior of the diplomats. Without doubt there will be an increasing flow of peoples and ideas between East and West.

No one rattled atomic bombs at this conference. But the purposes of both sides remain what they were. We wish to make the world safe for our way of Western life. The men of Moscow wish to make the world safe for their way of life. The two are in competition.

The results of the competition lie very far in the future. One or the other may win. Both may grow weary and become recessive. But the contest goes on. The most that can be achieved is a limitation of weapons and tactics. Geneva has usefully clarified these facts.

Bacon and Eggs for Baby

From The New York Herald Tribune

If 9-week-old babies could read, they would undoubtedly be overjoyed at today's news, which is that infants of this age are now entitled to bacon and eggs. The bearer of these glad tidings is a Miami pediatrician reporting to the annual convention of the Southern Medical Association.

After experimenting with 700 babies, the good doctor has arrived at the conclusion that babies are best off when they get solid foods almost from birth, begin to eat three meals a day at the age of 10 weeks, and give up their midnight bottles early.

Since the problem of infant feeding has long been a profound concern of mankind, parents will turn with interest and hope to this latest discovery. The next things for the doctors to attack are certain other related problems, such as how to induce baby to eat his bacon and eggs instead of spreading them around his face or throwing them on the floor.

Respect for breakfast comes to man relatively late in life; in his adolescent years he frequently prefers sleeping to eating, and many a youthful breakfast is never consumed before noon.

Babies, of course are never so unpredictable as at meal time. The tastiest of dishes, even including a miniature serving of bacon and eggs, can produce no reaction other than a cold stare, while the strangest assortment of odds and ends will frequently be gobbled up without the slightest coaxing.

One cannot help suspecting that the 700 babies involved in the doctor's experiments reacted in 700 different ways, and probably enjoyed the whole business no end. And as for the rule against midnight feeding, there's no use in the scientists telling it to the parents. What is needed is someone to tell it to the baby.

'A TRUCE, NOT PEACE.'

From the Montreal Star.

If the Russians want anything, it is a truce, not peace. They want a standstill. They do not want a settlement now, for such a settlement would not go their way. They are, as Mr. Khrushchev said at the July 4 garden party, prepared to wait.

Between Book Ends

The Colorful Colonel Cody

BUFFALO BILL AND THE WILD WEST, by Henry Blackman Sell and Victor Weybright. (Oxford, 278 pgs., $4.95.)

During the past several years there seems to have been a revival of interest in the Buffalo Bill story, with several good biographies of the colorful Colonel and an excellent one on Annie Oakley, the star of his Wild West Show, appearing in print. All of America should know the story by now, at least all who are interested and another biography of the famous frontiersman might seem to be overdoing it a bit.

Henry B. Sell

Nothwithstanding, Henry Blackman Sell, editor of Town and Country and Victor Weybright, editor-in-chief of The New American Library of World Literature, have combined their writing talents and their tremendous admiration for Buffalo Bill, to write a surprisingly good, fast-moving narrative which tells of the fantastic rise and slow decline of Buffalo Bill, who was suddenly thrust into the limelight by his buffalo hunts, became a folk hero as an Indian fighter and then began a 43-year career as super-showman.

This first pictorial biography of Col. Cody is lavishly illustrated with a four-color frontispiece, 137 halftones and 39 line cuts, which seem to capture all the color of Buffalo Bill and the Wild West show that made him famous. All in all it is a delightful item of Western Americana. ARMAND W. REEDER.

Way to a Child's Heart

SCRIBBLING, DRAWING, PAINTING, by Wolfgang Grozinger (Frederick A. Praeger, $4.)

Mr. Grozinger introduces adults to the inner sanctum of their children through art. Many fond parents may learn through these pages the true value of art expression as it applies to their children. The value in helping them to acquire the stature of well rounded individuals by freedom of expression on big sheets of paper, free also of parental criticism and insistence that all drawn forms must resemble known objects.

This book is for all parents and teachers, and applies to all children. The author carefully traces the artistic efforts of the child from the first scribble to the last scrabble. The text is well illustrated and replete with helpful information—mostly concerned with convincing parents they should cease trying to be helpful. Their role is to consist mainly of supplying the crayons, water colors, and paper—and allowing junior to carry on from there.

Those parents interested in the subject of junior's drawings should let Mr. Grozinger's text illuminate them and not ask junior to throw the switch.

Sir Herbert Read sums it up beautifully in his foreword to Mr. Grozinger's efforts, "This is a wise little book poised somewhere between the love of children and the psychology of art"—but one might say equally well: somewhere between the love of art and the psychology of children. JOHN LONE.

A Pooch and His Master

MARMADUKE, by Brad Anderson and Phil Leeming. (Gilbert Press, $1.95.)

Marmaduke is a pooch of uncertain origin and irascible temper who makes himself disastrously at home with the family of his choice. These cartoons have him lugubriously sharing the bath with his master, riding in the carriage with the baby, watching television after the family has gone to bed, and generally making a canine nuisance of himself. Readers who hate dogs are likely to get a bigger kick out of this book than those who like them.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Kefauver Slim Hope to Stop Stevenson

CHICAGO.

THE SITUATION IN REGARD TO the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination has come around to this: Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee appears the only hurdle now between Adlai Stevenson and his renomination.

And the ground is rapidly being cut out from under the Tennessee Senator by certain circumstances and a series of developments, some of them the result of Stevenson maneuvers. The picture as it looks today is put together from reports by Democratic leaders — National Committee members, state chairmen and vice chairmen and governors — who gathered here from all over the country for the three-day party meeting to discuss issues, make rules for the convention next year, and jubilate in a monster fund-raising dinner.

Kefauver

DeSapio for Harriman.

Senator Kefauver's only hope of offering a real challenge to the 1952 Democratic candidate, the survey indicates, would be a direct appeal to the Democratic rank and file in primaries and, in such case, he would have to demonstrate commanding strength over Adlai Stevenson.

And then, it might be asked, what of Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, the third man in the race?

The New York Governor's boom is regarded by experts here as being deflated, and possibly beyond repair. Based initially on the psychological advantage always inherent in a Governor of New York, the strategy devised by its promoter, Carmine DeSapio, Tammany boss, was to expand this toe hold by tie-ups with other big city bosses and, for the breaks, to rely on second-choice pledges from delegations supporting other candidates to come to Gov. Harriman if their candidate fell by the wayside.

Next to Stevenson.

Carmine DeSapio now finds himself only in step with Carmine DeSapio as regards big city organization leaders. Col. JacobArvey of Chicago is in the Stevenson camp, and so is Mayor David Lawrence of Pittsburgh, while James A. Finnegan, the highly successful Philadelphia and Pennsylvania state political leader, is managing Adlai Stevenson's campaign for the nomination.

It may be said, however, that if for some reason the Stevenson campaign should blow up, Gov. Harriman probably would have the edge over Senator Kefauver as an alternative choice, though failure of the Stevenson movement probably would leave a confusing state of affairs from which a dark horse or a compromise candidate might benefit rather than either the Senator or the Governor.

As for Senator Kefauver: any "stop" movement, such as he would have to lead against Adlai Stevenson, has two possible sources from which to draw sustenance in the Democratic party, as has been demonstrated historically, though they usually fail.

One is big city machines. As we have seen, Adlai Stevenson has the bulk of support there; but, even if he didn't, the big city leaders never would go to Senator Kefauver, as was plainly demonstrated in the 1952 convention.

Bosses Against Senator.

That is because of their antipathy to the Senator for his exposure of big city machines in his investigation of racketeering and crime.

The other source is the South, which on occasion can unite in national conventions to achieve ends of its own. Senator Kefauver is not, in the first place, held in kind regard by Southern state leaders who are powerful at national conventions.

In the 1952 convention they stuck with Senator Richard Russell of Georgia. The Southern leaders are much more kindly disposed to Adlai Stevenson to whom, with four or five exceptions, they gave their support—if hardly vociferous or enthusiastic—in 1952.

There would be one possible avenue for Senator Kefauver to win support among Southern leaders. This would be for him to make compromises on pet Southern issues, such as civil rights, or to go conservative on economic and social measures.

But the Senator is not the kind to do anything like that as he has proved by his public record.

The other opportunity for the Senator is the state presidential preferential primaries. While he swept through a number of those in 1952, astounding the experts by the big popular vote he rolled up, he had little real opposition of any outstanding character in most of them.

Aware of Pitfalls.

In Adlai Stevenson, who did not participate in the 1952 primaries, Senator Kefauver would have a foe who has already demonstrated his own nationwide vote-getting abilities.

Whatever primaries Adlai Stevenson chooses to enter—and he has arranged for only one, Minnesota—will be carefully chosen and the campaign carefully organized.

Stevenson is aware of a possible pitfall in primary tests, aside from the other pitfalls which yawn continually for a front-running candidate who is so far in front, as he is, so early in the game.

URGES EQUAL RIGHTS ON SCHOOL BUSSES

Catholic Council Says Bar Violates Parents' Religious Freedom.

Adoption by the State Legislature of a school transportation plan to "assure equal provision for all children" was urged in a resolution adopted by the St. Louis Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Men at its fifth annual convention yesterday.

"We assert that any denial of transportation to school children because of a religious belief, as manifested by attendance at a particular school, violates the religious freedom of their parents, imposes an unjust economic hardship, and unjustly interferes with their freedom of such choice," the resolution stated.

J. E. Taylor's Opinion.

In a talk before the 1200 delegates at Rosati-Kain High School, former Missouri Attorney General J. E. Taylor said: "I believe it would not only be right but proper to pay for the cost of transporting all pupils to all schools out of the general revenue fund."

Discussing an opinion by the Missouri Supreme Court in a case involving use of public funds for transporting school children, Taylor, who is a Protestant, stated:

"The court did not hold and, in view of the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Everson case, in my opinion, could not have held that transportation of students to a sectarian school, at public expense, was the furnishing of aid to a church or school controlled by a church or religious creed."

He said transportation of pupils at public expense is a valid exercise of the police power of the state rather than an aid to either public or private schools.

Talk by Msgr. DeBlanc.

Msgr. Irving A. DeBlanc, assistant director of the family life bureau, National Catholic Welfare Conference, urged the delegates, in the keynote address, to promote Christian family life.

"So many would rather have children on their consciences than on their laps," he said.

George E. Helfers was re-elected president of the council. Other officers elected were: Dr. Raymond Paul, vice president; J. Stuart MacLellan, recording secretary; John J. Kinealy, corresponding secretary; Horace A. Prosser, treasurer; and O. Jack Hentrich, marshal.

GRIMMS EXHIBIT NEW SCULPTURE, POTTERY

Husband-and-Wife Show Opens at the People's Art Center.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

Raymond and Jere Meisel Grimm, young scholarship-winning graduates of Washington University School of Fine Arts, opened their second husband-and-wife exhibition of clay sculpture and pottery yesterday at the People's Art Center, 3657 Grandel square. Included are 77 original pieces marked by fresh combinations of glazes, colors, textures and forms.

Although fanciful essays are not absent from the new show, it reflects increased emphasis on deepening the technical resources of the ceramist's art in its diverse array of vases, bowls, pitchers, bottles and small animal sculptures. To the creation of utilitarian objects the Grimms bring artistic invention and a reluctance ever to repeat their designs.

Their first show at the center was held a year ago after summer study at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, one of the country's leading centers for the design of pottery. Since September, both exhibitors have been continuing their work at Southern, where Grimm is a graduate assistant in the School of Fine Arts art department.

Grimm, who contributes about three fourths of the pieces shown, reaches a climax in his coil-built "Hippopotamus," sculptural in form and invested with a certain bigness of concept despite its small size. It is finished in a rich green gloss over black rectangular markings. His wheel-thrown animals achieve satisfying blockiness of form but are less interesting in texture and color.

Jere Grimm's "Horse," with its diminutive head and neck and massive body, is in lighter vein than most of the show and yet seems related, in its feeling for form, to the horse sculptures of Marino Marini. Her "Tattooed Lady," one of the most highly decorated of the pieces, is a triple-necked jug, made more to be seen and handled than to be used.

Grimm's larger clay sculptures, "Man and Child" and "St. Martin de Porres," both using expressionist intensification of form, seem out of keeping with the rest of the exhibition, mainly given over to decorative arts.

These two large works would probably have greater emotional impact in a display restricted to oil painting and sculpture.

U.S. SCHOOL AID NOT NEEDED, SAYS RESEARCH GROUP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (UP)—The American Enterprise Association said yesterday that every state in the nation is financially able to provide better schools and higher teacher salaries without federal aid.

In a study entitled "Federal Aid to Education," the association said that if the next session of Congress votes for school aid it will not be "because the states are unable to provide for the schools or because the American people wanted it."

Approval of such legislation would show only that "the distortions and propaganda of the federal aid zealots have gone unchallenged," it said.

The study was prepared by Roger Freeman, who directed reesarch on education problems for President Eisenhower's Commission on Inter-governmental Relations. Freeman now is assistant to Gov. Arthur B. Langle of the state of Washington.

The American Enterprise Association describes itself as a non-partisan research organization that "examines the implications of current and prospective legislative proposals." It was organized in 1943 by "a group of industrial leaders in collaboration with" members of Congress and educators.

$100,000 DYSTROPHY FUND DRIVE BEGINS

More than 10,000 volunteer workers today began calling at homes in the St. Louis area for contributions to the 1955 Muscular Dystrophy Campaign. Chairman Elmer M. Kerckhoff said goal of the one-week drive is $100,000.

Funds raised will be used primarily for research in the fatal disease, for which there is no known cure, Kerckhoff declared.

"Victims of muscular dystrophy can only hope expanded scientific research in time will spare their lives, even if it is too late to repair muscle tissue laid waste by one of the most formidable diseases known to medical science," he said.

Mrs. Walter Boerner, president of the St. Louis chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, has estimated there are more than 1000 children in this area with the disease.

Both Washington and St. Louis universities are currently conducting research work in the field of muscular dystrophy.

Dr. Edwin F. Gildea heads a research program at Washington University that has received more than $73,000 in grants from the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

St. Louis University operates a therapy clinic headed by Dr. Otakar Machek for the treatment of dystrophy patients, whose bills are paid by the St. Louis chapter of the association.

TRUE D. MORSE URGES JOBS FOR SMALL FARMERS

St. Louisan Points to Factories in North Carolina Rural Low-Income Area.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) —Under Secretary of Agriculture True D. Morse of St. Louis suggested today more industry for the low-income farm areas as a means of raising the standard of living for many families making less than $1000 a year.

Morse told the Senate-House Economic subcommittee studying the low-income problem that the condition is concentrated in agriculture.

"Less than one fifth of the farmers in areas of low rural income produced and sold (as much as) $2500 worth of products in 1949," he said.

In reply to a question from Senator Ralph Flanders (Rep.), Vermont, Morse said low-income farmers can spuplement their livelihood through jobs in factories if industry moves to these areas.

Cites North Carolina.

In the Asheville (N.C.) mountain area, Morse said, there are 10 large factories giving employment to families who can continue to live on their small farms.

Morse testified that there are large number of rural families with incomes so low they cannot afford the goods and services "most of us take for granted."

Many of them, he said, need special aid if they are to improve their standard of living.

Average schooling of adults on farms is seven years, he said, and, "there are few outside jobs and little use of machinery on low income farms."

Tells of Efforts.

Morse said efforts are being made to help farmers in this situation.

"In co-operation with the Department of Agriculture and other federal departments, state and local agricultural leaders are encouraging small farmers to better their operations," he said.

"They are conducting research on problems of small-farm production and living. They have initiated programs of community improvement to raise the economic level of entire areas."

Morse said an organized, long-term program has been started to improve standards of living in the low-income rural areas. He reported "important progress" with over 27 states participating.

"This is most encouraging and shows the determination of state and local leaders to move forward," he said.

Farm Bureau Proposal.

The American Farm Bureau Federation suggested more productive capacity on the farm and more jobs elsewhere as means of helping low-income farmers. Matt Triggs, assistant legislative director, outlined the bureau's stand in testimony prepared for the subcommittee.

Existence of depressed rural areas, Triggs said, "is basically a problem of underemployment and low per capita farm production."

Triggs said improved employment opportunities in rural areas would help to ease the situation. He said there is need, too, to help train some farm workers for industrial and other jobs.

Charge by A.D.A.

The Americans for Democratic Action charged in a letter to subcommittee Chairman John J. Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, that the Eisenhower Administration has "heartlessly neglected" the nation's poor.

Edward D. Hollander, A.D.A.'s national director, said one of every five or six families in the United States lives "at or below the poverty line." Terming that a "national disgrace," Hollander added:

"The facts of the extent of poverty in America expose the cruel flaws in our prosperity and in the Administration's policies under which the well-to-do have grown richer while the poor remain poor or grow poorer."

Triggs, in proposing a program to improve the economic and social condition of depressed rural areas, listed such recommendations as: Improved education...l opportunities, creation of economic-sized farm units, avoidance of national farm programs, efficient use of land for timber production, more specific and protected rights to utilize water resources, movement of industry to areas of rural unemployment, and avoidance of federal "wage fixing."

He said high minimum wages could "discourage in a major way the development of industry in depressed rural areas."

"By such action," he said, "we insure the preservation of rural poverty in many areas that could be significantly alleviated if we were to permit and encourage the employment of surplus workers in such areas."

KOREA AND U.S. BUSINESS MEN END TAX DISPUTE

SEOUL, Nov. 21 (UP)—The Republic of Korea and the United States today reached "complete agreement" ending the four-omnth-old tax dispute involving American business men in Korea, a United States spokesman announced.

The United States Embassy said in a statement that a draft of an agreed memorandum had been drawn up. Details were not disclosed.

The announcement came after American Charge d'Affaires Carl F. Strom and his aids met with ROK Finance Minister Kim Hyun Chul.

ROK taxation bureau chief Kim Man Ki told newsmen that under the agreement the ROK Government would readjust the tax bills which foreign businessmen have charged were "exorbitant and unfair." He said the ROK Government agreed not to levy sales taxes on foreign transactions but collect commission taxes instead. The sales tax has been the most controversial point in the dispute.

The Americans were said to have agreed to pay retroactive taxes, some of which date back two years. Previously they had firmly refused to pay taxes in arrears.

WEST POINTER TRIED AS A COLLABORATOR

FORT LEWIS, Wash., Nov. 21 (UP)—Lt. Col. Paul Von Liles today became the first West Pointer ever to be court-martialed on a charge of collaborating with the enemy when he went on trial accused of helping his Communist captors in Korea.

Liles, a much-decorated 39-year-old Army officer, was seized by the Chinese Communists in Korea Oct. 28, 1950. He will attempt to prove he was devising a "master escape plan" for the prisoners of P.O.W. Camp 12, where for a time he was senior American officer.

"To make the plan work. I had to be friendly to the captors," he explained.

Liles, whose home is in Birmingham, Ala., was serving as military advisor to the Second Regiment of the Republic of Korea's Sixth Division when he was captured near Onjon, about 50 miles south of the Yalu river. He was freed Sept. 1, 1953, in Operation Big Switch.

The court-martial board is headed by Brig. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, who formerly taught military tactics at West Point. Six colonels and five lieutenant colonels make up the rest of the board membership.

Defending Liles was Lt. Col. Leslie E. Dixon, who successfully defended Lt. Jefferson Erwin, an Oklahoma career soldier, who was acquitted here of charges similar to those against Liles.

Lt. Col. William R. Cohen was handling the Army's case against Liles.

The court-martial was expected to last about 30 days, with 80 witnesses.

5 REPORTED DEAD, 225 HURT IN NEW BOMBAY RIOTING

BOMBAY, India, Nov. 21 (UP) Bombay seethed in a pitched battle between armed police and stone-throwing demonstrators today. Five persons were reported killed, at least 225 wounded and more than 1000 rioters were arrested.

It was the second successive day of violence touched off by Marathi-speaking Indians with Communist and Socialist backing protesting against Prime Minister Nehru's decision to create a separate Bombay city state out of the big west coast port.

More than 100 persons were injured in rioting yesterday.

Gangs milled through the streets, stoning busses and trains, and barricading streets with boulders.

Police and home guard forces first wilted under a barrage of stones, then raised their rifles and fired at the demonstrators trying to reach the state legislature building. The crowd set fire to three busses, then attacked firemen called to fight the fires.

G.M.-FORD FEUD OVER PRESIDENT ROCKING G.O.P.

down, Hall got them to agree to a political truce. Feikens promised to add General Motors friends to the Michigan state campaign committee. Summerfield, in turn, agreed to use his influence to bring General Motors back into the Republican money fold.

The peace, however, turned out to be only temporary. Next day, word got back to the National Committee that Summerfield was castigating both Hall and Feikens with the same old fervor.

Meanwhile in Michigan, the General Motors faction was insisting on running ex-Congressman Kit Clardy, an out-and-out McCarthyite, for the House seat he lost last year. The Ford faction considers Clardy too pro-McCarthy—an opinion shared by the White House.

* * *

The General Motors-Ford rift goes back to the 1952 Republican convention when the General Motors group campaigned for Taft and the Ford organization backed Gen. Eisenhower. Wilson, then General Motors president, personally stayed on the fence. Summerfield, however, organized the Michigan delegation into a neutral bloc, which he was ready to bargain away to the highest political bidder. The deadlock was finally broken when the Eisenhower forces made a deal to name Summerfield national Republican chairman if he would swing Michigan to Gen. Eisenhower.

Ford leaders were bitterly opposed to Summerfield's appointment. They didn't want him either as G.O.P. National Chairman or as a member of the Eisenhower cabinet, on the ground that he was tied up with the General Motors right-wing crowd. Summerfield promised he would divorce himself from the intra-party politics and concentrate on running the post office.

Nevertheless he continued to pull political strings through his son, Bud, who remained in Michigan, and through his General Motors friends. Bud, with General Motors backing, led a fight to overthrow Feikens as state chairman and install a General Motors protege, Arthur Iverson. Ford intervened: he threw his resources behind Feikens and won the showdown.

This led to the General Motors boycott which exploded into open hostility against the Eisenhower wing of the party shortly after the President's heart attack.

General Motors Vice President Steve Du Brule, political legman for Curtice, has been working with the so-called Taft wing to take the G.O.P. presidential nomination away from the Eisenhower forces. Another General Motors vice president, Harry Anderson, is playing footsie with the McCarthyites.

On the other side, Henry Ford II is vigorously supporting the liberal or Eisenhower wing of the party. He has asked for no political favors in Washington. His enthusiasm for President Eisenhower borders on idolization.

Clean-Up of New York Docks Is No Joke Now to Hoodlums

Gangsters Laughed When Reform Move Began Two Years Ago but Today They Are Fighting for Survival.

By JACK LOTTO

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (INS) —Widespread snickering met the start of "Operation Clean-Up" on the mob-ruled New York-New Jersey waterfront two years ago.

The laughs are gone now.

Today a grim struggle for survival in the seven-billion-dollar-a-year industry is under way. The opponents are the Bi-State Waterfront Commission and the gangster elements who still impose a somewhat weakened grip on the greatest port in the world.

New attention is being focused on the struggle because a hot political fight is raging over the ouster recently of one of the two commissioners.

Back in 1953 you couldn't convince the shipping line executives, leaders of the hoodlum - dominated International Longshoremen's Association and thousands of victimized longshoremen that there would be great changes.

50 Years of Failure.

Reform moves for 50 years which had started well and then fizzled dismally had made them cynical.

This time, however, they reckoned without the iron-willed determination of the two men selected for the herculean task of bringing law and order to the 1500-square mile waterfront long under gangster control.

The pair selected by the Governors of New York and New Jersey to eliminate the port's crime, corruption, and exploitation were Lt. Gen. George P. Hays of New York and Joseph Weintraub of New Jersey.

When they finally realized the commissioners really meant business, the ILA—kicked out of the AFL for being racket-dominated—used every device at its command to fight them.

Court actions, wildcat strikes, full-scale port shutdowns, political pressure, cries of "gestapo," claims of union busting, and picketing met every commission reform move—unsuccessfully.

Fireworks Over Ouster.

Harriman's enemies insisted the move was the result of pressure exerted by the ILA, which supported him during his campaign.

Republican leaders described the Oct. 31 ouster as "a Tammany plan to destroy the effectiveness of the commission and deliver control of the docks to the gangster-dominated ILA."

The governor, while praising Hays, an appointee of former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, retorted it was "not proper" to put military men in a "quasi-judicial" post. The brunt of the Democratic counter-attack came from Tammany Hall leader Carmine De Sapio. He blamed "12 years of Republican administration under Dewey" for waterfront troubles.

When the commission set up its first office in a downtown building it was under orders to implement legislation designed to wipe out racketeering that added an estimated half billion dollars a year to the cost of goods moving through the port's 1500 piers.

Key Steps Listed.

The key steps listed were:

(1) Abolition of the so-called "shapeup" method of selecting longshoremen on the docks each morning. This was to be replaced by state-operated hiring halls.

(2) Registration of all longshoremen, licensing of stevedore companies and barring those with recent criminal records.

(3) Outlawing the public loading racket which was adding $20,000,000 a year to the costs of shippers — and ultimately the public.

How well the commissioners are doing their job can be judged by the fact all the "must" programs have come to life. Thirteen hiring halls have replaced the "shape," in which men gathered in a circle to be chosen. The older method, the commission said, "gave the ILA virtual life-or-death powers over every man who seeks his livelihood on the waterfront."

This was because the hiring agents, mostly former convicts under the thumb of the union, had the say on who got a day's work. Under such conditions extortion, kickbacks, thefts and loansharking was the order of the day.

Registration of longshoremen underscored this evil. Forty thousand men signed up to show their availability during a period when the port employed only 23,000 at its peak periods.

To end the imbalance, the commissioners, after public hearings, required that longshoremen, to remain eligible, must have worked or applied for work eight days in each month. This was designed to eliminate the occasional dock worker who showed up solely for supplemental earnings or lucrative overtime employment.

By this method of guaranteeing some permanency to longshoremen the commission, by last month, had the list down to 26,461. About 760 were barred from the waterfront for criminal records.

The ILA, met by the challenge of the commission and a new AFL longshoremen union which barely lost a representative election, announced it was cleaning house.

Into the top union post moved 52-year-old William V. Bradley. Now a grandfather, he had been brought up in an orphanage before he became a deck hand at 14. Bradley, who became president shortly after the ILA was expelled from the AFL in September 1953, had headed a tugboatmen local since 1935. Waterfront experts said Bradley, who had a spotless record, was just a figurehead.

Patrick J. (Packy) Connolly, executive vice president, and actual powerhouse of the ILA, is still riding high. Connolly, also president of "pistol" Local 824, admitted before the State Crime Commission in 1953 that he freely mingled union money in his own bank account.

While in his union post, Connolly helped organize the Allied Stevedoring Corp. and was its first president in 1945.

Former-convict Mickey Bowers, boss of the midtown west side waterfront, later became secretary-treasurer of the firm.

Harold (Dutch) Bowers, cousin of Mickey, is business agent of Local 824, which covers all the luxury liner piers from West Forty-fourth to Fifty-seventh streets.

Another waterfront power is Theodore (Teddy) Gleason, general organizer for the ILA. He was held as a material witness in the waterfront murder of boss stevedore Anthony Hinz in 1947, and questioned about at least three killings.

"Tough Tony," Anthony Anastasia, boss of the Brooklyn waterfront, has been arrested many times but never convicted. His brother, Albert, was the notorious "enforcer" of a gang sometimes known as Murder, Inc. Tony recently was elected an international vice president of the ILA.

On the opposite side of the fence—and backed by 32 investigators who check on compliance with their regulations—are the equally tough commissioners.

Weintraub, former personal counsel to New Jersey's Gov. Robert Meyner, is a graduate of the slums of Newark and Cornell law school, where he had astronomical averages. His previous encounter with Hays was 30 years ago when the general was a captain in charge of ROTC training. Both agree good-humoredly that the 47-year-old attorney was the worst cadet in the college.

Mornings, before going to school, Weintraub sold pretzels on Newark street corners while his mother worked in a factory. He vividly recalls living on a thin slice of meat and two pieces of bread daily. For "fun," he and his four brothers and sisters chased big rats through their cold-water flat.

The friendly, chatty lawyer with the reputation of being a "defendant's man," spent his youth in the streets as a member of a tough slum gang.

Many of his friends ended up in prison and this fact influences his thinking even today.

"Whenever a longshoreman comes before me with a criminal record," the sharp-minded attorney mused, "I can never escape the thought that there but for the grace of God go I."

Hays showed how tough he was during the Berlin blockade of 1948-49 when he was deputy to Gen Lucius Clay. In backing up his boss, Hays strongly rejected suggestions of knuckling under to the Communists with this retort: "If we haul down the flag here we might as well haul it down everywhere east of Long Island."

Replacing Hays for a "strict but fair" lawyer's approach to waterfront law enforcement is another New Yorker who pulled himself up by his own bootstraps to the top legal post in the city.

McGrath went from selling vegetables from a pushcart to the job of corporation counsel and then campaign manager for Harriman.

IS YOUR HAIR GROWING or GOING?
Hair-loss is a matter of addition and subtraction. When the addition (new hair) fails to equal the subtraction (falling hair) you end up WITHOUT HAIR! Many authorities attribute hair-loss to a growth-choking keratin deposit in the hair follicle. Recent research, supervised by dermatologists, involving more than 200 clinic cases, resulted in a startling new technique of dissolving the keratin debris—now exclusively a part of Thomas treatment.

INVENTORIES DOWN DESPITE BIG OUTPUT

Ratio of Stocks on Hand to Sales Is Lowest in 10-Year Postwar Period.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (UP)—Booming sales are keeping goods from piling up in the nation's warehouses despite record production this year, the Department of Commerce reported today.

The department said manufacturers' and retailers' inventories—an important barometer of business conditions—tended to level off in the period from July to September.

There had been a steady rise in inventories during the first six months of the year.

The department's monthly survey of current business said manufacturers had enough stock to last about 49 days on Sept. 30. This compares with about 56 days of stocks on hand at the same date a year ago.

Retail inventories have been generally stable for the last year, except for automobiles, the department said.

Some economists have feared that zooming production this year could lead to jammed warehouses. This, they feared, would cause a drop in production and employment about the middle of next year.

Significantly, the Commerce Department placed the total value of manufacturing and retail inventories at the end of September at $79,600,000,000, or $1,400,000,000 less than the September 1953, record levels. However, they were up $2,700,000,000 from last year.

The department said production of durable goods, including automobiles, has climbed steadily during the year. But it said sales have outstripped production. Sales of non-durable goods also exceeded inventory buildups.

It said the ratio of stocks on hand to sales at the end of September was 1.7 months, or "the lowest ratio" in the post-World War II decade. In September, 1954, the ratio was 2.17 months.

From September, 1954, to September of this year, the total value of all goods and services produced by the nation's businesses increased from an annual rate of $358,800,000,000 to $391,500,000,000, or 9 per cent.

In the first nine months of this year, less than 1 per cent of the gross national product went into inventories.

EDWARDSVILLE ASKS FOR AID IN KEEPING COMMUTER TRAIN

Mayor George L. Moorman Jr. of Edwardsville has requested the assistance of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker in retaining what is left of Illinois Terminal Railroad commuter service between St. Louis and the Illinois community, and expanding it with a view toward helping to alleviate traffic congestion.

In a letter to Tucker, Moorman said that intermediate service, for shoppers and other visitors to St. Louis between rush hour periods, is practically non-existent. In addition, the former 34-minute service between the two cities has been so impaired that commuters arrive late to work in St. Louis and spend more than two hours getting home in the evening, he added.

As a result, Moorman said, many former commuters drive to St. Louis, alone or in car pools, adding to the city's traffic problems. "We believe it would be to our mutual benefit not only to keep the service we now have, but to do everything we can to encourage its expansion," he said.

TREASURY LIST OFF ON TIGHTER MONEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—United States Treasury bonds retreated 4-32 to 6-32 in both long-range and intermediate issues in quiet trading today. Dealers said the decline reflected tighter money condition following the boost in the rediscount rate.

Utility issues moved up in a narrowly mixed corporate bond market.

Near the close, Consolidated Edison 3s of 1963 were quoted at 193½, up 6. Detroit Edison 3¼s or 1969 jumped 2¾ at 142⅜. Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric 3¼s gained 1 at 101½.

Italian dollar liens climbed while German and Japanese issues worked lower in an irregular foreign list.

The Bank of Canada raised its discount rate to 2¾ per cent from 2¼ per cent set Oct. 12. This marks the first time since February that the Canadian level has been higher than the United States Federal Reserve rediscount rate. There was no official explanation but the boost apparently was made to attract American capital in support of the Canadian dollar which has fallen to par from a premium of nearly 3 cents at the beginning of the year.

LONDON MARKET QUIET

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—The London Stock Exchange was quiet today, traders apparently being wary of the possibility that the government may impose stronger anti-inflationary measures.

Government securities receded and were followed by colonial and dominion issues. But there was fresh support for Japanese bonds, and they finished higher.

Industrial shares found less interest and trading was spotty. Steels and aircrafts eased off, but leading stores were somewhat stronger.

BUY YOURSELF A BARGAIN NEXT TUESDAY!

Passage of the County Bond Issue Will Give You a LOT for a LOW COST

Bring St. Louis County Up to Date Vote Yes for All Eight!

St. Louis County residents have an opportunity to buy a bargain package when they go to the polls to vote on the proposed Bond Issue next Tuesday. If passed, the county Bond Issue will provide a completely integrated and modern road, street and expressway system. In addition, hospital, health, and recreational facilities throughout the county will be modernized. Most important, all of this will be provided at a low cost to the individual taxpayer.

LOW COST If approved, the extensive rehabilitation program will cost the individual citizen approximately 13 cents per hundred dollars of assessed real estate value. For example, if a house is valued for tax purposes at $2,400, the total tax increase for a year will amount to $3.12—only 26c a month. Think of it! Think of what you'll be getting for this small yearly sum. The Bond Issue will provide a modern system of roads, streets and expressways. Driving will be a pleasure instead of a nightmare.
Also, modern hospital and recreational facilities will be constructed. Our neglected and delinquent children will be better cared for.
Summed up, a successful Bond Issue election will mean that St. Louis County will truly be a wonderful place in which to live . . . work . . . raise our families.

FEDERAL AND STATE FUNDS To pass, the eight proposals contained in the Bond Issue need two out of every three votes cast. Failure to take advantage of this opportunity will be a tragic step backwards. Federal and state funds, which have been set aside for Bond Issue proposals, will be directed to other communities. For every dollar that the county spends on expressways, federal and state governments will contribute more than $6.50! If St. Louis County fails to take advantage of these extra monies, other communities in Missouri will. That would mean that St. Louis County residents, who pay their share of these road-building funds, would not participate in the benefits. The money would be spent in places like Kansas City, which, though smaller than St. Louis County, has already received millions of dollars in federal and state funds for expressways.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY Next Tuesday, do your part. Help bring St. Louis County up to date. The improvements and modernization programs called for in the Bond Issue are desperately needed. Remember: whether your community takes a big step forward into a prosperous and bright future, or retreats into a second rate status is up to you. VOTE YES FOR ALL EIGHT!

Here's what your votes will buy . . .

YES 1. Mark Twain, Daniel Boone and Ozark expressways and an Outer Belt expressway running north and south. County's cost: $8,500,000. The great bulk of the cost is paid by State and Federal governments.

YES 2. Welfare Center for the temporary care and study of neglected children before they are placed in foster homes or returned to their families. Also, a Detention Home for delinquent children. Total cost: $800,000.

YES 3. Increase traffic safety and reduce traffic jams throughout St. Louis County by widening, straightening and generally repairing county roads, streets, bridges and grade crossings. Cost: $9,837,000.

YES 4. 100 playgrounds or athletic fields. Substantial number of roadside picnic grounds. Cost $2,200,000.

YES 5. 400 voting machines. This would reduce chances of fraud, speed up the vote count and eliminate spoiled ballots. Cost: $675,000.

YES 6. An 18-mile, 4-lane limited-access highway from northeast to southeast—all of right of way and part of construction. Cost: $16,100,000.

YES 7. 150 beds for the chronically ill and 50 beds for temporary care of mental patients in St. Louis County Hospital. Improvements to present hospital facilities: New Health Department Building and apartment for resident physicians on hospital staff. Cost: $1,500,000,

YES 8. Civil Defense Control Center Building and air raid warning signals for unincorporated areas. Cost: $100,000.

British Genius to Unveil Auto To 'Revolutionize Transport'

Millionaire Harry Ferguson's Invention Reported to Have Interest of His Government

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Something's cooking down in Stow-on-the-Wold, the sleepy English village where a millionaire genius named Harry Ferguson is plotting revolution.

Ferguson is the former tractor tycoon who pocketed $9,250,000 from the Ford Motor Co. in a patent infringement action.

For two years now he's been putting his mind and his millions to what his assistants have called "a completely new system of motor transport—something that will revolutionize transportation."

Until yesterday only rumors came out of Ferguson's hideout—tales of weird-looking vehicles flashing down country lanes at night, talk of a "people's car," to be sold for peanuts, or of a fantastic new engine that uses no gears and little fuel.

Now, it seems, Ferguson is ready to put his brainchild before the world. A statement yesterday from his mansion home announced he has completed "the entire range of Ferguson inventions" and is ready to demonstrate them "in actual prototype vehicles ready for production."

"British manufacturers," the statement said, "will be given the first opportunity to make them."

So far Ferguson, 71 years old, has shown off his new baby only to a handful of men in high places. Among them were the Duke of Edinburgh and top industrialists.

Signs are that the British government is intensely interested.

Sir Miles Thomas, dynamic chief of the state-owned British Overseas Airways Corp., has joined the Ferguson outfit as a director. A BOAC announcement said Thomas, an old hand in the motor industry, takes on his added responsibilities with full approval of the transport ministry.

Government interest apparently springs from two sources:

1. Britain is jealous of the success of Germany's Volkswagen automobile in lucrative export markets.

2. NATO authorities are reported eager to standardize their military vehicles used by European armies, and Britain would like standardization on a British model.

Thomas, on joining Ferguson, said he had seen Ferguson prototypes in competition with "the best that Germany, Italy, Australia, America or indeed any country has produced."

He was reported "convinced that the Ferguson car can outstrip them all, not only on roads, but in sand, mud, snow and ice."

Ferguson's aids likewise are convinced they are on a winner. Said J. M. Thompson, managing director of one of the Ferguson organizations:

"It is not just a car which Mr. Ferguson and his company has produced, but a new principle on which all road vehicles, cars and trucks, will be manufactured in the future."

PUBS RELENT, BOYCOTT OFF

CRANMORE, COUNTY GALWAY, Ireland, Nov. 21 (UP)—The 300 residents of this village got their pint of beer at the old price of 17 cents today after boycotting all six pubs in the area.

Porter drinkers began walking four miles to the village of Clarengridge when local pub owners raised prices a penny a pint Wednesday. One by one the local pub owners restored the old price and residents did their drinking at their old haunts.

FUND AGENCY AIDS CRIPPLED MAN TO REALIZE AMBITION

Untrained and handicapped, he could not find work in St. Louis, until a social agency suggested he call at Goodwill Industries, a United Fund agency.

Goodwill Industries trained him in shoe work. He got a regular job with a St. Louis shoe company. At night he went to school in order to qualify as a teacher.

Thanks to the assistance of this organization, John is now teaching school, satisfying a life-long ambition. This would not have been possible without the help of the United Fund, which is now conducting its annual fund-raising drive.

Polish Leader in Exile Dies.

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Pomaz Arciszewski, 78 years old, a member of the council which heads the "state" maintained abroad by Polish exiles, died in a London hospital yesterday. He was chairman of the Polish Council of National Unity in Warsaw when he flew to London in 1944.

SPANISH FALANGISTS START RIOT IN ARGENTINE CHURCH

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 21 (AP)—Argentine Spaniards of opposing political beliefs rioted inside the Santo Domingo Roman Catholic Church yesterday.

The riot was touched off by a group of blue-shirted Spanish Falangists after mass had been said in memory of Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera, founder of the Spanish Falange. As the mass was concluded, a Spaniard leaped to his feet, shouting "long live Franco."

Spanish Republicans in the church immediately replied "long live the Spanish republic and freedom."

Within minutes the church was in a turmoil. Several persons were hurt before police arrived. None was arrested.

NEW HOLIDAY CARAFE DECANTER

Let's talk turkey about bourbon...

We don't claim Laurel was around when the Pilgrim fathers founded Turkey Day, but it has been a big home town favorite in St. Louis since 1874 . . . first in preference by more than 3 to 1 for the last six years!

Here's bourbon good as the best of nature's bounty can make it. The finest grains, the purest Kentucky spring water, aging in new charred oak barrels . . . it's been tailored just for St. Louis tastes from the same Conrad family formula for over fifty years. You can be sure of getting what whiskey experts call "continuity"... the same fine flavor in every drink. The same high quality in every drop, bottle, case or barrel, year after year.

Try Laurel Springs today. With the first smooth round taste, you'll be mighty thankful you did.

Give Thanks for Our Land of Plenty

Abundant Supplies Put Traditional Thanksgiving Items in Moderate Price Range.

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

THERE is not much question of what item will head most market lists this week. Turkey holds the spotlight, with plenty of tradition to justify its position. And right it is that the American bird should symbolize the American day of thanks.

Turkeys will pose no price problem this year. Supplies are excellent, and you will find them offered at just about the same prices, or perhaps a few cents higher, than a year ago. True, there are fewer of the small Beltsville turkeys this year, with supplies especially heavy on the medium and larger sizes. But even these junior-size birds will not be scarce. Quality on this year's crop of turkeys is excellent.

Should you prefer some other type of bird, we need not remind you that chickens are a real buy. Roasters will, of course, cost more than fryers but still won't be high.

However, you will pay a pretty penny for geese, which are very expensive. Capons, too, are bringing a fancy figure with ducks far from cheap.

Should you prefer meat rather than a bird, you will find that hams are an exceptionally good value, with fresh pork downright cheap, and no appreciable change in beef prices.

* * *

AND what about the other traditional Thanksgiving items — the cranberries, cauliflower, sweet potatoes and salad? No problem, homemakers, no problem at all.

The cranberry crop is the second largest on record, about one-third larger than average. So use this Pilgrim fruit freely and let the bright red berries add that "just right" tang to your turkey dinner.

Sweet potatoes are here aplenty from our own home-grown crop, from Tennessee, Texas and Louisiana. If you prefer rice it, too, is bountiful in this year of 1955.

Cauliflower is moderately priced, even for the fine Long Island 'flower, with some home-grown of good quality available still more reasonably.

Squash is a good old American favorite on this particular day, and you may choose from white, yellow, and zucchini with acorn also available and the butternut squash, which is slowly gaining in popularity in these parts.

Is a tossed salad to your liking? For something a little special consider Bibb lettuce — about double the price of leaf, but mighty fine. Iceberg may be a little higher. There are Florida romaine, escarole and endive with prices well in line; Louisiana shallots and Texas fresh green onions from which to choose. Vine-ripened tomatoes from California are a luxury item, but as full-flavored as in mid-summer.

Avocados are relatively cheap now, and what a gourmet touch they do add. Try them with grapefruit sections in lime gelatin. Add a few almonds if you wish, and serve with mayonnaise.

Grapes are another traditional Thanksgiving item. They are here in wide variety—Calmerias, Almerias, Olivettes (long white grapes tapered at both ends), Cornichons, Ribiers, Emperors and some Thompson seedless. Quality is generally very good; prices reasonable.

Other candidates for centerpiece or fruit cup are D'Anjou, Flemish Beauty or Bartlett pears, fresh pineapples, and almost any and every variety of apples.

Surely an impressive array; surely ample cause to remember the original reason for returning thanks for a bountiful harvest.

Traditional Bountiful Table

Bounty of the table symbolizes the many blessings which we remember gratefully on the day of thanks. Bowls of steaming hot soup—chicken rice, bouillon or onion—are followed with the majestic bird, cranberry cups, mashed potatoes, rolls and relishes.

IF OUR GREAT-GRANDMOTHERS found reason to give thanks on the annual November day of remembrance, how much more should today's homemaker count her blessings. For the ease with which she can prepare the traditional feast is reason enough for thanksgiving. The spiritual significance of the day is of prime importance, of course, but high on the list of material blessings are the modern foods which simplify and speed her meal preparation chores throughout the year.

Consider King Turkey, for example. He has improved so greatly in quality that he bears only a slight resemblance to the wild turkey of that first Thanksgiving. And he comes to the homemaker thoroughly cleaned inside and out—a matter which we take for granted, but which would have been almost a miracle to great-great-Grandma.

The size bird which you select will depend not only upon the size of your family and the number of guests with whom you plan to share your dinner on this day of thanks, but also upon whether you have a freezer, and upon how well your family likes the many delicious dishes which may be made from the left-over meat. Some of these are so tempting that many families purposely buy a larger bird than they can use at one meal with these repeat performances in mind. Other hostesses prefer to buy two of the small turkeys rather than one large bird, so that they may offer a choice of dressings.

Whichever size best fits your needs, do remember that a low roasting temperature assures excellent drippings, rich in color and flavor for the gravy, not burned or dried in the pan.

The Poultry and Egg National Board recommends that the bird be placed in a preheated slow oven (325 degrees). Do not sear; do not add water; do not cover.

Place the bird, breast up, on a rack at least one-half inch high in a shallow open pan. If a V-rack is used, place turkey breast down.

Take a piece of aluminum foil four to five inches longer than the turkey and lay over the bird. Pinch the foil at the drumstick and breast ends, pressing it lightly at those ends to anchor it. Leave the cap loose over the top and at the sides.

Or the turkey may be covered with fat-moistened cheesecloth large enough to cover the top and drape down on all sides. Do not wrap bird in the cloth. Aluminum foil or cloth helps in uniform browning. Basting is unnecessary. If the cheesecloth dries during the cooking, moisten with drippings in the bottom of the pan.

When the turkey is about two-thirds done, release the trussed legs to permit the heat to reach the inside thigh to assure thorough cooking.

At 325 degrees it will take a ready-to-cook weight whole bird about this long to roast. These approximate hours are for a stuffed bird.

Pounds.	Hours.
Six to eight	Three and three-fourths to four and one-half.
Eight to 10	Four to four and one-half.
Ten to 12	Four and one-half to five.
Twelve to 14	Five to five and one-fourth.
Fourteen to 16	Five and one-fourth to six.
Sixteen to 18	Six to six and one-half.
Eighteen to 20	Six and one-half to seven and one-half.
Twenty to 24	Seven and one-half to nine.

Bear in mind that these are approximate times; birds vary so that it may be necessary to increase or decrease total time slightly. If you want to serve at a definite hour, better start the bird 30 minutes earlier than the time prescribed for roasting to avoid possible delay. Also, the meat absorbs the juices and carves more easily if it "rests" for 20 or 30 minutes after coming out of the oven.

Do remember to purchase a frozen turkey far enough in advance to allow for thawing. An eight-pound turkey requires 15 to 20 hours in the refrigerator to thaw. A 20-pound bird will take at least two days in the refrigerator. Small and half turkeys may be thawed at room temperature if cooked immediately after thawing, but this method is not advisable for large birds, since it takes at least an hour per pound.

And how about the foods that play supporting roles to the handsome bird? You might start with bowls of steaming soup. Select canned ones, if you will, to save time and effort—but do take time to add the extra touches that make the meal a very special one.

For instance, chicken rice soup might be garnished with toasted almonds or ribbons of pimiento.

For bouillon, cut little flower shapes or strips from orange peel. (These float like a dream.) Or take your choice of carrot coins, chopped black olives, or a puff of sour cream.

Of course you will want a vegetable—perhaps cauliflower, broccoli or brussels sprouts—and potatoes or rice.

Cranberries are as much a part of the Thanksgiving dinner as is the turkey itself. Serve either as the customary sauce, or combine with other fruits for the salad course.

There also is a trend toward serving cool, tart cranberry ice with the main course.

Cranberry Ice.

Six cups fresh cranberries.
Three cups sugar.
One-fourth cup lemon juice.
One cup heavy cream.

Boil cranberries in six cups water. When soft, press through sieve or food mill. Add sugar to cranberry puree. Bring to a brisk boil. Cool.

Add lemon juice. Place in refrigerator trays and freeze to soft mush. Fold in whipped cream. Return to trays and freeze until firm. Serve in sherbet glasses with main course of meal. Yield: 10 to 12 servings.

* * *

With today's ready prepared mincemeat that eliminates all of the preliminary work of preparing beef and fruits, it takes little effort to serve a fragrant mince pie hot from the oven.

For a change from the traditional mince pie, try combining prepared mince meat with an equal measure of whole cranberry sauce, or cooked sweetened dried apricots, or canned sour pitted cherries. Pour any of these combinations into a pastry lined pie pan, top with crust and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for 25 minutes or until fruit bubbles and crust is lightly browned.

French Mince Pie.

Pastry for nine-inch pie shell.
One and one-fourth cups mincemeat.
Two cups (three medium) sliced peeled apples.
One-third cup all-purpose flour.
One-half cup light brown sugar, firmly packed.
Three tablespoons butter or margarine.

Prepare pastry. Heat oven to 400 degrees (moderately hot). Spread mincemeat over bottom of pie shell. Arrange sliced apples over top. Combine flour and sugar; cut in butter until crumb-like in appearance. Sprinkle over apples. Bake at 400 degrees for 30-35 minutes, or until topping is lightly browned and apples are tender. Serve slightly warm. Yield: one nine-inch pie.

Frozen Relish.

If you are pressed for time, you may be interested to know that cranberry, orange relish is available in frozen form. A few packages in the freezer may solve many a last-minute problem during the holiday season.

GAY CRANBERRIES A HOLIDAY FAVORITE

CRANBERRIES are a natural with turkey, and each year readers inquire for recipes for these old favorites. When the bird comes to the table in all of his glory it is hard to beat a simple, quick-cooking

Cranberry Sauce.

Four cups fresh cranberries.
Two cups sugar.
Two cups water.

Combine cranberries, sugar and water in saucepan. Boil rapidly until berries pop open (about five minutes). Yield: one quart whole cranberry sauce.

* * *

Not new, but so good that it deserves repetition, is this recipe for no-cooking

Cranberry-Orange Relish.

Two oranges, quartered (remove seeds).
Two cups sugar.

Put cranberries and oranges (including rind) through food chopper. Add sugar. Chill. Yield: Two pints. Keeps in refrigerator for weeks.

To Make Cranberry Orange Relish Salad: Make raspberry flavored gelatin, following directions on package, but using one and one-half cups water instead of two cups.

Pour into mold and chill until firm. When ready to serve unmold and decorate with fresh cranberries and sprigs of parsley.

* * *

One of the most effective, yet simplest, garnishes for turkey or ham is canned cling peach halves topped with sliced canned cranberry sauce. To make a little more fancy, cut the cranberry sauce slices with a scalloped-edged cookie cutter.

HOSPITALITY is as much a part of Christmas as the decorations and the gaily wrapped gifts. And what is more essential to hospitality than good food? There is something about baking and serving her own Christmas goodies that gives every homemaker a deep satisfaction.

To help with your Christmas entertaining, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch is happy to furnish you without charge a booklet containing 18 carefully selected and tested recipes.

The booklet has been divided into three categories—one for cookies which may be made a month ahead of time (some may be frozen, others allowed to ripen); one for cookies which may be made a week to 10 days in advance; one for last-minute cookies to be served ovenfresh.

The collection contains some old favorites, such as Springerle and Pfeffernuesse. There are cookies which are inexpensive enough to make in quantities for the children, such as amusing monkey faces. Others are admittedly expensive, but truly elegant. Several are made from cookie mixes, from brand-new recipes developed especially for this booklet.

An interesting recipe was contributed from the personal collection of Louise Garrett, nationally known authority on baking with enriched flour. It is for pretty yeast-dough Christmas puffs, gay with bits of fruit, to serve for Christmas breakfast or with tea or coffee for afternoon tea.

All recipes have been kitchen tested by Mary Louise Bohn and her staff of home economists at Laclede Gas Co.

Eisenhower Presence Multiplies Phone Mix-ups in Gettysburg

A reporter heard the telephone ring in his room at the Gettysburg Hotel.

When he answered, a well-known voice on the other end of the line said: "Hello, is that you, Sherm?"

Recognizing the voice, the reporter was so astonished that he dropped the telephone on the floor.

"Sherm" is the familiar name that identifies Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's chief of staff at the White House.

Another telephone mix-up occurred when a Pennsylvania industrialist came to Gettysburg for the weekend to participate in a homecoming at his alma mater, Gettysburg College.

The prominent industrialist was given the elaborate hotel suite which had been occupied the previous night by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

A voice asked: "Are you a member of the party, sir?"

The industrialist replied: "Sure, but what party are you talking about?"

The voice on the other end said: "This is the White House."

The industrialist had inadvertently used a special telephone that had been installed in the suite for Dulles's use. It was a direct line to the temporary White House.

The telephone mix-ups are understandable in the light of a sudden tremendous upsurge in telephone calls since the President arrived in Gettysburg. The phone company installed 100 new trunk lines to take care of the needs of official business and press, radio and telephone coverage.

German Mission in Moscow.

MOSCOW, Nov. 21 (AP)—West Germany's first postwar cultural mission to the U.S.S.R. has arrived here. The Germans include Frank Braun, a film company director; Walter Hugenheimer, a Frankfurt editor, and Josef Hahn, dean of Munich University.

ROMMEL VETERANS HONOR GERMANS LOST IN AFRICA

TOBRUK, Libya, Nov. 21 (UP)—Four hundred former members of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps gathered in this dusty port Sunday to honor the memory of Germans who fell in the North African campaigns of World War II.

It was the first such ceremony since the end of the war. The 400, located through various veterans organizations in West Germany, were flown here at West German government expense with their wives and children.

The memorial is situated on high ground near Tobruk harbor, still dotted with the wrecks of ships sunk there during the siege of 1942.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 —The American Brake Shoe Co. of St. Louis has agreed to comply with a Federal Trade Commission order prohibiting it from charging different prices to customers in the same "trade area," the FTC announced last night.

Acceptance of the order does not constitute an admission by the concern, one of the country's two largest manufacturers of railroad car journal bearings, that it has violated the law as charged in a June 29 FTC complaint, the commission said.

The FTC charged the company, which has a plant at 4930 Manchester avenue, with cutting prices to drive out competition in an area including Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Another bearing manufacturer entered the area in 1950 and subsequently, the FTC said, American Brake Shoe "generally lowered its prices in the four states and gave an added cut to the competitor's principal customer."

WITNESSES SAY G.M. IS STIFLING SMALL CONCERNS

Generator Rebuilder Tells Senators Competition Is 'Almost Insurmountable.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) —A Boston manufacturer told Senate investigators today that General Motors Corp. is providing "almost insurmountable" competition for small firms engaged in rebuilding automobile generators.

Albert S. Holzwasser, president of Arrow Armatures Co., Boston, assailed the marketing policies of United Motor Service, a G.M. parts distributing subsidiary. His testimony was prepared for the Senate Anti-Trust and Monopoly subcommittee, which is holding public hearings on General Motors operations.

Holzwasser said his firm sells rebuilt generators to wholesalers for substantially less than United Motor Service — $6.95 compared with $8.85.

"But," he added, "we have a hard time outselling them and in some cases keeping long-established customers continuing to buy from us."

High-Pressure Tactics.

Holzwasser accused United Motor of using high-pressure tactics. He said a United Motor salesman told one Arrow customer in Massachusetts, "You have two lines of armatures on your shelf. . . . What will it be, Arrow or Delco-Remy?" Delco-Remy products are manufactured by a G.M. subsidiary.

The witness contended, too, that small manufacturers of electrical parts are "excluded" from getting a fair share of defense orders.

"Discrimination, if I may call it that, persists," he said, adding "and the damnable part of it is . . . it is costing the Government many thousands of dollars, too."

He said this situation applied "most particularly in the case of General Motors parts."

Another witness was Harold T. Halfpenny of Chicago, counsel for the National Standard Parts Association, a trade organization of independent manufacturers and wholesalers of auto parts and supplies.

Non-Competitive Items Up.

In his prepared testimony, Halfpenny said "there has been no appreciable change in General Motors' pricing" on highly competitive replacement auto parts. But he said "G.M. has substantially increased its list and net prices" for items not subject to great competition.

Halfpenny suggested the subcommittee determine whether G.M. has used price policy "to stifle the competition of independent manufacturers and distributors."

The nation must decide, he said, "whether it is time to invoke divestiture proceedings limiting General Motors and the other major vehicle manufacturers to the manufacture and sale of automotive vehicles and trucks, leaving the manufacture and distribution of replacement parts . . . to the independent service industry to provide such services more competitively, efficiently and less expensively."

G. C. Morris of Austin, Tex., executive director of automotive Wholesalers of Texas, testified that the average net profit of independent auto parts wholesalers has shrunk in the last 12 years from 15 per cent to 2½ per cent before taxes.

"Our problem, stated pointedly, is this: The independent automobile parts wholesaler is, in this greatest era of prosperity of the automotive age, being systematically, deliberately and effectively driven out of business," Morris said.

Morris added that the policies of the major oil companies, as well as the three major automobile manufacturers, are involved.

"By their control over the outlets for parts, accessories, tires and batteries, these major business concerns are able to exert indescribable pressures to force the holders of their franchises to provide the public with those part or other items in which the majors have a financial interest," he said.

Morris urged the subcommittee to demand a Federal Trade Commission examination of the practice of advertising certain replacement parts as "genuine" when they are in fact identical with parts sold to independent outlets. He said General Motors is making "tremendous headway" in the Southwest toward its indicated objective of getting more than half of the replacement parts business, estimated at $2,500,000,000 a year.

"We are not against them because they are big," he said. "We are against them because they are unfair, because they are using an economic gun-in-the-stomach to force their dealers to do business with them, and, in this way, they are eliminating our right to compete."

POPE SAYS CATHOLICS SAVED ITALY FROM REDS

CASTELGANDOLFO, Italy, Nov. 21 (UP) — Pope Pius XII said in a speech made public today that good Christians are the best citizens, and reminded Italy that Catholics saved it from the "apparently unavoidable" abyss of Communism.

The Pope made his remarks in an address to officials of Italy's interior ministry in a mass audience here yesterday. He urged them to try to prevent rather than repress crime, but to act resolutely against any subversion attempt.

CHINESE IN JAPAN REFUSE TO BOARD SHIP AND GO HOME

TOKYO, Nov. 21 (AP) — A China-bound Japanese repatriation ship was forced to delay its voyage yesterday when 156 Chinese being deported to the mainland refused to board the ship.

Japanese newspapers said the Chinese held a sitdown strike and declared they would continue to oppose repatriation until local authorities released five other Chinese now in jail and allowed them to return with them aboard the 7000-ton Koan Maru.

Four of the five, said the newspaper Asahi, were ringleaders of the Nov. 4 riot at Hammamatsu in which 100 Chinese prisoners broke windows and beat Japanese guards. The fifth man was a Nationalist Chinese student in Japan who expressed a desire to go to Red China. Some 240 Chinese were being held at Hammamatsu for breaking Japanese laws of illegal entry. At least 131 have indicated a desire to go to Formosa.

JAPAN'S PREMIER HATOYAMA QUITS, JUST FOR A DAY

TOKYO, Nov. 21 (AP) — Prime Minister Hatoyama resigned today along with his 16-member Cabinet. But he is expected to be back in office tomorrow.

The 72-year-old Premier stepped down to pave the way for a reshuffling of the Cabinet. The new members will be chosen from the new Liberal-Democratic party, formed last week by the merger of Japan's two big conservative parties, the Liberals and the Democrats.

Hatoyama, certain to be renamed Prime Minister at tomorrow's Diet session, is expected to name nine members of his old Democratic party and seven members of the former Prime Minister Yoshida's Liberal party to the Cabinet. Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu, strongly pro-American, is expected to retain his office.

HICKEY AMONG 6 HERE ASKED WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE

Philip J. Hickey, superintendent of instruction for St. Louis public schools, and five other St. Louisans have been invited to take part in the three-day White House Conference on Education which begins next Monday in Washington, it was announced today.

Other invited delegates are John I. Rollings, president of the Missouri Federation of Labor; Oscar A. Ehrhardt, Board of Education members; Milton W. Bierbaum, superintendent of schools of the West Walnut Manor school district; Frank W. Mitchell Sr., member of the state board of education, and Mrs. Aaron Fischer, a past president of the Missouri and the St. Louis Leagues of Women Voters.

Attending the conference will be approximately 2000 delegates, who will discuss school teacher and building needs and financial problems of school systems. A total of 33 representatives have been invited from Missouri.

PACIFIC FLEET COMMANDER ON 3-DAY VISIT TO FORMOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa, Nov. 21 (AP) — Adm. Felix B. Stump, commander in chief of the United States Pacific Fleet, arrived yesterday for a three-day visit "to see, listen and learn." Chinese Nationalist leaders, however, though the call might result in stepped-up United States aid to Free China.

At the airport reporters asked the admiral if Red China's home bases would be bombed if the Communists provoked a clash with the United States in the Far East.

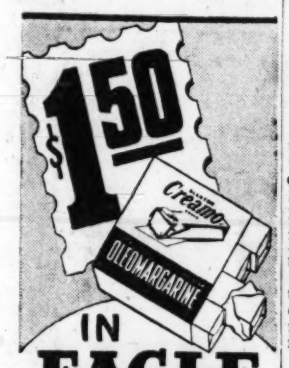

"You ask the President of the United States that," Stump replied. "It's up to him to decide —but I don't think he's be generous enough to give them any sanctuaries if they start anything."

BOMB DAMAGES AUTO OF ADVISER TO ILLINOIS BOARD

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 21 (INS)—County and state officials today investigated the bombing in Springfield of an automobile owned by R. Garrett Phillips, a technical adviser for the Illinois Commerce Commision.

The fuse-type bomb blasted a hole in the hood of a auto last night and shattered two windows in the Phillips home. Some of the glass fell near Phillips's 11-year-old daughter. She was asleep in a room about 25 feet from the car which was parked in the driveway.

Phillips, a former FBI agent, said he determined it was a fuse-type bomb because of burns left on the hood by the fuse.

Two young men were seen running south from the Phillips home seconds before the explosion.

Phillips's next-door neighbor is Clyde K. Townsend, chief deputy United States Marshal in Springfield. Both men discussed the possibility the bomb might have been meant for Townsend. However, neither could recall any enemy who would want to cause him harm and did not consider the bombing as a personal threat.

NEW IRANIAN ENVOY TO U.S.

TEHRAN, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Government announced yesterday that Justice Minister Dr. Ali Amini has been appointed Iranian ambassador to Washington, replacing Nasrollah Entezam.

Political circles said Amini knows Iran's financial situation better than anyone else and was appointed to negotiate for more American technical, financial and military help. Amini was finance minister during and after Mohammed Mossadegh's government. Amini expects to leave Tehran within two weeks.

STATE MOVES TO BAR CIGARETTE TAX SUIT

Judge Takes Motion for Dismissal Under Advisement.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 21—A state motion for dismissal of a suit attacking validity of the new Missouri cigarette tax law, on the ground the suit did not present adequate legal issues for decision, was taken under advisement today by Circuit Judge Sam C. Blair.

Judge Blair said he would rule as soon as possible on legal questions raised by Attorney General John M. Dalton on sufficiency of the declaratory judgment suit filed by Brown & Sons Tobacco Co. of St. Louis.

The new law imposed a state tax of 2 cents a package on cigarettes sold in Missouri. It was approved by voters in a referendum election Oct. 4 and is scheduled to become effective Jan. 1.

Assistant Attorney General Robert Welborn, representing the state, contended the suit should have been filed against State Revenue Collector A. S. Arenson, instead of M. E. Morris, director of the Department of Revenue. He also said the tobacco concern, a partnership, could not legally file the suit.

The attorney for Brown & Sons, John B. Sharpe of St. Louis, argued that the action properly was directed against Morris, director of revenue, because he was the superior of the revenue collector and had charge of enforcing tax laws.

Sharpe said his client had a substantial legal interest in the act because the St. Louis concern was a wholesaler, subject to provisions of the law. The suit did raise the necessary legal questions, he said.

The cigarette tax was passed by the 1955 Legislature and referred to the voters for approval. It is expected to produce between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 annually in revenue. A contention of the suit was that the new law had not been signed by the House Speaker, Roy Hamlin (Dem.), of Marion county.

The new law earmarked the tobacco tax money for a "Foundation program" of more liberal state aid for public school districts.

ST. LOUIS CONVICT FOUND DEAD IN STATE PRISON CELL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 21—Elliott Nelson, St. Louis convict serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary here, for murder, was found dead in his cell in "E" cell block early today.

Dr. J. G. Bruce, Cole county coroner, who was called after a cell mate reported finding Nelson dead in his bunk, said death was the result of a heart attack and did not order an inquest.

Nelson, 60 years old, was received from St. Louis May 4, 1953. While he was an inmate of "E" block, the nearest approach to a security cell block in the Missouri prison, he was assigned to a floor housing older convicts who are in ill health or incapable of working. Nelson pleaded guilty to a charge of first-degree murder in the death of his estranged wife, Stella Mae.

3 CHILDREN AND FATHER PERISH IN BLAST, FIRE

DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 21 (AP)—An explosion and fire turned a two-story log home into a death trap for three children and their father Saturday night.

Mrs. Wallace Ellefson, 26 years old, leaped to safety from her second-floor bedroom but she was badly burned.

Trapped in their beds when flames engulfed the building were Ellefson, 30, and his three children, Douglas, 4, Patricia, 6 and Arlette, 7.

A Duluth fire department official said the blast apparently was touched off by a leaky gas line in the house.

NIXON FLIES TO WASHINGTON FROM FLORIDA VACATION

DELRAY BEACH, Fla., Nov. 21 (AP)—Vice President Richard Nixon flew back to Washington today. Nixon has vacationed since last Tuesday at a beach "hideout." He was met on arrival in Florida by Earl Wallace, a Delray Beach automobile dealer.

FULL-SCALE WAR ORDERED RESUMED ON MALAYAN REDS

KUALA LUMPUR, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Malayan government today ordered resumption of full-scale warfare against Communist guerrillas in the wake of an attack by 100 rebels yesterday on a Cameron Highlands health resort in which two police were killed.

A joint statement issued by Chief Minister Tengku Abdul Rahman and director of operations Lt. Gen. Sir Geoffrey Bourne said since the amnesty offer on Sept. 9 security forces had been offering Communists the right to surrender.

The "shout before you shoot" order is now canceled, and bombing, shelling and mortaring of the enemy will be resumed immediately, the statement said.

MARIE DIONNE REPORTED TO HAVE PERNICIOUS ANEMIA

MONTREAL, Nov. 21 (AP)—Quintuplet Marie Dionne today was reported seriously ill with pernicious anemia.

The 21-year-old girl, who has been studying for religious orders, was brought here by a nurse last week to Notre Dame l'Esperance Hospital from Quebec City's convent of the Servants of the Blessed Sacrament.

Two other of the four surviving quintuplets, Cecile and Yvonne, are training as nurses at the hospital. Annette is studying music in Montreal.

Marie first entered the Roman Catholic cloister two years ago and was elevated to the rank of novice after six months. She returned home in July 1954, reportedly because of poor health, loss of appetite and extreme homesickness.

In September 1954, soon after the death of her quintuplet sister, Emilie, Marie returned to the convent.

CAB DRIVER ADMITS HITTING AUTO THAT KILLED MAN

A man who said he was Lonnie Bell, of the 2100 block of Cleveland avenue, East St. Louis, surrendered to East St. Louis police yesterday and signed a statement admitting he was the driver of a taxicab that struck a stalled car last Friday and killed Emmett Gray, a filling station operator.

Police had been seeking the taxicab driver who fled following the accident on Eighth street near the Southern Railway System tracks in East St. Louis. Bell, a Negro, is a driver for the Illinois Cab Co.

Gray, a Negro, who lived at 1204 Kansas avenue, East St. Louis, was standing betwen the rear of a tow truck and the front of the stalled automobile attaching a chain to the car when it was struck by the taxicab. Bell said he got out of his cab, became excited and ran.

RED CHINA REPORTS IT HAS 1,240,000 CO-OP FARMS

TOKYO, Nov. 21 (AP)—Communist China reported today it now has 1,240,000 co-operative farms, 590,000 of them created in "the past three months or so."

"It is likely the over-all target of 1,300,000 co-operative farms by spring sowing next year will be exceeded," a Peiping broadcast said. The broadcast called it "a new high tide" in the agricultural co-operative movement.

Red China has been pushing its three-stage farm program since last July. Mutual aid teams are used in the first stage. Co-operative farms are formed in the second. Collective farms—still comparatively few in the nation — are the third.

374-Year-Old Clock Stolen.

SHIZUOKA, Japan, Nov. 21 (AP) — Thieves broke into a Shinto shrine last night and stole a 374-year-old Spanish clock, possibly the oldest in Japan. The clock was made in Madrid by Dutch watchmaker Hans de Evale in 1581, officials said.

CITY URGES WOMEN SERVE TIME IN JAIL

Mayor Tells Judges Shift From Workhouse Would Relieve Overcrowding.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and Mrs. Edward G. Brungard, director of public welfare, appeared before the circuit judges in a general term meeting today to ask that women prisoners be required to serve their sentences in city jail rather than in the overcrowded workhouse.

Tucker pointed out that women prisoners at the workhouse usually number from nine to 12. They are kept, he said, in a maximum security section designed to accommodate 90 inmates. This section could be better utilized for men prisoners, who are confined in crowded facilities, the Mayor stated.

President Judge John K. Regan told the Mayor and Mrs. Brungard that the place of confinement of women prisoners was within the discretion of city officials. The actual commitment order for prisoners, issued after sentence, specifies the jail unless a prison term is imposed, Judge Regan said.

Tucker and Mrs. Brungard said they would also seek the co-operation of judges of the courts of criminal correction in getting convicted women prisoners sent to jail instead of the workhouse.

The two city officials informed the circuit judges a fourth courtroom was being readied to handle criminal cases in the Municipal Courts building to relieve heavy dockets.

Under a change of assignments effective Jan. 1, Judge J. Casey Walsh will preside in the criminal assignment division of circuit court and Judge David A. McMullan in the civil assignment division. The new judges in the courts of equity will be Waldo C. Mayfield and Regan.

2 EGYPTIAN JUDGES GET LIFE ON 'BRIBE' CHARGE

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Nov. 21 (UP)—Two Egyptian judges were sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday for "accepting bribery."

A military court passed the maximum sentence on Sheik Abdel Kader Elfil and Sheik Abdel Fattah Seif, both judges of the Islamic personal status tribunal.

The official indictment charged the two jurists passed lenient sentences on women appearing in their courts in return for the defendants' promises to be "nice and friendly."

TRAFFIC SETUP HELD KEY TO CITY GROWTH

Expert Says Facilities Should Be Planned for Load 10 Years Ahead.

The city which intelligently plans its traffic facilities today "is going to be the city which is in business 5 or 10 years from now," Kenneth B. Woods, head of the department of civil engineering at Purdue University, said here today.

Communities which obtain for themselves better highway facilities will be the ones which grow, Woods, nationally-known for his research in the highway engineering field, declared.

"If they don't, people will get so doggone sick of spending an hour driving to work that they'll move somewhere else," he added. "And the same will be true for industry."

Woods said it is vital to build highways with the increased loads of 10 or 15 years ahead in mind, so that the original base can be utilized in addfng thicknesses to take care of the added load. He was interviewed after a talk before the St. Louis section of the American Society of Civil Engineers, at Hotel York.

In his talk, Woods called the problem of building more, wider and thicker roads, and methods of raising funds to do it, "one of our major domestic problems."

He predicted that the trend toward "bigger and better trucks" and increased volume of passenger traffic would continue. In 1955, he said, there were almost 60,000,000 passenger cars and trucks on United States highways, including almost 10,000,000 trucks. This compares with a figure of 32,000,000 cars and trucks for 1940, he said.

Engineering skills have reached the point, Woods stated, where "we have the know-how to build either a flexible or a rigid pavement to take any load any one can throw at us."

He continued: "However, the thicker they get and the wider they become, the more they cost. Our problem now is twofold: lack of funds and lack of knowledge as to just where our loads are going to go in the future."

Roads designed in the 1920s and 1930s were "just about rgiht" for the loads which they carried at that time, but are inadequate today, Woods said. When first built, the ywere not overloaded, he said, "but it wasn't the state laws or the state police which protected them from overload—it was the fact that, if you overloaded, a tire would blow out."

The research program undertaken by the rubber industry under the spur of World War II developed tires which are now capable of taking "anything you want to put on them," he added.

Woods said he recognized the need of controlling the loads of highway transports by state regulation, but was "pessimistic" about continued success in this area.

"Particularly if we look ahead, there's such a problem of control," he said. "I can't quite see where they will get enough police to keep everything in line."

BODIES OF 12 NEVADA AIR CRASH VICTIMS RECOVERED

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 21 (AP).—Horses and men labored in freezing weather on the snow-covered slopes of Mount Charleston today to finish bringing out the bodies of 14 men killed in the crash of an Air Force transport.

Twelve bodies were brought down on horseback last night. Ambulances took them to the Nellis Air Force Base near Las Vegas for identification.

Lt. Leo G. Piper of the Air Force said it is expected the remaining two bodies will be recovered today.

The C-34 plane crashed Thursday at the 11,300-foot level on Mount Charleston, as it was en route from Burbank, Calif., to the Nevada atomic testing ground. The 14 aboard included five Air Force men, five Air Force civilian workers, two aviation engineers and two consultants.

RED NATIONS SIGN NEW PACT

BERLIN, Nov. 21 (AP)—Communist East Germany and Red China today signed a new trade and payments agreement for 1956, the East German news agency ADN reported last night. The value of goods involved was not stated.

China agreed to deliver minerals such as wolfram, tin, antimonium and quicksilver as well as foodstuffs, silk and wool. East Germany is to ship to China factory equipment, machine tools, railway rolling-stock, chemicals, artificial fertilizer and optical instruments.

MAN SHIPS 1081 TURKEYS AS PRESENTS TO FRIENDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—A New York City real estate man shipped 1081 turkeys yesterday via parcel post to friends throughout the world. They average 20 pounds each.

Charles F. Noyes began the custom back in 1924 with 12 turkeys and has added to the list each year.

"It's just a good will gesture, nothing else," he explained.

Among those who will receive the free turkeys this year are President Eisenhower, former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, novelist Fannie Hurst, president Walter O'Malley of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York.

GOLDEN WEDDING RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bauman, 3143A Oregon avenue, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary with a reception Thursday at 6 p.m. at Concordia Hall, Thirteenth and Arsenal streets. They were married Nov. 29, 1905 at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church here.

Bauman, 71 years old, operated a tavern before retiring last July. His wife, 69, is the former Mary Duspiwa. They have seven sons, a daughter and 12 grandchildren.

MID-EAST ACCORD URGED TO PLACATE U.S. JEWISH VOTE

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Daily Mail urged Prime Minister Eden yesterday to fly to Gettysburg, Pa., for talks with President Eisenhower.

The Mail, which strongly supports Eden's Conservative government, declared that with the breakdown of the Geneva Big Four talks "a common policy has again become of critical importance."

Among other things, the newspaper said editorially, the two English-speaking nations should reconcile apparent differences in their Middle East policies.

"Sir Anthony should go to the United States as soon as he can—before the name-calling of election year," the Mail said.

"This is a time when the Jewish vote in the United States must be conciliated. So American support of Israel grows stronger—especially in the struggle with Arabia. British policy seems to favor the Arabs.

100th Birthday Party.

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 21 (AP)—Jonathan A. Ferrier observed his 100th birthday anniversary today, with a coffee and cake celebration turned out to be quite a do. There were 191 guests: Ferrier's four children, 35 grandchildren, 113 great-grandchildren and 39 great-great-grandchildren.

EARLY DETECTION CALLED SECRET OF CANCER CONTROL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 21—Self examination by women for breast cancer was urged yesterday by Dr. Lauren V. Ackerman, professor of pathology and surgical pathology at Washington University Medical School, St. Louis. He spoke at a seminar of the American Cancer Society here.

Dr. Ackerman said the "look-and-see rather than wait-and-see" method is best for discovering the disease which is one of the most common cancers in women. He said the cancer is curable and usually first manifests itself by a painless lump in the breast.

"With early discovery, proper surgical therapy cure is possible in nine out of 10 cases," he said. "But when the disease has spread, the cure rate is reduced to only one in two patients."

JUDGE TO SEEK EXTRADITION OF PERON, 2 EX-AIDS

Treason Charges Under Inquiry—'Illicit Association' in Argentina Reported.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 21 (AP)—The federal judge investigating treason charges against Juan D. Peron, said today he is going to ask that the deposed president be extradited from Panama.

Judge Luis Botet said he has arrived at the conclusion that during the 10 years of Peron's regime, citizens were submitted to "a monstrous illict association aimed at committing crimes."

In view of that, he said, he has decided to ask for the extradition of Peron Peron's former interior and justice minister, Angel Borlenghi, from Cuba; and Saul Gonzalez Ruies, former Peron tax assessor, from the Panama embassy in Buenos Aires.

Meanwhile, the Government of provisional President Pedro Aramburu began its second week apparently engaged in a drive to nip any plots by disgruntled generals.

A tank and an armored car took up positions behind the Government House following authoritative reports that the new regime had put "out of circulation" three of Argentina's best known generals. These reports said the government planned to ease a fourth officer out of the country with an ambassadorship.

The new government hurled its first major obstacle last week in crushing a last-ditch general strike called by the old Peronista leadership of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT).

Aramburu and his associates apparently were moving just as forcefully to assure control of the army.

Authoritative sources said Gen. Leon Justo Bengoa and Gen. Juan Jose Uranga were arrested by soldiers yesterday. They said Lt. Gen. Julio A. Lagos, army commander-in-chief, had been "convinced" that he should ask for retirement.

It also was reported that Gen. Dalmiro Videla Balaguer, present federal administrator of Cordoba province, might be named ambassador to Italy.

All four men were leaders in the September revolt which ousted Juan D. Peron as president. Bengoa was named army minister after the revolt but quit the post Nov. 9, four days before control and forced provisional President Eduardo Lonardi out.

Uranga served as transport minister in the Lonardi Government. Lagos was named army commander Oct. 17.

Informants said all were believed connected with a "rightist" group which Arumburu and his supporters charged had assumed too much control in the Lonardi Government.

Authoritative circles, meanwhile, predicted that the newspaper La Presna will regain its freedom this week after four years of operation by the Peronista CGT. A member of the Aramburu cabinet said the newspaper will be returned to its owners, the Paz family, "very soon."

Adolfo Lanus, 63-year-old editorial writer who was fired from La Prensa when Peron expropriated it in 1951, was sworn in today as Aramburu's press secretary.

At the ceremony, which marked the end of Peron's huge propaganda machine, Minister of Interior Eduardo Busso delivered a stinging attack on Peron's press dictatorship.

"Neither prison, nor exile, nor tortures could silence the rebellion of free minds," Busso said.

Maj. Francisco Sanchez, Aramburu's newly appointed "Interventor" (administrator) of the paper, erased from its masthead the CGT inscription saying the newspaper was in its "fourth year" and restored the traditional sub-title, "founded on Oct. 18, 1869."

The action caused a protest from former employes of La Presna, who compiained his numbering of Saturday's issue as the 30,901st included issues published under CGT. They said this "misleads" the public into thinking there had been continuity of publication.

RED SATELLITES SAID TO BE FAR FROM RECONCILED

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—Russian satellite nations appear "overwhelmingly unreconciled to their captivity," former United States Senator William Benton said yesterday on his return from a month's tour of Iron Curtain countries.

The Connecticut Democrat, who was also formerly an assistant secretary of state, added, however: "I personally think that the hope of the captive peoples for liberation must come principally from any changes within Russia itself."

Benton said he had noted a "spirit of Moscow" among Russion officials of wishing "to broaden their horizon."—At the same time, he said, the international good will recently noticeable in the Kremlin can be stopped abruptly.

Benton, now publisher of the Encyclopedia Britannica, said there was increasing "religious manifestation" in Poland, and that resistance to Soviet domination in Hungary is indicated by how that country, once considered a "breadbasket of Europe," now imports food from Sweden.

Resistance in Czechoslovakia, he added, appears "more passive," but he estimated that the Communists have probably lost half the strength they possessed when the country was taken over in 1948.

7 TEAMS IN RUNNING FOR 3 MAJOR BOWL BERTHS

BETWEEN ROUNDS

by W. J. McGoogan

One Punch Worth $270,000 in Purses

BILL DALY, manager of Welterweight Vince Martinez who is here now to box Chris Christensen at The Arena Wednesday night, has had his ups and downs in the many years during which he handled the business affairs of boxers. But he had one "up" he'll never forget. That was with Lee Savold, a so-so heavyweight, who made a fortune for himself and his manager after he had been thought to be washed up.

Savold was never a great fighter. He started as a professional in 1934, after a career as a wrestler.

He boxed with indifferent success for about 10 years during which he made an appearance in St. Louis, losing a 10-round fight to Johnny Waiters, who was considered more or less a sparring partner for Savold.

Lee was the kind of a fellow who liked to indulge his appetites and he put on weight easily. He was not one to stay in the best of condition and finally appeared to be through.

That was in 1947 after he had boxed a draw here with Jim Richie, lost to Fitzie Fitzpatrick and others.

But early in 1948 he told Daly that he would like to try again.

"All right," Daly said to Savold, "if you'll go to Hot Springs, Ark., take off weight and get yourself into top condition, we'll see what can be done. Remember, though, it's up to you to get into top condition."

Savold 31 at Time

AT that time, Lee was about 31 years of age and it was really a chore for him to get back into physical condition.

"I'll still give him credit," Daly said at The Arena while watching Martinez work. "Savold worked hard. He took the baths at the Springs. He did his road work in the hills. He quit all drinking and smoking and quit eating between meals.

"He looked good and I lined up a tuneup match for him in Massachusetts. Going through New York on our way to the fight we heard that Joe Baksi had backed out of a match with Gino Buonvino, the Italian, scheduled for Madison Square Garden. Baksi had been injured in training or had become ill. Anyway we grabbed the bout for Lee.

"He knocked out Buonvino in 54 seconds, including the count which, I believe, still stands as a record in the Garden.

"That knockout punch meant $270,000 in purses to Savold during the next four years.

"We went to England where he fought Bruce Woodcock twice, losing on a foul to Bruce in four rounds the first time, then "knocking out the Englishman in four rounds the next time.

"He had bouts with Joe Louis and Rocky Marciano, which was his last on Feb. 13, 1952 when Marciano knocked him out in the sixth round, but only after he had made Marciano look bad.

"That was really a great move on Lee's part, though, in getting back into condition just when he did."

Unusual Break

IT IS not very often that a manager gets a break with a boxer like that, earning a considerable sum of money after it had appeared that the boxer was through.

Jack Hurley had something of a similar experience with Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express who made a comeback and did better in his last few matches, probably, than he did in his years before in the ring.

Petrolle got a great break, too, because he boxed Jimmy McLarnin in New York City at the time that McLarnin was the hottest thing on Broadway—and Petrolle beat him.

He followed with big money matches against Barney Ross, King Tut and others, one of them in St. Louis against Lope Tenorio, the only time Petrolle appeared in this city.

Billy retired in time, too, and is now living a quiet life as a business man in Duluth, Minn. while his old manager, Hurley, is still hustling matches in Seattle, Wash.

Two Suburban Games On Holiday Schedule

Two games in the Suburban League's Big Six will be among the highlights of an interesting Thanksgiving day prep football schedule. Unbeaten and untied Kirkwood will meet Webster Groves in a 2 o'clock game on Webster's Forty Acres field. At the same time on the Normandy gridiron, Normandy and Ritenour will meet. The latter game had previously been announced as a morning contest.

In another league game, East St. Louis and Belleville, both with perfect records, will meet at Parson's Field in East St. Louis at 10 a.m. This game will determine the Southwestern Illinois Conference's champion.

St. Mary's, the Catholic Athletic Conference champion, will pit its 9-0 record against Central (8-1), the Public High League titlist, in the Accident Benefit Fund game at Public Schools Stadium. Starting time is 2 p.m. St. Louis U. High will meet Assumption in another 2 o'clock game at Oakland Stadium.

T.C.U.'S FOE, NEW ORLEANS GAME RIVALS TO BE NAMED

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (UP)—The Michigan State, U.C.L.A. and Texas Christian campuses rang today with joyous celebrations of bowl bids, while seven teams still hopeful of getting invited to play somewhere Jan. 2 prepared for this week's games that will decide their fate.

Michigan State, the soph-studded squad that Coach Duffy Daugherty built into a powerhouse, became the Big Ten's Rose Bowl team by "remote control" when Michigan muffed the berth in losing to Ohio State, 17-0.

U.C.L.A. nailed down the spot as Pacific Coast Conference representative by drubbing Southern California, 17-7. The Uclans also got their third straight P.C.C. title, but the Big Ten crown went to Ohio State.

That makes the rose carnival at Pasadena, Calif., the second major bowl to complete its lineup, since the Orange Bowl already had matched Oklahoma and Maryland.

Texas Christian University became the Southwest's Conference's host team for the Cotton Bowl by crushing Rice, 35-0. The Horned Frogs may not win the league title, but pacemaking Texas A. and M. is ineligible for the bowl because it's under conference probation.

These clinchings leave three major bowl berths to be filled—the visiting team in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas and both teams in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans. They are expected group of seven: Auburn, Mississippi, Georgia Tech, Pittsburgh, Miami of Ohio, Navy and Army.

The first three are scrapping for the Southeastern Conference championship, which Mississippi can clinch by beating Mississippi State this Saturday. However, insiders figure Ole Miss is more likely to go to the Cotton Bowl with either Auburn or Georgia Tech playing host in the Sugar.

The winner of the Army-Navy service classic, which will highlight this concluding week of the regular season and will be nationally televised on Saturday, is almost certain to get a bid to one of these two, and perhaps both. It's not known yet whether service officials are inclined to accept such a bid.

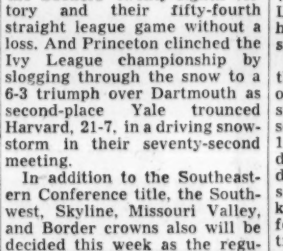

Pittsburgh ended its season with a 7-3 record by routing Penn State, 20-0, and Miami of Ohio hopes to conclude a perfect 9-0 season on Thanksgiving day, Thursday, by beating Cincinnati.

Last Saturday's action also saw Oklahoma, the nation's No. 1 team in the ratings by the United Press board of coaches, wrap up its eighth straight undisputed Big Seven championship by crushing Nebraska, 41-0, the Sooners' twenty-eighth victory and their fifty-fourth straight league game without a loss. And Princeton clinched the Ivy League championship by slogging through the snow to a 6-3 triumph over Dartmouth as second-place Yale trounced Harvard, 21-7, in a driving snowstorm in their seventy-second meeting.

In addition to the Southeastern Conference title, the Southwest, Skyline, Missouri Valley, and Border crowns also will be decided this week as the regular season comes to a close for almost everyone.

In the Southwest, the Texas Aggies can clinch by beating Texas Thursday, but a loss would let T.C.U. win the title by beating S.M.U. Saturday. In the Missouri Valley, Wichita can finish in a tie with Detroit for first place by beating Tulsa Thursday. In the Skyline, Wyoming can finish in a tie with Colorado A. & M. by beating Denver Thursday.

The final week is a big one for those traditional games, topped, of course, by the Army-Navy spectacle in Philadelphia. Thanksgiving day will see renewals of such old rivalries as Pennsylvania- Cornell and Utah-Utah State, while Saturday brings Holy Cross-Boston College, Southern California-Notre Dame, Louisiana State-Tulane, Oklahoma-Oklahoma A. and M., Georgia Tech-Georgia.

Skies are mostly clear today in Alberta and Saskatchewan, but cloudy elsewhere in north-central areas, and light snow is falling in eastern North Dakota. There have been no important temperature changes over the weekend, readings this morning ranging from 10 below in northern Alberta to near 10 above in southern Manitoba and around 20 along the border. Snow depths vary from one to 14 inches in Minnesota; one to five inches in North Dakota, and one to 14 inches in the Canadian provinces.

Precipitation will overspread north-central sections during the next 36 hours, beginning in western portions of the Dakotas today. The precipitation will be in the form of snow in more northern areas, and a mixture of rain and snow in southern sections. Temperatures will show a downward trend, with a possibility of considerable colder weather tomorrow night and Wednesday.

(Furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau.)

Shooting hours tomorrow: 6:20 a.m. to 4:14 p.m.

Good Tackle, Bad Timing---Pass Complete

—United Press Telephoto.

Faurot Says He's Not Sure Kansas U. Game Was Last as Coach

By Bob Broeg

Don Faurot acknowledged today he had told University of Missouri football players the traditional Kansas game might be his last as Tiger coach, but the veteran mentor said, "I haven't come to any conclusion."

Explaining that he hadn't intended for publication remarks made before the game in the visiting team's dressing room at Lawrence, Faurot said he had hoped the Tigers would play a spirited contest.

"And as far as I'm concerned, the kids played hard," he said of the 13-7 defeat on which the state university ended a dismal season with only one victory in 10 starts. "Our pass defense didn't hold up again, and we didn't hit in the clutch offensively and Kansas did, but the kids deserve credit for their effort, and I felt good about their trying."

Faurot emphasized satisfaction with the Tigers' efforts as a team, noting that he believed it to be a natural reaction in "a very disappointing season" for a coach to question whether he had his players hustling, and to question his own ability to lead them with inspiration.

Up to the Committee.

"But, in retrospect," he said, "I'm convinced we just didn't have enough, especially in the backfield, and that those fine performances against the top teams, Oklahoma and Maryland, were a result of the boys really playing better than they were ordinarily capable of doing."

Intimating, therefore, that he was satisfied with the coaching Missouri had received, Faurot insisted that he preferred not to comment.

"I haven't come to any conclusion," he reported. "The athletic committee meets a week from tomorrow (Tuesday) and it's up to the committee and the administration. Whatever they think is best for the university football program is what I want, too."

Faurot, 53, athletic director as well as football coach, has won a national reputation as inventor of the Split-T formation and for Missouri's middle-of-the-road athletic policies, including an emphasis on home-state players.

Looks Good for 1956.

"The Big Seven Conference, though Oklahoma stands alone at the top, has become a tougher league, but I believe we've got a right to feel optimistic for 1956 because of the many experienced players returning and our finest freshman team in years," Faurot said. "The size of those backs alone is encouraging."

Of four Tiger regulars who finished their careers in the Kansas game, losing to the Jayhawks for the first and only time, Faurot pointed out that Tackle Al Portney and Ends Hank Burnine and Terry Roberts had won All-Big Seven honors at one time or another.

"And Tony Karakas, though he was really too small to be linebacking in big-league college football, had lots of fight," Faurot said, adding:

Stranahan Victor in Pilots' Golf Tourney

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C., Nov. 21 (UP) — Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., shot a second-round 73 to win the second annual pilots' open golf tournament at the Pine Needles Golf Club.

Stranahan, who had an even-par 71 in the opening round, finished with a total of 144, seven strokes ahead of Don Belis of Baltimore, Md., who placed second with 75-76—151.

The tournament, open only to licensed pilots, drew a field of 52 players.

Southeast Missouri Defeats Delta State

CLEVELAND, Miss., Nov. 21 (AP). — Unbeaten and untied Southeast Missouri State ended its season Saturday night by defeating Delta (Miss.) State, 24-7.

Tom Dreneke scored the visitor's first touchdown on a 16-yard dash in the second quarter. Ralph Yonkers raced 73 yards for another touchdown and Mike Breneke scored the other on a 43-yard run.

Dick Yerkin, who made all three conversions, kicked a 16-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

Delta's touchdown came on a two-yard plunge by Carl Grubbs in the second quarter. Norman Wells added the conversion.

Teams Sagged, Coaches Eliot, Snavely Agree

They put away the football uniforms without the smile of victory today at Washington University and at Illinois, too, but both the Bears and the Illini had reason to look back on profitable seasons if not fitting finishes.

The Myrtle and Maroon, winding up with a 5-4 year, suffered a 27-20 defeat against Bradley last Saturday while the Orange and Blue, which won five and tied one in nine starts, was held to a surprising 7-7 stalemate by a battling Northwestern team that hadn't won a game.

Ray Eliot, Illini coach, had "no excuses" for the deadlock with the rival Big Ten Wildcats, expressing the thought "the kids couldn't get up mentally for a third game in three weeks" after tough, satisfying triumphs over Michigan and Wisconsin.

"We had a much better season than I had any right to expect," said Eliot, whose highly-regarded 1954 team lost eight out of nine. This one would achieve something if it could finish in the first division of the Big Ten, the coach had said, and the Illini came home fifth.

Prospects Are Good.

Only 10 members of the 33-man Illinois traveling squad will not return in 1956. The returnees will include three outstanding '55 sophomores, Halfback Bob Mitchell, Fullback Ray Nitschke and End Rod Hanson.

Out at Washington U., Coach Carl Snavely, looking back on the final game of his third season on the Hilltop, observed that the Bears had "played four good games in a row, then got off to a good start (14-0 lead) against Bradley, suffered a letdown and couldn't come back again."

Praising Bradley as a good, big team, Snavely complimented his Bears. "After a shaky start this year, the team jelled and came along fine," he said. "Without a conference affiliation, it's difficult to bring a team up for a game week after week."

Washington's main losses will be Tailback Mel Siegel, forced to miss his final college game because of an injury; Blocking Back Mike Bollinger, End Don Sauer, Center Stan Johnson and Tackle Rich Dammkoehler.

Short of Dunn's Record.

Fullback Don Polkinghorne, who fell five yards short of the post-war single-season rushing record held by Ted Dunn, Wingback Bob Ladd and Tailback Ken Miles, who pitched for 206 yards against Bradley, will head lettermen coming back. But there's a question whether End Don Schlapprizzi, going into law school, and Blocking Back Don Buercklin, entering dental school, will be able to mix football and their professional studies. —B.B.

Vinegar Bend Beats Munger In Cuban Loop

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 21 (UP)—Southpaw Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell of the St. Louis Cardinals, pitching for Havana of the Cuban winter league, struck out 10 more batters yesterday as he hurled a six-hit, 3-1 victory over Almedares that moved Havana within two games of first place.

Mizell, recently discharged from the United States Army, now has struck out 75 batters in 61 innings. He has a record of five victories and two losses, four of his wins coming against Almendares.

The new loop will include teams from Plainview, Pampa, El Paso, Midland, Big Spring, San Angelo from Texas and Hobbs, Roswell, Clovis and Carlsbad from New Mexico.

Deer Hunters Die At One-a-Day Rate

DETROIT, Nov. 21 (AP)

SEVEN Michigan deer hunters, an average of one a day, have died from gunfire since the 16-day season opened last Tuesday.

Eleven other hunters have died of heart attacks, two have frozen to death, one has died of exposure, and three have been asphyxiated sleeping in cars or tents. Another six hunters are missing and "presumed dead" by authorities.

Newberry College Will Play Lenoir Rhyne in Palmetto Shrine Game

Newberry finished its season with a 4-2-2 record. Lenoir Rhyne has won seven, while tying one, and can cinch its league championship Thursday against second-place Catawba.

Newberry and Lenoir Rhyne tied 13-13 during the regular season.

From Hitting Tackling Dummy to the Books

IF it's not one thing keeping a coach in hot water, it's scholastic eligibility and professional athletics, just to name two more. At disappointed and disappointing Missouri U., for instance, at least five husky interior linemen must hit the books hard between now and semester's end to retain athletic eligibility, and DON FAUROT and his staff must keep fingers crossed that freshman backfield stars CHARLEY JAMES and HANK KUHLMANN don't sign pro baseball contracts before getting college educations.

Another Tiger yearling, BILL FIEND, Jefferson City center, won high praise from GENE HART, St. Louis U. High coach who taught him at St. Peter's in the state capital. In high school, Fiend was a standout end as a freshman, a standout center as a sophomore and a fine back his last two years, making all-state as a senior. Even though his name is pronounced Find, Fiend is ferocious. Hart told JOHN ARCHIBALD of the Post-Dispatch sports staff and quoted CLAY COOPER, M.U. freshman coach, as saying Bill could be Mizzou's best center since All-America DAROLD JENKINS in 1941.

Speaking of versatility, Washington University's STAN JOHNSON, who finished against Bradley, began with the Bears as a guard, moved to blocking back in an injury-handicapped 1954 season and, though weighing only 165 pounds, played center on the Hilltop team this year.

ART LUPPINO, the nation's No. 1 college rusher, gained 139 yards, scored two touchdowns and kicked three extra points as Arizona defeated New Mexico, 27-6. . . . VIC JANOWICZ, former Ohio State All-America and one-time bonus rookie with the Pittsburgh Pirates, had just said he din't think he got a good shake in baseball when he tallied a TD, booted a field goal and kicked four extra points in 31-0 Washington Redskin triumph over the Chicago Cards.

Yak-Yak, or, Taking Bitter With Better

IN the aftermath of the showdown battles that gave U.C.L.A. the Pacific Coast title and a Rose Bowl berth, Ohio State the Big Ten crown again, Michigan State a trip to Pasedena and Michigan the chills, there were a few quotable quotes.

Said WOODY HAYES of Ohio State's 17-0 triumph over Michigan: "It was the best football game I've ever had a team play for me, and HOWARD CASSADY (who gained 146 yards in 28 tries) is the greatest player ever." Cassady wants to play pro football before or after an R.O.T.C. military call.

CLARENCE (BIGGIE) MUNN, now athletic director at Michigan State, doesn't have to talk cautiously like a football coach any more. In the flush of the Michigan defeat that gave the Spartans their Rose Bowl reward, Munn said of U.C.L.A., "We beat the same team in 1953 and we can beat 'em again."

DUFFY DAUGHERTY, Munn's successor whose team lost six of nine last year, rebounded to win eight and drop only one this time, began praising "my team" to alumni, but hurriedly corrected himself and said, slyly, "Oh, I forgot. This team belongs to you. Last year's team was mine."

JESS HILL, his Southern California Trojans beaten by Los Angeles rival U.C.L.A., 17-to 7, bitterly said, "No question that the penalty on JON ARNETT'S run (97 yards on the opening kickoff called back) was the turning point of the game." Hill snorted at the offsides call and said he thought it was the officials' job to help line up a team on the kickoff, but Umpire ORIAN LANDRETH declared in his own defense, "I did all I could. I yelled at five Trojan linemen to back up. After all, I can't go in there and push them back."

Waggish WALLY WEBER, assistant Michigan football coach noted for his polysyllabic vocabulary and puckish sense of humor, stuck his tongue firmly in cheek and went on the air over a Detroit radio station a few minutes after the final rough minutes during which penalty after penalty was called and the Wolverines' RON KRAMER kicked out of the Ohio State game. "Perhaps," said the dead-panned Weber, "we were a little remiss today. I abjectly apologize for such action on the team's part which I trust was caused by over-exuberance."

Mostly Opinion

IF an official thought Notre Dame's TERRY BRENNAN was guilty of coaching from the sidelines (unsportsmanlike conduct) by throwing a kicking tee onto the field to suggest PAUL HORNUNG try a game-winning field goal against Iowa — and Brennan denied it was he who tossed the artificial aid onto the gridiron — how was the tee going to get there? It's thrown from every college bench we've ever seen.

Vanderbilt, assured its finest season since RED SANDERS left in 1948 for U.C.L.A., would add prestige to any bowl game, if the folks at New Orleans and Dallas are interested. The Commodores, who've won seven of nine after beating Florida, 21 to 6, finish their regular season Saturday against Tennessee at Knoxville.

St. Louis Beaten at Foul Line

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Nov. 21—The need for a replacement for Frank Selvy, if that scoring ace does not get a reprieve from Uncle Sam, was the principal reaction of Ben Kerner and Red Holzman as the Hawks went home to St. Louis after an 84-80 loss to the Syracuse Nationals last night.

Selvy missed last night's game as he headed for Fort Knox, Ky., but Kerner said there's a possibility that the star may be permitted to return and perform with the Hawks until January. If not, Tradin' Ben will have to move fast before his early Western Division leadership collapses in the National Basketball Association.

Holzman got yeoman work from Chuck Share, Bob Pettit, and Dick Ricketts last night with timely help from veteran Bob Harrison. But with Selvy gone none of the other rookies looked particularly impressive. Jack Stephens, Al Ferrari, and Chris Harris were able to collect only 13 points among them with Ferrari looking like the best of the lot. He played 23 minutes and made seven points.

Ricketts Fouls Out.

Ricketts had collected 12 points and had grabbed off 10 rebounds when, with five minutes left and St. Louis trailing by only one point, the big Duquesne rookie fouled out. In spite of a hot-and-heavy battle from there to the wire the Hawks never could get that close again.

Share got 20 points, Pettit added 16 and Harrison netted 13, but the Nats had five men in double figures and they won from the free throw line. Share grabbed 16 rebounds and Pettit snared 14. Dolph Schayes led Syracuse rebounders with 15.

Holzman's team has lost only two games in five starts, but both of them have been to the Nats. It would seem that last night was their best chance, for the champions were far off in their shooting during the unusually low-scoring game.

Nats Cold From Field.

The Hawks outshot the Nats from the floor but even the St. Louis marksmanship, 30 out of 85, wasn't sensational. Syracuse, missing repeatedly on "cripples", hit only 27 fielders in 90 attempts.

It was a different story from the foul line, however. The winners sank 30 out of 40 and the Hawks, getting 32 free throws, missed 12 so the Hawks will need a victory over Rochester at Kiel Auditorium Wednesday night to keep the Royals from climbing into a tie with them for the Western Division lead.

Paced by rookie Maurice Stokes, who scored 25 points, Rochester downed Minneapolis, 104-96. The New York Knickerbockers, beaten only by the Hawks (twice), rallied to beat Fort Wayne in overtime, 119-115. Jim Baechtold's free throw with 42 seconds left enabled the Knicks to tie and Dick McGuire's basket and field goal proved the difference in the extra period.

Davis Cup Challenge Round Dec. 26-28, 1956

MELBOURNE, Nov. 21 (AP) — The Davis Cup challenge round will be held in Adelaide on Dec. 26-27-28, 1956, it was decided by eight votes to four at a meeting of the Australian Lawn Tennis Assn. tonight. The meeting was told that provision would be made to accommodate 17,000 spectators.

Melbourne, host to the Olympic games next Nov. 22-Dec. 8, had hoped to get the challenge round, too, as a follow-up to the games.

Australia regained the Davis Cup from the United States by 5-0 at Forest Hills, N.Y., last August.

PAUL CAMERA of Stanford U., minus one shoe, is about to be brought down after a thrilling 40-yard gain. But, Paul had to go right back to his starting point because a teammate was ruled offside on the play against California. But his team beat the Bears 19.0.

St. Louis Soccer Stars Impress Olympic Scouts

By Dent McSkimming

Olympic Soccer Committee members who watched three hours of trial competition at Fairground Park yesterday left town knowing that St. Louis is still a fruitful source of talent. Neither Ed Sullivan nor his colleague Jim Maguire, of New York and Philadelphia, would commit himself about individuals who merit Olympic team consideration, but both expressed pleasure in finding so many young players with good soccer sense.

Selection is being made on the basis of six such trials in various soccer centers. Late next month, the committee will name two teams to represent the United States Soccer Football Association in a four-team final trial program. This will take the form of a doubleheader in which the other two squads will be from the armed forces and the colleges.

"We can't name players as yet," said Sullivan, president of the U.S.S.F.A., "but I can say now that I feel sure we will be stronger than in any recent Olympic competition. I'm sure we will win over Mexico in the North American play-off."

At Chicago last Saturday, these two traveling scouts watched the trials there and next month they will look in on similar tests at San Francisco and Los Angeles. Other committee members watched a match at Philadelphia yesterday in which the Uhrik club of the American Soccer League opposed stars picked from all other Philadelphia teams. The New York and the New Jersey areas also will have their day before the judges.

400 Candidates for Team.

With 400 or more players involved in the national selection process, St. Louis would be very fortunate to fill more than three positions. But, on the basis of their performances before 1500 spectators, at least half a dozen deserve serious consideration.

None of the acknowledged headliners had a bad day. For example, players who have turned in creditable performances in international competition and stood out yesterday above their rivals include Charley Colombo, Ebbie McHugh, Bill Looby, Ruben Mendoza, Elwood Cook, Herman Wecke and Harry Keough.

And then, more prominent for their good work than many others were Bob Bubla, Ed Baumgartner, Nick Borzillo, Jack Dueker, Sammy Davis, Leroy Franks, Bob Haynos, Don Kettlekamp, Tom Kickham, Mickey McHugh, Jim Murphy, Val Pelizzaro, Bob Roberts, John Traina, Fred Vasquez, Bill Walz, Oscar Whetsel and Dean Wilson. This Jim Murphy is a tall center halfback who plays for the Holy Rosary team of the C.Y.C., and Haynos is a Pittsburgh area product who came in from Dallas where he is attending college.

Other observers may have still another list of men they believe were standouts. In fact, those who paid to see the show were given a ballot on which they were asked to list their own 11 choices. These unofficial votes could then be mailed to U.S.S.F.A. headquarters in New York. There is no way of telling, at this time, how the visiting committee feels about any of these players.

Whites and Greens Win.

As to the outcome of the two games: The White jerseys won from the Blues, 3-2, and the Green-clads beat the Red-clads, 2-0. But it was a test of individual skills; and so the games went. There was not much teamwork. A predominance of good backfield men made it difficult for all forwards to show to advantage.

There was merit, too, in the work of other players. Don Roedner scored a good goal; Jack Fitzgerald defended well; Tom Costello was a strong kicker at left fullback; Howard Lincks worked hard, and Ted Kirchhoefer had a better than usual day; Gene Cucchi proved his versatility by filling in at center halfback; Larry Miriani was not often beaten; Emil Brcic banged a couple of good shots; Ed Huke, Vince Cholewinski and Hube Domijan were good goalies. But they, and many others, did not rise above the level of the average. None played poorly and all helped to make the Olympic trial a success. Sunny weather, a smooth, dry playing field and comfortable temperature helped, too.

Fanfaron IV Wins.

PARIS, Nov. 21 (AP)—Fanfaron IV, a horse that had a narrow escape from the slaughterhouse three years ago, easily won the Prix George Brinquant race at Auteuil yesterday.

Fanfaron was delivered to the slaughterhouse when it appeared he was worth only his weight in horse meat. But Marius Auteroch, the soft-hearted slaughterhouse proprietor, saw a better future for Fanfaron.

Ozark Team Is Junior Olympic Swim Winner

Ozark A.A.U. officials were notified today that the Shaw Park 200-meter girls relay team won first place in the nationwide "Junior Olympic" competition.

Swimming at the Indianapolis meet last August, Janet Ackermann, Ardith Hartung, Joy Fehlig and Betty Noland covered the 200 meter free style in 2:16.5. That, according to the National A.A.U. message, was the best time recorded anywhere for the season.

The honor-winners, as well as most other leading local women swimmers, will be seen Sunday afternoon in the opening series of the annual Ozark A.A.U. all-round championships at the Y.W.H.A.

Raiders Beat Monkeys, 6-0

A 35-yard pass play from Rich Graham to Marv Marion, with Don Downs throwing the key block of the safety man, enabled the Vets Raiders to beat the Monkeys, 6-0, yesterday in the Muny Football League at Forest Park.

With the McCrarys routing the Goodfellow-McLlaran Merchants, 37-0, next Sunday's game between the Raiders and McCrarys is almost certain to decide the league title. McCrarys have a 4-1 record, Raiders 3-1, Monkeys 3-3 and Merchants 0-5. Only other game left is the Raiders-Merchants Dec. 4.

Bills Build Up Speed, Trounce Frosh, 118-61

A St. Louis University basketball team which Coach Eddie Hickey believes may develop as much speed as any he's had rolled over a good freshman outfit, 118 to 61, in its annual pre-view game for the edification of faculty and others last night.

"There are still some things that need smoothing out," said the veteran coach, about to launch his ninth season with the Billikens.

Jim McLaughlin is still a bit overweight and Al Serkin must continue his progress at the center position, the coach noted, but over-all the Bills looked pretty good to their best friends and severest critics.

The good freshman outfit, headed by 6-8 Bob Ferry at center and Rich Rogers at guard prevented any blazing start by the top varsity team and after about nine minutes of play at the Billiken gym the varsity had only a 21-14 lead.

But after a halftime edge of 43-28 was built up, the varsity showed its speed and the freshmen their greenness and the gap quickly widened.

Grady Smith, an early scoring standout, finished with 19 points, high for both sides. Harold Alcorn had 17 and McLaughlin 10. Ferry was high for the frosh with 17 points. Rogers had 10.

Yanks Complete Tour With Win

MANILA, Nov. 21 (UP)—Elston Howard and Bill Skowron hit home runs yesterday as the New York Yankees concluded their tour of the Far East with an 18-6 triumph over a team of Filipino stars.

The partisan crowd at Rizal Park received its biggest thrill of the day, however, when Florentino Lugay, a tiny Filipino outfielder, hit a home run with two mates on base in the ninth inning. The blow came off Bob Grim.

Manager Casey Stengel, who will go on with Mrs. Stengel to the Middle East and Europe while the players return to the United States, said he was impressed by the Filipino's standard of play.

"The players are all right in the fielding department," Stengel said. "In fact, I think they're better there than some of the Japanese players and even some of the American armed services teams we have played. They lack power in both throwing and hitting, however."

Zone Defenses May Multiply, Coaches Say

CARBONDALE, Ill., Nov. 21 (AP)—The wider free throw lane in college basketball should bring more zone defenses, fast breaks, fewer hook shots and more emphasis on the out-court set shot, a survey of coaches shows.

These predictions by Roswell D. Merrick and Donald N. Boydston are based on comments from 23 top basketball coaches in an article in Journal of Health, physical education and recreation, November issue.

Free throw lanes are widened from six to 12 feet under the new rule going into effect this year. The rule was adopted a few years ago by the National Basketball Association.

E. A. Diddle, coach at Western Kentucky State, says the "big slow boy" will be most affected.

U.C.L.A.'s John Wooden feels the tall players will lose "some cheap baskets by tip-ins after missed free throws and may lose some other offensive rebounds" but doesn't think their game will be "materially affected."

Everett N. Case of North Carolina State is one of those who sees set shooters being inserted into the lineup to draw the defense away from the basket and Harry Combes of Illinois believes there is no reason for changes in defensive tactics.

Combes said the big man with shooting ability will have to be defended against while playing out of the area.

St. Louis's Eddie Hickey sees the wider lane offering "greater possibility for the development of some type of zone defense."

Allsup Qualifies For U.S. Pin Meet

Gene Allsup of East St. Louis qualified for the national match game bowling tournament by winning the Southern Illinois Bowling Proprietors' tournament yesterday at Touchette Lanes. Allsup had 71.18 Petersen points. Other scores: Harry Benyr, Collinsville, 70.43; Don Mareing, Alton, 63.36; Frank Warren, East St. Louis, 63.20.

Bears Beat Lions to Take Over Lead in Pro Group

Rams Held To Tie by Baltimore

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Chicago Bears and Cleveland Browns appear headed for a meeting in the National Football League's championship game, but you'll never believe it if you listen to George Halas and Paul Brown, the pro game's most successful coaches.

Halas' Bears, climaxing a sustained rally, took undisputed first place in the Western division yesterday by defeating the Detroit Lions, 24-14. It was the sixth straight victory for Halas, who has coached the Bears to all but two of their record seven N.F.L. championships.

"We've got a rough road ahead starting with our bosom buddies, the Chicago Cardinals, next Sunday," Halas said as he shrugged off the triumph that enabled the Bears to snap their first place tie with the Los Angeles Rams.

The Bears took a half-game lead over the Los Angeles Rams, who rallied to tie the Baltimore Colts, 17-17.

Browns Rout Steelers.

Brown's Cleveland Huskies, rebounding from a 33-17 whipping by the Philadelphia Eagles last week, retained their one-game Eastern division lead by defeating the Pittsburgh Steelers, 41-14. Brown simply repeated yesterday's Philadelphia-New York result when asked about Cleveland's chances for an unprecedented tenth division title in as many tries.

"Giants 31, Eagles 7," Brown said as he pointed out his Brownies invade the Polo Grounds next Sunday. "If we get a championship this year, we'll get it on our own. No one's going to help us."

The Lions, who lost their first six games this season after ruling the Western division three straight years, looked like their old selves when they took a 14-10 half-time lead on Bobby Layne's 72-yard pass to Doak Walker and his 77 yarder to Dave Middleton. But Ed Brown, who opened the Bear scoring with an 11-yard pass to Bill McColl, threw 20 and 40-yard TD passes to end Harlon Hill during a seven-minute period in the third quarter to quiet 53,610 Detroit fans.

Otto Throws 'Em Straight.

Otto Graham, Cleveland's 33-year-old quarterback, hit 32-year-old Dante Lavelli with TD passes of six and 42 yards to give his team a 21-14 half-time edge. Ed Modzelewski, Graham and Maurice Bassett scored in the second half while the Brownie defensive unit throttled the Steelers before 54,509 Cleveland fans.

George Shaw's 28-yard pass to Jim Mutscheller gave the Colts a 17-10 last quarter lead at Baltimore but the Rams pulled even when Jack Ellena recovered Shaw's fumble to set up a one-yard TD plunge by Ron Waller.

Bert Zagers returned the first Cardinal punt 55 yards for a touchdown and Ralph Guglielmi passed eight yards to Vic Janowicz for another to start the Redskins to an easy triumph at Chicago.

Quarterback Tobin Rote's 49-yard run set up Howie Ferguson's six-yard lunge for the decisive Packer TD against the Forty-Niners at Milwaukee.

Martinez Goes 4 Fast Rounds In Arena Drill

Chris Christensen, battling, blond Dane has no fear in meeting Vince Martinez, handsome young welterweight from Paterson, N.J., even though Martinez is the fourth ranking contender in the division. They'll meet at The Arena on Wednesday night.

Christensen and his handlers point to the fact that he has fought tougher men than Martinez, also that Chris will have an advantage in height as well as a probable edge in weight.

In his most recent bout, Christensen lost a 10-round decision to Ralph (Tiger) Jones in Cleveland on a split decision even though Jones outweighed him about 10 pounds.

A fairly large group of fans who crowded into The Arena workout room to watch both men drill yesterday, however, seemed to feel that Martinez is just too clever for the Dane.

Christensen didn't do any boxing because, he said he did enough of that for the bout before leaving New York.

After his workout yesterday Martinez weighed 148 pounds, just one pound over the welterweight limit. He said he probably would put on a little weight by fight time while Christensen is likely to weigh about 152 pounds.

Parentes Second in Team Event

Pauline Smith, who will be one of St. Louis's representatives in the national match game tournament in Chicago next month, rolled a 681 as a member of the DuBowls in the state event at Sports Bowl yesterday. Her team managed a total of only 2719, however, to take over ninth place in the standings.

Mrs. Smith will compete in the singles and doubles next weekend as she bids for the all-events lead now held by Alma Slack, Springfield, with 1667.

The Parentes of St. Louis took over second in Class A with 2814.

In the doubles, Mrs. Rudene Art and Miss Doris Mykrantz, Springfield, moved into second with 1245. Mary Baremore and Beulah Hilyard, Kansas City, shot 1239 to take third. Mae Cotch and Bernice Fabac, Kansas City, remain in first with 1270.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 21 (AP)—Wes Santee, America's fastest miler, is back in good standing with the A.A.U.

The Missouri Valley A.A.U. board of governors decided yesterday to lift a suspension against the runner. The suspension would have barred him from the 1956 Olympics as well as other A.A.U.-sponsored events.

Another Valley A.A.U. body—the registration comimttee—imposed the penalty Oct. 30 on grounds Santee had accepted excessive expense allowances for three California track meets last May.

Santee, maintaining he had never violated amateur athletic standards, appealed to the higher board. The board of governors voted 21-7 to reject the registration committee's decision.

The former university of Kansas athlete, who has traveled the mile in 4:00.5, is now a Marine lieutenant stationed at Quantico, Va. He is considered the nation's best prospect for the Olympics' 1500-meter event.

There's a 10-day waiting period before the suspension is automatically lifted. That period is left open in the event any one wants to appeal the board of governors decision.

Bill Easton, Santee's coach during his college days at Kansas, represented the runner at yesterday's board hearing. He was quoted by A.A.U. officials as saying other athletes had received money in excess of amounts authorized by A.A.U. regulations and had not been penalized.

Santee was unable to attend.

The board of managers decision was unusual. Theo Bland, who served as temporary chairman of the registration committee during the Santee case, said he did not recall that a board ever had wiped out a suspension imposed in similar cases. Bland, 78, has been in A.A.U. activities for more than half a century.

Warning to would-be skaters on lamp standard in Forest Park seemed a little out of place in yesterday's spring-like weather. Park authorities, not wanting to be caught with their signs down, posted the notice in anticipation of a cold wave. Ducks in background had the lake to themselves.

REARGUARD ACTION

Water streams, flames and reflections blend into striking picture as firemen play hoses into burning warehouse at 817 North Fourth street. General alarm fire, which broke out in the vacant warehouse early yesterday, required four hours to extinguish. Police reported that unemployed transients had been sleeping in the building, and incendiary origin of the blaze is suspected. View is from an alley at the rear of the structure, where the fire is believed to have started.

Fine Daytime Shows On 'Matinee Theater'

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.

NBC's "MATINEE THEATER" is, I devoutly hope, a straw in the wind. This is a full hour dramatic show every afternoon (on KSD-TV at 2 p.m. Mondays through Fridays) which aims at the very highest level of script and performance and, surprisingly, has been achieving it. In case you happen to be one of the 30,000 or 40,000 people who have a color set, it's in color, too.

JOHN CROSBY

I don't know how long Albert McCleery, executive producer of the series, can keep up this mad pace, but he is so far giving afternoon programming a tremendous shot in the arm. The series emanates from NBC's vast Burbank color studios; months before it got on the air it had amassed 56 scripts including original TV plays, adaptations of magazine stories, novels and stage plays. Among the authors were John P. Marquand, whose "Beginning Now" kicked off the series with Louis Hayward as star; Gore Vidal, Edward Everett Hale, Sinclair Lewis, Emily Bronte and Edith Wharton.

OVER THE YEAR, the program plans to use something like 3500 actors, including Sir Cedric Hardwicke, John Barrymore Jr., Fay Bainter, Sarah Churchill, Margaret Truman, Richard Arlen, Kent Smith and Hugh O'Brien. In short, they're thinking big over there. Also, happily, it may mean the ultimate demise of soap opera which has not had anything like the success in television that it had in radio. Many soap operas, including the first TV soap "The First Hundred Years," have already folded and others probably will. The soaps have nowhere near the stamina on TV they had on radio.

I didn't see the opening play, "Beginning Now," but my spies report that it was a first rate job of acting, production and writing. I did see "Man Without a Country," Edward Everett Hale's classic, the other day, and it left very little to be desired.

I've seen "Man Without a Country" several times before on television and never been particularly happy about it. It is a story drenched in sentiment and to dramatize it without fogging up the place takes some doing. Elihu Winer, who did this adaptation, steered a nice middle course, not avoiding the essential pathos which, after all, is the heart of the story, but neatly underplaying it.

I HAVEN'T READ THE STORY in a great many years, but it seemed to me that he added new material which was just as good as that of the original. James Daly played the man condemned to sail the empty seas for a whole lifetime without ever seeing or hearing of his native land, and he progressed from a brash young naval officer to an indomitable and deeply beloved old man who devotes his time to reading and studying natural history. It is the sort of part young actors dream about and Daly—from "Damn the United States! I wish I would never hear of or see the United States again" to his forlorn end as a dedicated patriot—had a field day. If nothing else, this series is going to give a lot of actors a chance at some very meaty roles.

There were some fine heart-tugging scenes—Philip Nolan acting as translator for an African slave who wanted only to go home, a death bed scene in which he finds out that Abraham Lincoln is President of the United States and endeavors to find out with whom the country is at war. "England? France?" he asks. "No foreign power," says his old friend and jailer. "Then I'd rather not hear."

★ ★ ★

McCLEERY HAS long experimented with TV plays with little or no scenery. Here, assisted by a whole corps of directors, he is producing plays with mostly fragmentary or suggestive settings that are both inexpensive and highly effective. To get out five hour-long plays a week, he has a staff of 250 TV writers, rewrite men and story doctors, and an editorial staff of 10 editors and readers and a supervising story producer. In short, a staff that begins to resemble a Hollywood movie studio in the old days. This could lead to wild abuses as it did in Hollywood in the old days, but, for the time being, the results are wonderful.

Sinatra's 'On Top of the World' Again

He's About the Biggest Thing in Show Business After Amazing Comeback

By Don Ross

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.

FRANK SINATRA, who plays the gambler, Nathan Detroit, in "Guys and Dolls," is the entertainment industry's nearest equivalent to the legendary Phoenix, the odd bird that burned itself to ashes and then miraculously arose, its plumage brighter than ever.

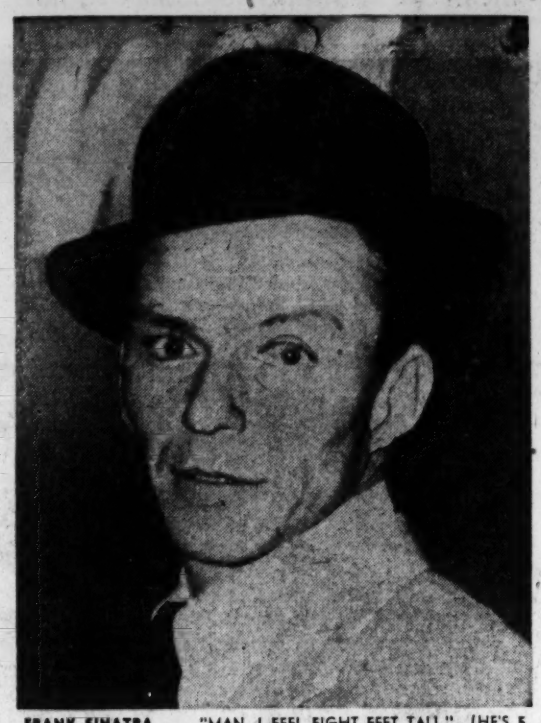

Four years ago it looked as though Sinatra had incinerated himself. When he and Ava Gardner left for Europe on their honeymoon, one Eastern newspaper said in an editorial, "Goodby, Frankie and Ava, and don't come back." Other fed-up editorialists from coast to coast expressed similar sentiments. Frankie, with his ill-tempered outbursts and his weird trans-Atlantic romancing, had gotten to be a bore and practically all the publicity about him was less than favorable.

The honeyed voice that 10 years ago had sent the bobby-soxers into transports—a psychologist, in trying to explain the phenomenon, said that "it was like being stroked with a hand covered with cold cream"—had become rough around the edges. Sinatra's record sales slipped badly. Apparently, the last stop on this dismal downward journey was oblivion.

Today Sinatra is just about the biggest thing in the entertainment industry. Ever since he appeared two years ago as Maggio, the explosive little Italian-American G.I. in "From Here to Eternity," winning an Academy Award for his performance, he has been a movie star of the first magnitude.

His newest movie is "The Tender Trap," and he is now making "The Man with the Golden Arm," in which he plays a dope fiend. He is reported to be in greater demand in Hollywood than any other star. He has formed his own producing company and his first film will be a Western, in which he will star.

Television networks have scrambled to sign him up to a long-term contract. (He's too busy to sign with any, but will do occasional shows for NBC.) The sales of at least one of his recent recordings ("Young at Heart") have climbed past the million mark, the point at which a singer knows he has really arrived. As a night club singer, he can get $50,000 a week.

FRANK SINATRA . . . "MAN, I FEEL EIGHT FEET TALL." (HE'S 5 FOOT 10 AND WEIGHS 135 POUNDS.)

No wonder that Sinatra's remarks recently have had an exultant ring to them. "Man, I feel eight feet tall," he said. (He's 5 foot 10 and weighs 135 pounds, a skinny fellow.) "Everything is ahead of me. I'm on top of the world. I'm buoyant."

★ ★ ★

SINCE Sinatra scrambled back to the top again, he has become less touchy and irritable than he used to be, according to those who have worked with him in recent movies.

"He seems a little more sure of himself than before," a colleague said. "But he's still not entirely sure. He's still got that chip on his shoulder. It's understandable. He's had a tough time of it. He was down for quite a while."

Just as in the old plush days, Sinatra is surrounded everywhere he goes by an entourage of anywhere from three to five people. Hank Sanicola, his business manager, is the leader of this group.

"On the movie set in the morning everybody watches to see if Frankie's mob is smiling when they arrive," one informant said. "If they're smiling, it's okay. That means Frankie is feeling good and everything will go smoothly. When Frankie is nice he's as sweet as they come. But if the mob is sour-looking, watch out! That means Frankie is in one of his surly, touchy moods. Then it's like a storm coming up."

Those who know Sinatra say that he is not a happy man despite all his soaring talk about feeling buoyant and eight feet tall. They believe he does not quite know what he wants out of this world.

One thing is certain. Sinatra's audience, which used to be made up almost exclusively of squealing teen-age girls, has changed considerably. It now contains solid phalanxes of sober, non-squealing adults who find him a warm and engaging personality with an agreeable voice. Teen-age girls are no longer enchanted.

Before Sinatra played in "From Here to Eternity," he had appeared in numerous movies, but he had not distinguished himself in any.

When Sinatra read the role of Maggio, he yearned for it so desperately that he was willing to work at a cut rate. He asked for $1000 a week, little enough for a performer who had previously earned $1,000,000 a year.

THE emotional drain of the part and his increasingly unhappy married life with Miss Gardner wore him out. A few months after "From Here to Eternity" appeared Sinatra went into a New York hospital suffering, according to reports, from physical and emotional exhaustion. He had lost 14 pounds and was down to 118.

Since "From Here to Eternity" Sinatra has appeared in several movies. In "Suddenly," he took the part of a psychopathic killer hired to assassinate the President; he crooned a couple of ballads in "Young at Heart," and in "Not as a Stranger" was the physician friend of Robert Mitchum, who took the lead.

As one Sinatra enthusiast expressed it: "When 'Not as a Stranger' was lying on the floor dead, along came Sinatra as Dr. Boone and revived it by the force of his personality. It was a beautiful thing to watch."

Though the testimony is strong that Sinatra is learning to govern his quick temper, there are occasional reports of flareups. Last year there were items in the papers about a scuffle outside the Crescendo Club in Hollywood in which Sinatra participated. No one was hit. This was an improvement, because in the old free-swinging days somebody would have been flattened.

Then there is, of course, Frankie's long-standing feud with Ed Sullivan, producer of "Toast of the Town."

Not long ago Sullivan took a full page ad in "Variety" to denounce what he called Sinatra's "reckless charge," that "Toast of the Town" doesn't pay its performers. Sinatra, in turn, took ads in several Hollywood trade papers which merely said:

DEAR ED:
YOU ARE SICK,
FRANKIE.
P.S. SICK, SICK, SICK.

A man who knows the new Sinatra pretty well is Samuel Goldwyn, who produced "Guys and Dolls."

"He's a great artist," said Goldwyn the other day. "I've found there are two kinds of movie actors. One just does what the director tells him to. The other kind does that and more. He gives plus value. Sinatra gives plus."

Wall for Child's Room

By Elizabeth Hillyer

A CHILD'S furniture is scaled down to his size. It can't be too tall, or it couldn't make his comfortable. Well, then, how about the walls of his room? Wouldn't a comedown in their apparent height help make him more comfortable, too?

Here's an idea for pulling down tall walls, or seeming to, to make a room feel more his size to the growing sprout. Set a bright picture border of wallpaper far down from the ceiling, so it's closer to his level.

BRING THE BORDER DOWN TO HIS SIZE.

Troubles With Storm Windows

WHEN the average person is troubled in cold weather with windows that sweat or become covered with frost, they usually go out and buy storm windows.

In nine times out of 10 the storm windows do the trick and everything is fine. In one case out of 10 the inside window continues to sweat and frost and the person who purchased the storm windows begins to wonder if maybe he wasn't robbed.

Now the purpose of a storm window is to create a layer of dead air between the inside window and the storm window. Dead air, as you know, is a pretty fair insulator so if the inside glass is insulated from the cold, it won't become so chilled that condensation occurs on it in the form of sweat or frost.

Now then, while dead air is a fine insulator, moving air isn't worth anything as insulation. This means that if the storm windows are not properly fitted and there are cracks around the edges that allow for drafts, the air between the storm and inside sash will be constantly in motion. This is bad.

If you've installed storm windows and they don't seem to be doing a good job, check to make sure that they fit tightly in the window frame. If they don't, try weatherstripping or caulking.

Caulking compound is easier and faster to apply than the stripping and may make a tighter job but it will be sort of messy next spring when it's time to take down the storm sashes. You should also check to be sure that the inside sash is closed tight and is fitted tightly in the frame. It, naturally, should be fitted with weatherstripping.

Good Choice

A two-pound boneless smoked pork shoulder butt is a good choice for a small family. Cover the butt with water and simmer a couple of hours. Drain and stick with whole cloves; pat brown sugar over the top and sides. Place in a hot oven to glaze.

Let's Explore Your Mind

Answer to Question 1.

BECAUSE, as many psychologists now believe, we really never forget anything we have really learned or experienced. Apparently, we forget an incident because it is buried under the millions of new events and experiences we meet from hour to hour. Of course, if we try to keep grief alive by continually dwelling on it, it will last longer. But, bye and bye, in spite of this, it slowly becomes dimmer and tends to become a precious memory without the acute pain.

Answer to Question 2.

What else could it be due to? If children are like their parents, it is largely due to heredity—and if they are not like them, it is largely due to heredity. In one case, they were born from a cell similar to the ones their parents were born from; in the other, they were born from a cell with a different mixture of traits from their ancestors. For this reason, some children are smarter than their parents, some not so smart. They both got some traits from further back in the family.

Answer to Question 3.

Happy wives, as a rule. This came out in the five-year study that psychologist L. M. Terman made of 765 couples. The happy wife, he found, usually likes the quiet joy of watching a drama; while the unhappy wife wants something more exciting—such as a dance—involving sociability and activity. They especially enjoy the company of the opposite sex.

Impressive Theme

Lace over satin creates an impressive theme, especially when champagne lace is placed over white satin. The idea is being used extensively for winter evening dresses. Some of these are of the slim, sheath type while others have full skirts. Young versions of the style add velvet sashes or have wide cummerbunds of the satin.

Engagement Plans

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

IF the engagement is to be a long one, it is smart to make careful plans to prevent it from going stale and becoming boring. June foresees a threat to her happiness and that of her fiance in an enforced two-year wait for marriage. She writes:

DR. PAUL POPENOE

"About the only thing we have been doing together is dancing, and I know we can't dance away the next 24 months. I'm awfully afraid we might begin to bore each other and ruin our prospects if we don't plan wisely. What kind of recreation do fairly well educated young people like ourselves find most worth while?"

★ ★ ★

I'LL SUGGEST some points that apply to almost anyone, married or single. Use your own judgment.

1. Play should be active rather than passive. Don't spend all your time in armchairs.

2. It should be largely natural, not artificial. Swimming, canoeing, skating, hiking, gardening—such things are better on the whole than games with artificial rules.

3. Most of it should be outdoors, not indoors.

4. It should provide opportunities for teamwork. Many marriages are wrecked by lack of ability to co-operate. Many men and women haven't learned to work with others toward a common objective. The right kind of recreation produces teamwork.

5. It should allow the sexes to be approximately equal. Don't spend all your time in some sort of play in which you are always favored or pampered. Learn to be a real partner.

★ ★ ★

OF COURSE you don't want to stop with recreation as preparation for matrimony. Talk over your mutual interests, ambitions, habits and prejudices, fully and frankly. Study some of the good books on the subject—there are dozens of them and your public library can provide some of the best.

Smash Hit

By Stan Delaplane

ROME.

MISS IONI GUERRINA made her professional debut the other night at the Trattoria La Villetta in Rome. She was a smash hit and remember, I said it first.

La Villetta doesn't get the carriage trade. It is a working man's restaurant. In the Trastevere section, where sagging Fifteenth Century houses sit on Roman foundation stones, and the little cobbled alley frames the lovely square of Santa Maria in Trastevere.

STAN DELAPLANE

There is hard bread and chianti on the table and the audience is exacting. For more than an hour, Miss Guerrina had them on their feet and cheering.

It was a little family party in a corner under the brick arches in La Villetta. It was grandma's birthday. They had a guitar player and mandolin player and the waiters ran in and out with flasks of red chianti.

★ ★ ★

IT WAS GRANDMA who asked Ioni to sing.

She started out shyly. You couldn't tell much about her voice yet. But it was true and there was a great gush of personality—that show business quality that fills a small restaurant or a Hollywood Bowl.

It jumped across to you and, all over the restaurant, people stopped eating and crowded under the arches to watch.

There was a little space between the tables. When the song ended she danced. Not so professionally but full of grace and fire. She had the sure touch to pull two bobby pins from her black hair and let it go. She had a smooth Italian face and complexion and her eyes were like black Italian olives in oil.

When she finished the whole restaurant broke down. Me, too. And Irving Hoffman, who has reviewed Broadway shows for some 25 years, clapped harder than I did.

Ioni came over and gave me her autograph in large block capitals. It is hard to write small when you are only 10 years old.

★ ★ ★

WHEN THE MUSIC STOPPED she was just a little girl again. In a brown and yellow sweater. I asked her where she learned to dance.

She said she "just learned. In the street, from the people."

"Do you see it in movies? Do you go to movies?"

"We used to go when I was little," she said wistfully. "But now mama has a new baby and we don't go."

"All my life I wanted to dance and sing. Sometimes I see people dancing on the television. I stand in the street before the bars and watch through the doors. But most of the time they just talk."

She said her father was a tailor who worked at home in the Trastevere section. After awhile she sang the "Song of Rome" and danced a bolero number with an absolute touch on the rhythm.

★ ★ ★

WELL, IT WAS A FINE OPENING for a youthful artist and I am sure there will be a day when I will be proud that I saw Ioni Guerrina in her first performance.

This is to let her know when she reads this (for a friend of mine will take it to her) that I am saving her autograph.

And when I am far from Rome, I shall remember the evening in La Villetta in Trastevere. And the music and the cobbled streets and the red wine and the fountains. And hear again Ioni singing: "Arrivederci Roma . . . au revoir . . . goodby . . ."

Russians Working to Harness the Sun

Soviet Projects Disclosed at Meeting in India—Solar Furnaces in Operation Described

By Charles P. Arnot

This is the second of three articles describing what science is doing to harness the sun's rays for use in your everyday life.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (INS).

THE men who breathe statistics and feast on reports say the United States and its Western partners hold a lead over Communist Russia in the atomic age. But will the Russians be the first to greet the solar age?

For the past few months, some Western scientists have been wondering. The men in the Kremlin are backing a mighty effort today to capture the sun.

Y. V. Kondryatyuk, Russia's leading researcher in the field of interplanetary travel, has declared that his chief aim in conquering cosmic space is to learn the secret of capturing the sun's virtually inexhaustible energy.

And at sunny Tashkent, just north of Afghanistan and west of China's Sinkiang province, the Soviets are operating the world's first solar institute.

There they have captured enough of the sun's powerful rays to operate canneries, distill water, keep food stocks refrigerated, cook meals and heat their own experimental laboratories.

So far, all of the information from behind the Iron Curtain accents the Soviet search for converting sun power to men's well-being.

There has been no evidence that the Russians—or any of the other 26 countries conducting solar experiments — have developed, or even sought, a formula for making the sun a weapon of destruction.

There's not the remotest chance that you will awaken tomorrow to find that an enemy has magnified the sun's rays to burn your next door farm, village or city. Those mythical reflectors mounted on space platforms high above the earth are still safely confined to the pages of science fiction.

But in the same breath, some American scientists concede that someday it might be possible. They are ever mindful that the sun's surface is a searing 10,000 degrees (Fahrenheit). Nothing—man, animal, rock or metal—could survive even a fraction of such heat.

Most of the information on the Soviet solar projects has come from the Russians themselves. In a surprise move last fall, the Soviets broke their tight-lipped silence and sent one of their leading solar scientists to a 12-nation conference sponsored in New Delhi by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and India's National Institute of Sciences.

Prof. V. A. Baum, head of the Tashkent Solar Laboratory, startled the delegates by talking freely—even enthusiastically—about the Soviet experiments and the great Russian plans for harnessing the sun.

"There are," Baum told the symposium, "no physical or technical difficulties in accomplishing these tasks." He added:

"Considering the great social importance of the extensive exploitation of solar energy, its development should not be greatly dependent on economic considerations."

The Russian scientist proudly told of Russian plans to make the sun provide water—through pumping and desalting—to drive back the desert and arid areas which cover nearly 1,000,000 square miles of Soviet land.

"Man is able to compel the sun to perform this cosmically-vast job," Baum declared confidently. "It is even possible to change the climates of some regions."

★ ★ ★

TASHKENT, lying roughly on the same earthly parallel as New York and Rome, has become the Communist central laboratory for dozens of solar projects.

Here are some of them:

—Curved-mirror reflectors 10 yards in diameter which can produce 100 pounds of steam an hour at a pressure of 100 pounds per square inch. The Russians have put such heaters to work in canneries and other small industries. One such heater recently was developed to produce 10 tons of steam an hour for a large industrial plant.

—Solar-driven steam heaters which can produce 250 gallons of distilled water from salt water daily. The Russians have found this to be the cheapest method of providing water for livestock in such remote arid areas as the Kara Kur desert.

Aluminum - mirror cooking stoves which can boil water and can cook a meal on a sunny day as fast as a 600-watt electric stove. The Russians have constructed several solar kitchens which can produce 100 gallons of boiled water daily.

Baum also said he and his colleagues were developing a solar steam generator to be used as a heating plant in winter and cooling plant in summer for theaters, hospitals and homes. The Tashkent laboratories have produced several kinds of simple water heaters.

Like solar scientists in other countries, Baum and his fellow Russians have hit a roadblock in efforts to produce large amounts of industrial electricity from solar radiation. They have not been able to solve the storage problem to provide a continuous flow of power when there is no sunshine.

History tells how the early Egyptians used solar energy for such novel projects as opening temple doors and turning statues on their pedestals. But today's scientists—in Russia, the United States and other countries — are concentrating on more practical uses.

Dr. Felix Trombe, the leading French solar energy expert, had his country's chronic fuel shortage in mind when he erected a powerful furnace atop the seventeenth century Montlouis fortress in the Pyrenees.

THE Trombe solar furnace is not the world's hottest, but its size makes it the most powerful. The huge heater has two large reflectors, which focus the heat rays and create temperatures up to 5400 degrees (Fahrenheit).

One, a flat 43 by 30-foot mosaic of 516 plate glass mirrors, follows the sun, constantly deflecting the rays to a fixed mirror 80 feet away. This is a 31-foot-high curved-mirror shell made of 3500 pieces of cheap window glass.

This arrangement throws off 75 kilowatts of heat power, enough to melt 130 pounds of iron an hour. Trombe is now producing refractory ceramics such as fused quartz and titanium dioxide on a commercial basis. In sunny Montlouis, this big furnace and four smaller experimental heaters can operate 250 days a year.

At San Diego, Calif., the Consolidated-Vultee Aircraft Co. has reached temperatures above 7000 degrees (70 per cent that of the sun's surface) with an experimental furnace which has a 10-foot mirror.

In Algiers, North Africa, Prof. A. Guillemonat built a 40-tone solar oven with a 27-foot mirror to produce fertilizer. This oven — synthesizing nitric acid from air, water, chalk and sunshine—creates temperatures up to 5500 degrees.

★ ★ ★

INDIA'S National Physical Laboratory near New Delhi has experimented with a half-dozen types of stoves, engines, water heaters and irrigation pumps. So far, most of them have proved too expensive for larg-scale manufacture in sun-rich, fuel-poor India.

Another device from India is a fractional hot air solar engine developed by the laboratory's deputy director, Dr. K. N. Mathur.

Solar-operated pumps ranging from one-tenth to three horsepower are being sold in Italy. They are successful devices for pumping water in sunny, fuel-short regions if the temperature of the water being pumped—and also used in the condensing portion of the engine cycle—is relatively cool. Pump efficiency falls off rapidly with water warmer than about 65 degrees (Fahrenheit).

A London-educated physicist in Israel has announced two discoveries which he says will lead to more economical production of steam heat from the sun. Director Harry Tabor of Israel's National Physical Laboratory says his discovery of a new-type collector metal will enable him to convert 16 per cent of the sun's energy into power. He plans to build a pilot plant soon to test costs.

The relative efficiency of the solar furnaces is considerably greater. Some of them can convert as much as 70 per cent of the total solar radiation into usable heat.

The drawbacks are a high initial cost, the necessity for sunshine for operation and a mechanism to keep them focused well on the sun.

Scientists at Stanford Research Institute say efficiency alone is not the criterion of success of a solar device. Efficiency often is important in the cost of energy, but they say there are many other factors such as initial cost of the equipment, operating expense, maintenance, energy form and storage.

The objective? To produce energy in a form suitable for the need at hand, and at a price that is competitive with other sources.

TOMORROW: Solar age or atomic age — which will come first?

A 40-TON SOLAR OVEN USED IN ALGIERS, NORTH AFRICA, TO SYNTHESIZE NITRIC ACID FROM AIR, WATER, CHALK AND SUNSHINE. THE 27-FOOT REFLECTOR FOCUSES THE SUN'S RAYS TO CREATE TEMPERATURES UP TO 5500 DEGREES.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

PLAYERS should not be so beguiled by a "natural" opening lead that they fail to consider the full implications of the opposing bidding.

East-West vulnerable.

	♠J985 ♥A8732 ♦Q5 ♣64
♠A42 ♥QJ96 ♦102 ♣QJ107	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠63 ♥K105 ♦AJ94 ♣9853
	♠KQ107 ♥4 ♦K8763 ♣AK2

South	West	North	East
1♦	Pass	1♥	Pass
1♠	Pass	2♠	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠ (end)

At seven of the eight tables the opening lead by West was the queen of clubs. For one thing, that was the unbid suit, and for another, the Q-J-10 sequence made the lead look safe. As a matter of fact, it was safe, but it was not quite constructive enough. The various declarers won and led a diamond to dummy's queen, and though East returned a trump after winning with the ace, the best West could do was to knock out two rounds of trumps. South led to the diamond king, ruffed a diamond, returned to his second club honor and ruffed another diamond, cashed the heart ace and ruffed a heart. He then drew West's last trump, cashed the thirteenth diamond, and finally conceded a club trick, claiming the contract.

Only one West took a different view of the situation. It was evident, he felt, from the North-South bidding that East could scarcely hold anything of value in the spade suit, so how could a trump opening hurt the defense? West himself had considerable strength in hearts and did not have to fear the quick establishment of that suit, so what was the great need to attack in clubs off the reel? True, a defensive club trick might get away, but that seemed less likely than that the declarer would cross-ruff hearts and diamonds if left to his own devices. East could have good material in diamonds.

So this West opened a low trump, and in effect that single move shattered South's chances. He won his own hand and led a diamond to the queen, but East won and returned a trump, and West took out two more rounds. That was one round too many for South.

Thyroid Trouble

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

MANY people write me about the influence of the glands upon our bodies. They are especially concerned about the thyroid. Their interest in this gland is probably due to reading and hearing so much about metabolism tests, operations on the thyroid and the new treatments of thyroid conditions with "atomic drugs."

DR. STEINCROHN

Of all the letters I receive, more and more are asking about hypothyroidism (underactive thyroid). Years ago most people were interested in hyperthyroidism (overactive thyroid). Their new interest is probably due to the fact that the condition—hypothyroidism—is much more common and widespread than the other kind.

It is fairly easy to diagnose the overactive variety. Last month I saw a 43-year-old housewife whose basal metabolism was plus 60. Her pulse was about 140. Her skin was moist, her eyes wide and staring, and she had a fine tremor of her fingers.

Although she had a tremendous appetite, she had lost 35 pounds in three months. She had a large lump in her thyroid gland. Any third year medical student—and many well read laymen—might easily guess the correct diagnosis. She recovered after treatment.

★ ★ ★

A LAZY, underactive thyroid is more difficult to diagnose. I believe it is one of the most commonly missed diagnoses in practice. It may even be present in the face of a normal metabolism. Sometimes giving thyroid extract will make the diagnosis because the patient responds so well. This is called the therapeutic test.

What are some of the symptoms that should make us suspicious of its presence? Let me give you a typical case. Remember that all of the following symptoms and signs are not present in every patient. It is your doctor's job to ferret out the diagnosis. It is especially difficult to make in the elderly. People charge the symptoms up to old age.

★ ★ ★

FOR EXAMPLE, I have seen a number of people in the late sixties and seventies who complained of extreme fatigue. They were lethargic, their reflexes were slow, their skin was dry and wrinkled and their eyes were puffy. What better description for "old age"?

At first they were treated with vitamins and other medications. But they did not improve. At last, their thyroids were inspected as a routine measure. To my surprise, metabolism and blood iodine tests showed their thyroid glands were not functioning up to par.

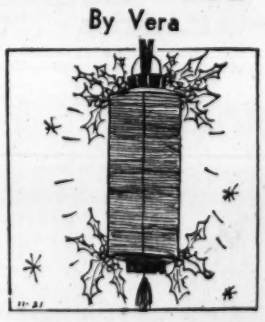

After a few months of taking a thyroid pill or two daily, many of these patients became transformed.

Since then I have always looked to the thyroid in all such patients. We must suspect the thyroid until it is proved innocent.

It pays for both doctor and patient to be "gland conscious." Thousands of persons live at half their efficiency. They "drag themselves around" to their daily tasks. Little do they suspect that all they need is a few pills to spur a lazy thyroid on to normal activity.

Secrets of Charm

A Handy Reminder

TO be remembered is a heart-warming thing, especially if it's unexpected. To be greeted with pleasure and by name by someone you met only once—to hear from a long distant friend — to receive good wishes on an important occasion from an unlooked for source.

There may be nothing seriously against anyone who half remembers names, or who overlooks opportunities to be friendly or appreciative. But that's not the sort of person you want to be—not if you want to be a charmer.

★ ★ ★

CHARM SETS high standards for your relations with others, and sets them higher than mere compliance with the demands of courtesy. You speak the generous word no one else thinks to say, write the gracious note no etiquette book says you must write, perform the small unexpected service.

Charm always seems to be effortless, and in the larger sense, it is. Because although the charming person goes out of his way as others do not, his prompting is more nearly unconscious than conscious — it comes from the inside. But many charming persons do prompt themselves in one way —take out double insurance — with a little secret reminder notebook, and this could also be a secret of your success.

★ ★ ★

JOT DOWN NAMES, dates, and duties so you won't forget them. Sometimes the writing of a name fixes it in your mind as hearing it won't. Dates and time prevent forgetting appointments or tardiness, and your birthday and anniversary calendar may list those to whom timely greetings will indeed come as a pleasant surprise.

The notebook, too, can remind you of the favor you promised, of the good thought you had that's so easy to neglect acting upon. It can help teach you the ways of thoughtfulness that delight others so much, and contribute so much to charm.

Ten Secrets of Charm.

You are welcome, free of charge, to the reminder card, Ten Secrets of Charm. It lists 10 points to remember as milestones along the road to greater charm. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of the Post-Dispatch and inclose a stamped, self-addressed return envelope.

YOU'RE THE ONE IN A MILLION WHEN YOU EXPECT MORE OF YOURSELF THAN IS EXPECTED OF YOU.

Miss Canning Engaged To George H. Walker III

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD CANNING of Westbury, L.I., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sandra Elizabeth Canning, to George Herbert Walker III, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Herbert Walker Jr. of Greenwich, Conn., former St. Louisans.

Miss Canning, a graduate of the Cathedral School of St. Mary in Garden City, L.I., is at present attending Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass.

Mr. Walker, whose mother was Miss Mary Carter, is a grandson of Mrs. George Herbert Walker of New York and Kennebunkport, Me., and the late Mr. Walker, and Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter, 8 Portland place. He is the brother of Mrs. Reuben Holden (Betty Walker), New Haven, Conn., wife of the assistant to the president of Yale University, and Lt. Ray Carter Walker, stationed at Fort Sill, Okla.

The bridegroom-elect is related to several well known families. He is a nephew of Mrs. Victor Agar-Robartes (Margaret Carter), his mother's twin, who lives in London; Mrs. Prescott Bush, wife of United States Senator Bush of Connecticut; Louis Walker, Hartford, Conn.; Miss Nancy Walker, New York; Dr. John M. Walker, Greenwich, Conn., and James Wear Walker, Old Westbury, Conn.

My Day

Praise for Stevenson Campaign

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.

I WAS interested to see that Adlai Stevenson has felt it necessary to say that if the President should run again he would not make his health an issue in the campaign. It seems superfluous to me that he should have to suggest even that he might do such a thing, because I think he has proved in his previous campaign that he will never act in a way which will be unfair—and, needless to say, dragging this in would certainly be unfair.

I am glad that the pre-convention campaign for Mr. Stevenson can now go forward. No one knows what the outcome in the Democratic convention will be, any more than one knows what the outcome in the Republican convention will be. But we can be quite sure that if Mr. Stevenson is nominated the policy he has announced of "no deals" which commit him to anything before he knows the circumstances in which he will find himself, will be lived up to. We can also be sure that there will be no underhand, below-the-belt kind of campaigning. The type of smear which we have grown to expect from certain people will not be acceptable to Adlai Stevenson.

★ ★ ★

I DO NOT THINK it correct for the newspapers to say that the parley in Geneva which has just come to an end is a failure. The mere fact that high officials meet and talk has value, I think. If nothing else has happened, we have all of us gained a clearer concept of what the Soviets really feel.

The Soviet objectives remain exactly what they have always been. They hope for a day when the United States will have a financial cataclysm and when the Soviet propaganda will have been so successful that the world will rise to Communism.

★ ★ ★

WE HAD BETTER grow accustomed to this idea and hope that the constant and continued contacts with the West will prove educational. If we are as convinced as the Russians of our beliefs, we may not convince them completely but we may at some time make them feel it is wise to accept our beliefs to a greater extent than they have.

Somehow we have to become accustomed not to expect too much out of each meeting, but to go on with the meetings simply because each one may bring some tiny increase in understanding.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

SOME time ago we remodeled our home, making part of it into a small apartment that we could rent out to help us in making our payments. We have had two good tenants but last winter I asked the last couple to move so my sister and her husband and child could move in. I explained when they moved in that since they have almost complete privacy, I expected them to do their share of the work such as mowing the lawn, cleaning the furnace, keeping the steps clean and the sidewalks swept. For a few months they did everything according to rules but now I find I have to remind them to do things.

If my sister tends the furnace she leaves such a trail of ashes behind that I'd rather tend the fire than clean up. Their child makes our house her second home and the hallway is cluttered with toys. My sister has to be reminded to wash the windows and steps and she gets mad every time these things are mentioned. I've spoken to my brother-in-law so often that you'd think they'd finally take stock of themselves and try to do their share. I don't want to be a difficult landlord, but we've struggled hard to get our home and we want to keep it nice. I work every evening trying to keep things up and while I don't expect my sister and her husband to take full interest in it, is it asking too much for a tenant to do a little around a place?

TIRED LANDLORD.

I think much depends on your financial arrangements. If they are paying no rent, or very little, and it was stipulated at the first that the work would be in lieu of rent payment, then you are right in being angry. On the other hand, no apartment house owner, for instance, would charge a tenant with the responsibility for more than his own quarters. The landlord tends to the furnace and keeps up the outside of the house as well as the public hallways. If they are paying the same rent that your other tenants paid, I think you are asking too much maintenance work from them. My suggestion is to have a family conference and get their views. Maybe they feel imposed on and if they had a chance to be heard, the grievance could be straightened out. But if they just don't want to co-operate and refuse either to pay rent or do a little work, then you would be justified in asking them to find another place to live.

She Helps People Be Good Neighbors

Consultant Visits Centers Here to Discuss Ways of Easing Conflicts

By Mary Kimbrough

GIVEN half a chance, today's busy, harassed Americans want to be as downright neighborly as Grandma was, whether they live in the "new neighborhood" of a public housing project or on the "new frontier" of a mushrooming atomic defense town rising suddenly on the prairie.

So believes Miss Margaret Berry, who has made a career of giving people that chance and helping them make good on it.

Miss Berry, a midwesterner who developed an early concern for people and a penchant for good neighborliness as a Methodist minister's daughter growing up in a parsonage, is now field consultant for the National Federation of Settlements and Neighborhood Centers. She recently spent two weeks in St. Louis conferring with boards and volunteer workers of the nine centers here, Neighborhood Association, Kingdom House, Caroline Mission, Wesley House, Fellowship Center, Carver House, Grace Hill House, Monsignor Butler Neighborhood Center and Community Music Schools.

"In today's changing pattern of society," she said, "agencies such as these must re-tool, just as a factory does, in order to meet new demands.

"Of 286 member agencies in our organization, 88 are working in or near public housing projects. And in those 'new neighborhoods,' where hundreds of families are in close contact, there are bound to be conflicts. We try to ease those conflicts through agency programs which develop co-operation among individuals and among groups.

"But another important phase of our work is on America's 'new frontiers,' those towns which spring up overnight in defense areas, where there are no traditions or established patterns.

"In those cases, we have co-operated in a project known as the United Community Defense Service which sends teams into the new towns and helps new citizens in their efforts to build good communities from the start. When you see them working together and making common decisions, it renews your faith in the old town meeting.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

MISS MARGARET BERRY . . . "ALL OF US HAVE TO REMEMBER THAT IF WE ARE TO BECOME A NATION OF NEIGHBORS, WE CANNOT BUILD FENCES AROUND OUR LIVES."

"Given an opportunity to be neighborly, they prove they are vitally concerned for the common good. When there is trouble or disaster, they show their neighborliness in a wonderful way."

In the older neighborhoods, Miss Berry pointed out, settlements help with rehabilitation, clean up alleys, refurbish homes, help to make those city blocks a happier place to live.

BUT WHAT MAKES a good neighborhood?

"A good neighborhood," said Miss Berry, "is not where you live, but how you live. It's accepting every members of the community on the basis of his personal worth, giving everyone a feeling that he has 'standing' in the community, that his opinions are recognized. It's taking an interest in others, encouraging every family and every individual to share in neighborhood projects and neighborhood recreation. It's practicing democracy at the grassroots level by discussing and voting on neighborhood issues and assuming neighborhood responsibilities."

Although people want to be neighborly, she said, modern living has weakened the neighborhood spirit.

"Today, we spend too little time at home," she said. "Commercial entertainment, cars, apartment living are separating us more and more from neighborhood contacts. Yet, without those contacts we lose an opportunity to put democracy to work for us. And the neighborhood center preserves those contacts by helping people work out problems together."

MISS BERRY started toward a career as a social worker during her college days when, as a member of a sociology class she was assigned the task of organizing a mothers' club in a neighborhood on the other side of the tracks. From that beginning, she went on to join the staff of a public welfare agency in Detroit and to the Y.W.C.A. industrial girls' staff in Cleveland. Meanwhile, she took time out for graduate study in socal work at Western Reserve University.

"Many of the problems today are the same as those in the time of Jane Addams when she established Hull House," said Miss Berry. "Of course, people today are better off economically although there still is a financial need. But the conflicts and the pressures, the occasional difficulties of working together are still there.

"One way we can solve those difficulties is to encourage and help people to appreciate each other, to understand and accept each other for what they are. It's hard sometimes in the densely-populated areas such as the public housing units, but it is being done.

"Back in the day of Jane Addams, these conflicts and difficulties were found among the European immigrants, but today their grandchildren and great-grandchildren are well-adjusted American citizens. Now, there are Negro and white conflicts, or difficulties between the Spanish-speaking peoples and their neighbors out in the Southwest.

"Right here in St. Louis, one of the problems involves another kind of immigrant—the man who spends the weekend on the farm and comes to the city to work all week because he can't support his family as a farmer. But he's really a rural person, an individualist, disliking regimentation, hating the sight of traffic lights, for instance, and sometimes causing problems because he cannot be assimilated easily into the life of an urban community.

"But all of us have to remember that if we are to become a nation of neighbors, we cannot build fences around our lives."

International Pattern

NORMAN HARTNELL, dressmaker to England's Queen, naturally believes in clothes that are fit for a queen without succumbing to the alphabet for silhouette identification. Here, in beautifully understated simplicity, is his princess model, its full-length gores opened at the neckline to give an effective notched detail. The back of the neckline, which is slighter lower, is cut straight across for a new and interesting interpretation of a square. A style that takes to any texture, it is most successful in stiff silks and sheer wool for big city wear. In linen, pique or novelty cotton, it's ideal for resort and cruise wear.

Actress's Big Role

By Helen Worden Erskine

THERE is a spotless three-story white Regency house in New York's East Sixties. A miniature bottle green artificial hedge rises elegantly from snappy black window boxes. Sidewalk, entrance and walls always appear freshly scrubbed. It might be a stage set for a sophisticated drawing room comedy. By contrast, the condescending rococo mansions of the social era in which the section became the right address look as dingy as a Monday wash in a coal camp. The tenants of the white house are Helen Menken, the famous actress, and George Richards, her husband.

HELEN ERSKINE

At the recent opening of the Plaza's new Edwardian room, Miss Menken and I sat at the same table. How on earth, I asked, did she keep her house so scrubbed looking?

"I scrub it," she said. Then, with laughter in her eyes, told this story on herself.

★ ★ ★

SOON AFTER she and her husband took possession of their home, words not in the dictionary were scrawled on its white walls. The flower boxes also suffered. Every gorgeous big scarlet geranium was uprooted. Resolutely Miss Menken substituted the artificial boxwood. Juvenile delinquency being in the news, she blamed teen-agers. To call police, seemed making a mountain out of a molehill. Instead she turned sleuth. The servants were let into the plot. Happily, for it was like returning to the theater which had been her world, she made herself up as an over-worked, ill-treated scrub woman; then, clutching her broom, pail of water, scrub brush, soap and mop, emerged from the service entrance of her own home.

With careless grace she washed the walls, swept the sidewalk and polished the brass doorknobs. Not a teen-ager in sight. Kneeling, she began vigorously scrubbing the porphyry stone entrance step. Presently a young girl in blue jeans and flip-flap sandals came along reading a letter.

★ ★ ★

NOW THE GIRL had reached the house. With an angry gesture she tore the letter into tiny bits and scattered them on the newly swept sidewalk.

Lifting her hands from the scrub pail, Miss Menken wearily shoved back her hair. "Please, Miss, I've just finished sweepin't that walk and every bone in me body aches . . ."

Dumbfounded, the girl stood there staring. "Why," she gasped, "You're Helen Menken, the actress!"

Miss Menken laughed. "And you're Nicholas Schenck's daughter, Nickie!" Then she told why she was scrubbing the entrance step. Miss Schenck apologized for her thoughtlessness. The letter had irritated her.

Shortly after, though neither had any relation to each other, the handwriting on the wall stopped. School had started. But Miss Menken still scrubs her front walk and entrance step. She gets a kick out of once again playing a part. So far Nickie Schenck is the only one who has recognized her.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

"MY fiance is a doctor. I am a registered nurse. After our marriage I expect to assist him in the office. Do I address him as 'John' or as 'Dr. Smith' before patients? And how should he address me?"

In office hours, you would call him "Doctor" and speak of him to patients as "the doctor." During office hours he would call you, and speak of you to patients as "Mrs. Smith." To your friends and also social acquaintances you would of course speak of him as "John" and he would speak of you as "Mary." It is always in bad taste to hear first names used between the head of any office and his assistant, and this lack of dignity would be particularly flagrant in a doctor's office—no matter who the assistant might be.

The Dean Speaks Up

The Pleasure in Writing a Column

By Adele Starbird

A FRIEND asked me what possible pleasure I could derive from writing a column, a thing by its very nature fleeting and impermanent. He seemed to think that I ought not to enjoy it.

Dean Starbird

But I do enjoy it. The fact that I am not addressing posterity does not lessen my interest in my contemporaries. The clergyman who preaches a sermon, the clown who does a circus act, the radio commentator, the columnist, we are all alike in our desire to hold the interest of our audience, and very happy when we succeed.

No matter how modest our daily or weekly stint, whether it be to instruct or amuse or divert or console, whether the audience be large or small, discriminating or simple, we live and work for the day. Only the present counts, only the people here and now. The future doesn't exist for our kind.

THIS IS neither an apology nor a boast. Let Stendhal write for a public three generations in the future. Somebody has to cook the meals and wipe the noses and make funny faces and write platitudes for this generation. None of it will be remembered, but it all adds up to something in the end.

And a few things are remembered for a while. A mother came up to me in a tearoom and asked if she might introduce her 17-year-old daughter. And the girl said shyly, "Whenever I talk to a man, I say to myself, 'And what kind of oranges do YOU grow on YOUR ranch?'" She was quoting from a column that had appeared five years before. It was rather frivolous, and it jolted me to learn that a child had taken it so seriously. Later I looked it up and was relieved to find it harmless, though frothy.

ALFRED DE MUSSET, a poet, and a good one, though never great, wrote concerning his own work, "My glass is small, but I drink out of my glass." He was content to work within the scope of his talent. He felt no need to imitate the grandiose. He wasn't trying to borrow a beer-mug.

As a mater of fact, the liquid in his little glass was such a precious distillation that people still read him, more than a century later. From that point of view he is not to be compared to a columnist, who has the life-span of a fruit-fly. Nevertheless, even the ephemeral columnist can take comfort in the motto of De Musset. Or in this: "Use the talents you possess, for the woods would be very silent if no birds sang except the best."

★ ★ ★

MR. RONALD BEASLEY tells a story about a group of medieval monks who annually prepared a program of Christmas music with great care. One of their number, who sang fervently a little off key, was a source of embarrassment to them. He so loved to participate in the chants that they hesitated to ask him to keep silent. After a few years, however, their pride in the artistic effect of their service was so great that he was requested not to sing.

Christmas came and went. Without the old monk, the music had been absolutely perfect.

However, God said to the angels, "I missed something this year. There used to be an old monk in a certain abbey on earth who sang the most exquisite service. But this Christmas he didn't sing at all."

"But Lord," said one of the angels, "all the other monks sang the service as usual."

"Indeed!" answered the Lord. "I have never heard the others. His was the only voice that ever reached my throne."

Possibility of Record Warm Day

Temperatures tomorrow should be in the 70s, with a possibility of setting a record high for the date, Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren forecast today. "But I suppose there will be people complaining that it ought to be cold and raw in keeping with the time of the year," he added philosophically.

A low pressure area in the far north is the cause of the unseasonably warm weather, which yesterday brought the thermometer up to 60 at 4 p.m. The pressure causes warm winds from the south and southwest.

A cold front is due by Wednesday morning, Wahlgren said. "It should be strong enough to cause frost on Thanksgiving morning," he said.

Temperatures in Missouri yesterday ranged from 53 at Malden to 73 at Kansas City. Lows this morning were from 29 at West Plains to 49 at Joplin.

Nationally, maximum readings yesterday were from 24 at Minot, N.D., to 84 at Tucson, Ariz. This morning the lowest thermometer mark was 2 above zero at Mount Washington, N.H. Balmiest spot was Key West, Fla., where the reading was 69.

CHAPTER TWO

Synopsis

LISA MORTON lives with her mother, MARNA, who operates a dress shop in California. Marna had divorced Lisa's father nine years before. Marna, in New York on a buying trip, sends PIERRE LA MONTE, whom she met in New York to help Lisa celebrate her eighteenth birthday. Lisa and Pierre have a wonderful time.

THE disapproval in Marna's voice was clearly discernible to her daughter in California. "You don't mean that Pierre is in the apartment with you now? At this hour?"

"You sound like a mother," Lisa said lightly. "It's three hours earlier here."

"That's true. I forgot," Marna admitted. "What was it you asked me?"

"Why did you send my present by Mr. La Monte instead of mailing it?" Lisa's eyes met Pierre's with an expression of daring which enchanted him. He smiled but he was concerned about what the older woman would say. Whatever it was he would back it up but it might have been wiser to have talked to her privately.

At the other end of the wire Marna was equally perplexed. Should she tell her daughter the reason she wanted her to know Pierre or wait until her return?

The watch Lisa had rejected decided her. It was always like this. Everytime Lisa heard from her father, she withdrew from her mother. As though she couldn't love both. And this in spite of the fact that Marna had never criticized him in the girl's presence nor mentioned the reason for their divorce.

* * *

MARNA had read all the current books on the subject and followed their advice fanatically with the result that Lisa idealized the father she had not seen for nine years and blamed her mother for leaving him.

After her eighteenth birthday they would be free to see each other whenever they liked. This was the reason, no doubt, for Steve's telegram advising Lisa that he would be coming to California to a convention, proving that Marna was right. He didn't want Lisa to visit him since he had remarried.

"Are you there?" Lisa inquired, "or have you gone back to sleep?" Marna said, "You asked about Pierre. We met at Bryants on Long Island. We were guests of Tom and Elsie over the weekend. I haven't had time to give many details. I asked him to look you up because I thought you might enjoy knowing each other this year since he will be living in Westwood."

"Living here? Why? What doing?"

"He's to teach at the university. An exchange professor from the Sorbonne, I believe."

She had sounded a bit too casual but Lisa was too interested in the information to notice it. "He doesn't look like any professor I've ever seen," Lisa declared. "Would you like to talk to him?"

Pierre smiled as Marna said hastily, "Not now. Just tell him to get out of there before your reputation is ruined, and Lisa, be sure to thank him for taking you to dinner."

"He told me it was your idea."

"It was in a way. I mean I hoped you'd like each other. There's really no reason you shouldn't be good friends, is there?"

Lisa resented the maternal concern in her mother's voice. "Not that I know of. I'll certainly try to keep him from becoming lonely."

* * *

SHE turned from the telephone indignantly. "Why didn't you tell me you were a prof?"

"I was afraid you wouldn't go out with me."

"Good. Now we understand each other. Good night, Pierre. My mother calls you that. May I do so, too?"

He kissed the hand she extended. "But naturally. Have I not been addressing you as Lisa?"

She felt safe with him now after talking to her mother. It was deadly in Westwood between semesters. It would be fun to have him around. Exciting, too. She had never seen a man so aware of her as a woman.

Long after he had gone Lisa sat in a big chair with her pale blue skirt swirling about her. She had looked forward to her eighteenth birthday as something special. It would be a turning-point in her life because after that she could visit her father.

Since receiving the telegram today she realized he preferred seeing her in California since he expected to attend the convention. Time enough then to tell him about her secret desire to work for his paper—the Walnut City Banner. He might invite her to go home with him. But whether he did or not the course of her life was already changing, like the widening, ever-deepening stream of her destiny. Pierre might be a part of it. Twenty-four hours ago she hadn't known he existed, but already she was looking forward to their next meeting.

Her glance fell on the package containing the jewel-studded watch her mother had given her. Marna tried to conceal it but she had been hurt when Lisa asked her to exchange it.

Maybe she should keep it to wear in the evenings for parties, etc. It was crazy to have two watches, but she didn't want to hurt her mother. There was enough friction between them without adding the matter of the watch.

Top your meat, fish, macaroni and vegetable casserole with three or four tablespoons of Parmesan cheese and lift these dishes out of the everyday class. Drop a tablespoon or two in beef stews too.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

THE month of November marks the disappearance of most birds from the northern half of North America. In the same way birds vanish from northerly parts of Europe and Asia.

Q. Where do the birds go in winter?

A. Some North American birds spend the winter in such states as Maryland, Tennessee and Missouri. Others fly to states which border the Gulf of Mexico. The mild winter climate of the Pacific coast attracts many birds.

Migrating birds in huge number cross the Gulf of Mexico to spend the winter in southern Mexico, Central America or South America.

Q. What routes do birds choose when they fly southward?

Birds of Nova Scotia and the New England states usually follow a coastal route southward. After stopping in various places to eat, they reach Florida. Many of them fly to Cuba, Puerto Rico and other islands of the West Indies, staying there during the winter. Others fly to South America by way of Cuba and Jamaica. Still others cross the Gulf of Mexico to Yucatan. From Yucatan they may keep moving, perhaps spending the winter in Central America or going to Colombia, Ecuador or Venezuela.

Q. Why don't the birds of Nova Scotia take a quick, direct ocean route to South America?

A. Some of the water birds of Nova Scotia do that very thing, making a 2400-mile journey. They rest along the way by settling in the ocean.

the Gulf of Mexico of 600 or 700 miles, but that is the limit for most of them.
